TALMADGE FLAYS U. S. 'THROTTLING' OF FARM BULLETIN

LINDER IS DEFIANT OVER P. O. ORDER

With June 20 as 'Deadline,' Farm Head Plans to Discuss AAA in Bulletin's Next Issue.

A battle to the finish over postage rates for the Georgia Market Bulletin loomed yesterday as Governor Talmadge charged the Postoffice Department with attempting to "throttle the right of free speech," and Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder received warning that second-class postal privileges extended the bulletin will be withdrawn unless he ceases publishing political editorials.

The governor said he had read the last few issues of the publication and "they were all right," so far as he could see.

He asserted the State Department of Agriculture will not be able to support its official farm publication if the present low second-class postage rates are revoked.

The chief executive's statement was made in Macon yesterday, where he attended dedication exercises of the W. L. Stribling Memorial bridge.

"Deadline" Is Set.

Given until June 20 to "make up his mind," Linder announced defiantly that in this week's issue of the Market Bulletin, which will come off the press tomorrow, he intended to discuss what has happened to Georgia farmers under the AAA.

The commissioner of agriculture likewise charged that the federal government has undertaken to dictate all agricultural activities to such an extent through the AAA that it is impossible to write about any agricultural subject without writing about some phase of politics.

Entered as Second Class.

The Market Bulletin is entered in the United States postoffice as second-class matter, and is carried at a rate of 1 1-2 cents a pound. Thus the 100,000 copies sent out each week cost $50 for postage. If the present rating is withdrawn, as threatened by postal officials, it would cost approximately $400 weekly to mail out the Bulletins.

Commissioner Linder was served notice at his office yesterday by Postmaster Lon Livingston that the May 13, 20 and 27 issues of the Market Bulletin contained articles violating a postal law passed in 1900 which provides that publication of state departments of agriculture "shall be published only for the purpose of furthering objects of such departments" in order to be entitled to second-class mailing privileges.

Letter From Official.

Notice of the violations was contained in a letter from E. I. Eilenberger, third assistant postmaster-general, which stated that Linder has until June 20 to make a satisfactory explanation of the political articles carried in the Bulletin. The letter

Empire Builders of Alaska Elect Congress to Direct Own Affairs

Delegates Assemble in Tent, Name Chairman and Settle Pressing Problems of Garbage Disposal, Unfettered Hounds and Milk for Children.

(Copyright, 1935, by The North American Newspaper Alliance.)

By ARVILLE SCHALEBEN.

PALMER, Alaska, June 10.—Eighteen sturdy men and women made history the other night out of garbage, dogs and cows.

They comprised the first council of the Matanuska valley colony. Each camp elected one man and one woman delegate, except the headquarters camp, which, because of its larger population, got four delegates. This council will make rules of conduct for the new society and advise the Alaska Rural Rehabilitation Corporation, governmental sponsor of the colony, on knotty problems.

When the delegates pushed into the headquarters tent clouds overcast the evening sun, so a gasoline lamp was lighted. The men and women sat on benches and boxes and four men lolled on a cot.

"Now the meeting will come to order," said Don Irwin, project manager and temporary chairman. "First we want to get the names of the representatives from each camp."

"Mrs. Guildord Lemmon, camp one," said a young woman dressed in blue corduroy pants and a zipper jacket. She was the first to answer the roll call. R. A. C. Atwood, chief corporation clerk, wrote her name and those of the other 17 delegates, as they answered, on a purchase order blank. That was the first record of the leaders who have come to build an empire.

Irwin talked lengthily on colonization. "You represent 200 families," he said. "Your organization is the same thing as a house of representatives or a senate and the decisions you make, in the main, are to be final."

Name Chairman.

The women delegates studiously took notes on paper pads. The men sat serious faced, with chins in cupped hands. Frank Swanda picked nervously at the fringes on his deerskin coat.

UTILITY VOTE SET FOR SENATE TODAY

Tuesday Postponement Gained by Foes Who Lost Amendment Tilt.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—Opponents of the administration bill to abolish public utility holding companies today beat off immediate action in the senate on the measure by agreeing to a showdown vote tomorrow afternoon.

The action was taken on request of Senator Dieterich, democrat, Illinois, author of a dozen amendments aimed at scooping out of the measure its authority to abolish holding companies and leave the bill with little power other than to regulate interstate transmission of power.

The agreement snagged the bill as it swept on toward what Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, co-author of the measure, considered certain passage with its drastic provisions virtually unchanged from the form in which they were written by administration attorneys.

Vote by 4 P. M.

Protesting that many senators were absent and that the short time remaining would deny adequate consideration of his amendments, Dieterich demanded the measure go over until tomorrow.

Hotly, Wheeler objected and gave in only on agreement to bring the Dieterich amendments to a vote not later than 2 p. m. tomorrow, and the final vote on the bill by 4 p. m.

Minor "clarifying amendments" were accepted during the day but as the senate put the utility bill aside to take up the proposal to extend the life of the office of railroad co-ordinator, Senator Clark, democrat, Missouri, served notice he was ready with more amendments to put forward tomorrow, together with a motion to send the bill back to committee for redrafting in terms he felt would better suit it to the recent supreme court decision on NRA.

CHINA SURRENDERS TO JAP DEMANDS

Nipponese-Approved Administration Swings In Action Over Key Area.

By the Associated Press.

A new Japanese-approved administration swung into action in the Tientsin district today, following Chinese surrender to Tokyo's demand today as Chinese government troops streamed out of the area in compliance with Japan's orders.

A new mayor, garrison commander and police chief, all speaking fluent Japanese, rapidly substituted their own followers for the former Chinese job holders.

The Pieping-Tientsin railway was cluttered with troop trains, swarming with government forces which were moving to new garrison areas under Japanese insistence.

The Chinese government in Nanking issued a mandate "forbidding provocative speeches and actions detrimental" to foreign relations.

Suppression of anti-Japanese agitation was one of Tokyo's major stipulations.

Uneasiness in Tientsin, huge port which is key to the affected area, was renewed when Japanese troops were dispatched to Yangstun upon reports Japanese military telegraph lines had been burned. A Japanese spokesman said the incident was "provocative," warranting "firm action."

Chinese troops were reported to be evacuating Hopei province in compliance with Tokyo's demand.

"NEW REGIME" SEEN UNDER JAPANESE SCRUTINY

PEIPING, June 10.—(AP)—Japanese military authorities announced tonight China had accepted all of Tokyo's "demands concerning north China," paving the way for establishment of a "new regime" under Japanese scrutiny.

Tending to confirm the Japanese announcement, the Chinese national government at Nanking issued a mandate "forbidding provocative speeches and actions detrimental to the maintenance of friendly relations between China and neighboring countries.

"Instigating anti-foreignism through literature is also banned," the Nanking mandate stated, warning stern punishment would be given violators. Suppression of anti-Japanese societies in north China was one of the major demands.

Chinese and Japanese officials joined tonight in expressing optimism that the crisis would be settled peacefully.

Renewed uneasiness, however, was felt in Tientsin when Japanese troops and an armored car were sent to Yangstun, 35 miles to the northwest, after reports Japanese military telegraph poles had been burned.

A spokesman for the Japanese army asserted it "was a provocative incident, warranting our firm action." The dispatching of two Japanese warships from Port Arthur to Tientsin to protect Japanese nationals in the event of trouble also created misgivings in some Tientsin quarters.

Peiping observers cited as an evidence of lessening tension the fact that Major General Doihara, Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria," had abandoned his plan of coming immediately to north China.

BOARD IS EXPECTED TO UPHOLD SUTTON AGAINST CHARGES

Lowman and Mathews Say Complaint Will Be Filed Despite Informal Poll Indication.

Despite the fact that an informal poll of the Atlanta board of education showed it will not support charges of insubordination which are slated to be filed this afternoon against Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, George S. Lowman, who will join W. W. Matthews in the move, yesterday announced they will be offered anyway.

"We will present the charges and ask the board of reprimand the superintendent for disseminating propaganda which was false and because the action was an affront not only to the committee but to every member of the board of education," Lowman said.

"There has been some intimation that I have a personal ax to grind in this matter, that I am unfriendly to Mr. Sutton. I want the public to know that I have a personal ax to grind. I am grinding for the taxpayers of Atlanta and for all those teachers who have come into the system and who need salary adjustments in order to maintain a decent standard of living. Those are my personal views.

Some Departments "Unnecessary."

"I also feel that there are several departments, which may be called educational adjuncts, which are unnecessary at this time of financial stress. They could be eliminated in this emergency.

"I shall join Mr. Matthews in his resolution against the superintendent, and we plan to present it even if it gets only our own votes. This is an important matter. In the final analysis, it comes down to whether the school board shall run the schools of Atlanta or whether the board is to be dominated by the superintendent."

667 ARE LICENSED FOR SALE OF BEER

State Revenue Says 'Nice Response' Received From Cities and Counties.

Six hundred and sixty-seven beer licenses had been sold through yesterday by the state revenue commission, R. E. Matheson, in charge of collection of the license taxes, said.

Matheson said his office was getting "a nice response" from letters mailed out Friday asking governing bodies of all Georgia counties and municipalities to inform the commission what steps they had taken toward authorizing beer permits.

The state cannot issue beer licenses unless sales are legalized in the governmental subdivision in which the applicant resides, and Matheson said that it was necessary for the commission to know the status in each county and city.

Of the licenses issued to date, 650 have been to retailers, 16 to wholesalers and one to a brewer.

Most of the applicants, Matheson said, naturally are from the larger cities of the state. However, Savannah, second largest Georgia city, is running far behind Atlanta, Augusta, Macon and Columbus in this respect. The commissioner attributed this to the fact that until this week no representative of his office had been in Savannah to see that all dealers were licensed.

Annual beer license fees are $1,000 for brewers, $500 for wholesalers and $10 for retailers. Since the licenses are in effect only until December 31, however, the scale when sales first began last month were on the basis of eight months, of $666.67, $333.34 and $6.67, respectively.

Beginning on June 1, the licenses cost $583.33, $219.67 and $5.84, respectively, and on July 1, they will drop to $500, $250 and $5. If the applicants have been selling beer since May, the rates of that month apply.

FARM BELT G. O. P TO SEEK '36 AID FROM DEMOCRATS

'Grass Roots' Convention Sees 'Defense of Constitution' as Basis for Bid for Support.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 10.—(AP)—Seven thousand republicans gathered from 10 farm belt states in the opening session of their "grass roots convention"—today cheered bids for democratic support for a 1936 campaign based on "defense of the constitution."

A "declaration of grievances" against the Roosevelt administration, drafted by the resolutions committee of the convention, listed 18 charges against the party in power.

First was the declaration that, instead of reducing the cost of government by 25 per cent, the administration was "indulged in the most profligate waste of the people's savings."

As an "indictment" against the democrats, the first section of the report was approved by the resolutions committee tonight. The second section, described as the "grass rooters'" constructive program, will be completed tomorrow, it was announced.

Holding that criticism is the duty of the minority party, the long list of charges closed with the assertion that after the supreme court's NRA decision:

"President Roosevelt revealed his desire for centralized power and his distaste for the constitution by pointing to absolute powers of other governments and demanding that they be granted to the federal government."

John D. M. Hamilton, of Topeka, Kan., republican national committeeman of that state, was chosen permanent chairman of the conference.

The flag-draped coliseum at the state fair grounds rang with applause when rally orators turned aside suggestions for formation of a new party and instead invited all anti-new Deal elements—democratic as well as

DYNAMITE BLAST ROCKS NORTH SIDE

Attempt To Wreck Dairy Foiled by Misplacement of Explosive.

An explosion which rocked north east Atlanta narrowly missed destroying the new Southern Dairies Company plant at Glen Iris drive and North avenue at 11 o'clock last night.

Police said six sticks of dynamite placed under a wall of the four-story building tore a great hole in the ground but only shook a few bricks loose. The damage was small.

The blast woke Atlantans for miles around and hundreds of telephone calls were made to the police and The Constitution by disturbed residents.

George R. Heine, president of Southern Dairies said last night he had no idea who could have done such a thing. He asserted his company had had no labor troubles nor had it received threats of any kind. No employes have been discharged and the company has been involved in no price war, he declared.

Police were nearly an hour in locating the scene of the explosion. Patrolmen Ira McDavid and Tom Avery made the report shortly before midnight.

They said the six sticks of dynamite had blasted away dirt around the base of the building, which is under construction. The walls have been completed and work is now being done on the interior.

Officers said the explosive was misplaced, or otherwise the building would have been wrecked. The dynamite made a hole five feet wide and four feet deep.

Police reported seeing two suspicious looking men near the plant Sunday night but no one could be found last night who had seen persons in the vicinity. No nightwatchman was on duty.

President Heine refused to estimate the cost of the new building. He went to the scene after being informed of the blast by police.

Senators Bring Messages of Hope To Graduates of Tech and Emory

Senator George at Tech and Senator Russell at Emory Tell Classes Spirit of America Will Survive Depression and "Cure-All" Charlatans.

The dual system of government set up by the constitution must be maintained for the ultimate preservation of the nation, Senator Walter F. George told graduates of Georgia Tech at their commencement exercises in the Fox theater yesterday morning.

Speaking before the more than 300 graduates and their guests, the senior senator from Georgia said "the decision of the court cancelling the NRA calls for calm acceptance by the president, the congress and the people; for recurrence to the early declaration of the president that he stood ready to abandon any unsuccessful experiment or attempt to find the answer to our social and economic difficulties."

The senator's speech preceded the conferring of degrees and certificates by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, at the exercises marking the end of the academic year at

Warning against public cure-alls, quack remedies and utopian promises that are impossible of fulfillment, Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., yesterday told the 266 graduates of Emory University at their commencement exercises American democracy will not be destroyed by "recognizing the new burdens of modern-day society."

Attacking critics of the national administration program for relief of the unemployed and distressed, the junior senator from Georgia said "if we had held to the narrow opinion of some as to the proper concept of American government, the only liberty these people would have enjoyed would have been the right to starve undisturbed by the national government."

The exercises, held in the Glenn Memorial church on the university campus, had as a feature the award of honorary degrees to Bishop Warren

PLAN WITH TEETH EVOLVED FOR NRA

Roosevelt Aid to Offer Bill To Swap Anti-Trust Law for Labor Pacts.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—Senate opposition to the extension of a skeletonized NRA virtually evaporated today when administration leaders agreed on a plan to restore the anti-trust laws to full vigor but permit businessmen to make voluntary agreements governing labor relations and trade practices.

Under the new plan, the anti-trust laws would be suspended only to permit voluntary agreements between businessmen covering collective bargaining, minimum wages, maximum hours, child labor and trade practices already held unfair by law.

Rising senate opposition to the house-approved administration plan for extending all present anti-trust law exemptions forced the compromise. Administration leaders predicted that the new plan would get quick approval in the senate tomorrow.

The plan was mapped at an unofficial meeting of the senate finance committee attended by Donald R. Richberg, retiring chairman of the National Recovery Board, and Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, leading senate critic of NRA.

Though other senate foes of the recovery law indicated they might agree to the compromise plan, Borah quickly served notice that he was not satisfied. He intimated he would carry to the floor a battle to restore the anti-trust laws to full vigor.

New Plan Outline.

Under the new plan, industry could obtain exemptions from the anti-trust laws for voluntary agreements "putting into effect the requirements of Section 7 (A) (collective bargaining) including minimum wages, maximum hours and prohibition of child labor" and "prohibiting unfair competitive practices which offend against existing law or which constitute unfair methods of competition under the federal trade commission act, as amended.

Harrison rushed from the executive conference to the senate floor to try to put the program through immediately, but he found so many senators gone for the day that he had to put it off until tomorrow.

He entered a motion, however, to add his program to the "stop-gap" NRA legislation passed by the house last Friday.

Under the house resolution NRA would have been extended until April 1, next year, without change in the provision for exemptions under the anti-trust laws.

NRA Foes Gird.

When this proposal reached the senate today, determined opposition was forming among the NRA foes. Harrison therefore delayed calling up

CHIEF ABANDONS WINE TEST PLANS

Sturdivant, Dealers Agree That Issue Fully Decided by Supreme Court.

If Georgia's new wine law is tested, state officials will have to do it. The city's plans for a test case, involving the arrest of some Atlanta wine dealer, were abandoned yesterday after the folly of testing the law had become apparent.

Under a ruling by Attorney-General Yeomans, the sale of wine in Georgia is restricted to products made in the state of Georgia grapes or fruits. The United States supreme court has ruled repeatedly that one state cannot bar the products of another.

Georgia could bar "foreign" wines as long ~~as all~~ wine was illegal. However, by legalizing Georgia-made wine, it has opened the state to wines from California and other commonwealths, it is generally agreed.

Chief T. O. Sturdivant at first planned to arrest some Atlanta wine dealer, thus providing a test case for the Georgia supreme court to decide. Such a test case would cost hundreds of dollars in attorney's and court fees, and in consequence the wine dealers, fully convinced that the portion of the law barring "foreign" wine is at variance with numerous supreme court rulings, declined to volunteer.

"The section of the state law barring wines made in other states has been so clearly held a violation of the interstate commerce act that we know we are operating within the law when we sell such wines," one dealer told Chief Sturdivant. "Consequently, I do not feel that any of us should be called upon to pay the costs of an expensive test case merely to prove that the attorney-general is wrong."

Chief Sturdivant, himself convinced that importation of wine is legal, at first planned the test case to obtain an early ruling and thus clarify the situation. After listening to the various wine dealers, however, he came to the conclusion that if Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder, or the attorney-general want the law tested, they should arrange the test themselves.

"At first I believed that an early test of the wine law was desirable," the chief of police said, "but talk with some of the wine dealers, all of them reputable businessmen, convinced me that it would be unfair to ask them to shoulder the burden of a test case when the law is, after all, so clearly defined.

"If the state wants this law tested, they should provide the test case and I intend to leave the matter in the hands of state officials, where it belongs."

FRAUD WARRANTS FILED TO HURRY COUPLE'S RETURN

GALLOWS LOOMING FOR MAN AND WIFE

House Where Child Was Imprisoned in Cupboard Found; Neighbors Identify Suspects' Pictures.

SALT LAKE CITY, June 10.—(AP) The federal government, arch foe of the kidnap racket, worked swiflty tonight toward a cleanup of the George Weyerhaeuser abduction case, but gave evidence it considers its roundup of suspects far from complete.

In a day that saw the discovery of the house in Spokane, Wash., where the 9-year-old heir to a lumber empire was held until his eight-day captivity was ended by payment of a $200,000 ransom, federal warrants charging mail fraud conspiracy were issued against the two suspects under arrest and a third who is a fugitive. Warrants were asked, but refused, for "John Doe and divers and sundry other persons."

The charges, filed with United States Commissioner H. C. Fitch at Tacoma, home of the Weyerhaeusers, named Harmon M. Waley, 24-year-old strapping ex-convict, and his blonde wife, Margaret, 19, both under arrest here, and William Mahan, paroled 32-year-old robber, hunted in Montana after his escape last night from Butte police.

Legal Device.

Mahan also was charged with mailing an extortion letter, stamping him as the man suspected of posting the ransom note to George's wealthy parents.

The charges were regarded mainly as a device to facilitate removal of the suspects to Washington state, where death by hanging is provided for convicted kidnapers, rather than an intent to try them in federal court. The state law is even more stringent than the federal "Lindbergh law," which was not invoked.

John S. Boyden, assistant United States district attorney here, said it would be necessary to bring the defendants into federal court here before they are removed to Tacoma, thus giving the inference they would not be started westward at least until tomorrow.

In refusing to issue warrants for the additional suspects at Tacoma, Commissioner Fitch said they should be specifically named.

J. Charles Dennis, federal district attorney for Washington, said at San Francisco he would strongly recommend trial in state courts so they might receive "the severest penalty possible."

One of the fugitives still being sought was said to be Mahan's "girl friend." The other unnamed persons were not believed to have been mentioned by the Waleys in reputed admissions made under unrelenting questioning today.

Gang's Lair Found.

The house in which the Weyerhaeuser boy was held prisoner was found in Spokane, Wash., today in the center of a quiet, South Hill residential district.

With its gables and the cupboard in which George was locked at night, just as he described it when he was released near Issaquah, Wash., early on the morning of June 1, the house stands dirty and ill-kept, and to pass-

Take-Off of Clipper Is Again Postponed

ALAMEDA, Cal., June 10.—(AP)—Storm conditions over the Pacific, preventing desired observations, caused postponement tonight for at least 18 hours in the projected 4,000-mile flight to Midway island of the giant American clipper.

A take-off this afternoon previously had been scheduled with Honolulu the first stopping point. Should conditions clear within 18 to 24 hours, the long hop will get under way.

Scientists Evolve New Pain Killer Which Cures Neuritis, Diabetes

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 10.—(AP)—A new pain killer, pure vitamin B, made into crystals which give wholesale relief from neuritis, was announced to the American Medical Association today in its scientific exhibit.

These crystals are a recent new product of science and so potent that one the size of a pinhead is equal to 100 cakes of yeast in vitamin B effect.

A pinhead, or less, per day is the dose of this pure vitamin which cured or relieved 90 per cent out of 100 cases of neuritis, the first human beings to receive this new vitamin treatment.

The same tiny dose of pure vitamin also improved some cases of human diabetes.

New Understanding.

The neuritis and diabetes results indicate that the feat of making the pure vitamin has opened the way to a new understanding and better treatment of a variety of major ills.

The vitamin exhibit was made by M. G. Vorhaus, M. D., who did the medical work, R. R. Williams, D. S. C., of Columbia University, who produced the pure crystalline vitamin B and R. E. Waterman, D. S., and Sidney Burkowitz, M. D. All are from New York city.

B is known as the nerve vitamin, whose lack causes beri beri. But that

RayonFrom Gum Trees Developed by Dr Herty

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 10.—(AP)—Rayon from tupelo gum, or any other gum tree, is the latest achievement of Dr. Charles H. Herty and the Savannah pulp and paper laboratory.

Dr. Herty today was able to exhibit some beautiful samples of rayon which had just been transformed into fine quality thread from pulp obtained from tupelo, the first, as far as he knows, ever to be made from this type of wood.

This rayon production is the culmination of experiments he and Royal H. Rasch, in charge of the rayon department, began two weeks ago.

The pulp and paper laboratory has conducted systematic work on all of the southern gum trees to determine their value in the paper and rayon industries, and Dr. Herty discovered that all of the various gums are exactly alike. The fiber of all are the same, and is just about half the length of pine fiber.

Dr. Herty says the gums will have no value in the newsprint field, but they have been discovered to be advantageous for use in the manufacture of book paper.

Make HAPPINESS a Habit

Wouldn't you like to step up the amount of enjoyment you get from life? The knack of keeping fit is largely a matter of regular habits. Your happiness may be hampered by common constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in your meals.

Your grocer has a natural cereal food which corrects this condition. Kellogg's All-Bran, eaten regularly, supplies generous "bulk." Also vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in All-Bran is gentle—and safe for normal individuals. More effective than the "bulk" in leafy vegetables, as it does not break down within the body.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Tech. Dr. Brittain also made second annual award of a bronze plaque to "the alumnus who has done the most for Georgia Tech during the year" to Ferd M. Kaufman, Atlantan, of the class of 1894. The award this year was made for assistance in obtaining construction of the naval armory. Dr. Brittain said Mr. Kaufman provided funds to match those of the federal government and required by the government before construction was permitted. The first annual award was also won by an Atlantan, L. W. "Chip" Robert.

Tech Athletics Supporter.

The award was not alone for Mr. Kaufman's aid in obtaining the naval armory, since he has been known for years in movements designed to improve Georgia Tech. He had been particularly a supporter of the Tech athletic teams, and can generally be found wherever a Tech football team is playing.

Following the commencement exercises Senator George was guest with Clark Howell Sr., James R. Gray, Herbert Porter and Dr. Louie D. Newton at a luncheon at the home of Dr. Brittain.

Senator George told his audience "the final test of the New Deal administration will come in the second term of Franklin D. Roosevelt, when the president and congress will be called upon to face the task of solving some of the problems which have either arisen or have been definitely advanced during the last two years.

Where Liberty Rests.

He said the liberty of the citizen rests at last upon local self-government and "upon local institutions administered by local authority, responsive and responsible to local opinion. The decision of the court does not call for amending the constitution or for the surrender of the reserved powers of states over the intimate personal, business and social affairs of the people."

The recent verdict of the supreme court, Senator Georgia said, "makes clear the duty of congress, despite criticism from any quarter to anticipate an adverse decision of the supreme court on any admittedly doubtful enactment and to make provision against such adverse decision within constitutional limit and by constitutional method . . . recent decisions of the court also call for the full assumption by congress of its constitutional responsibility for the consideration of legislative proposals. Nothing but disaster lies ahead if those who well know the political theories of history and are yet lacking in the vital sense of the realities of life are permitted to shatter the American system of government and to attempt to remold it in accordance with their desires. It is yet our hope that these theorists, many of whom have encamped in Washington, will have their day and pass away."

Roosevelt's Patriotism.

That President Roosevelt will make "no appeal for the surrender of any of the essential rights reserved to the states or to the people" nor remotely contemplate such appeal is the conviction of Senator George, who added he felt "his superb powers of leadership find their strength in the loftiest patriotism and devotion to the basic principles of our system of government. Progress he seeks, and the American people also, but true progress leaves monuments, not ruins, in its wake. Looking at the picture as a whole, one may acknowledge full sympathy with the basic philosophy of the New Deal, nothwithstanding his suspicions of some of its practices and his wholesome distrust of many of the theorists who encumber and embarrass it. . . . I am speaking from a definite conviction that a new social order has arisen in which an acute sense of social responsibility is recognized.

"I am speaking from an equally strong conviction that the necessity for amending the constitution has not arisen; that the new social order can find full and adequate expression consistent with the liberty of the citizen within the limits of our constitutional system . . . recovery will come as the depression came, leaving most of us unable to analyze or understand it.

"The spirit of a free people has survived. A political administration of energy and action has immeasurably aided. These United States are on their way. Our civilization has not spent itself and our industrial, commercial and financial system has not broken down into fascism or communism. The sense of social responsibility contributed by the New Deal administration is permanent and legislation responsive to it and in harmony with the letter and spirit of our constitutional system will endure."

RUSSELL SPEAKS TO EMORY'S GRADS

A. Candler, degree of doctor of human letters; Harmon W. Caldwell, president-elect of the University of Georgia, degree of doctor of laws, and Rev. Lester Rumble, pastor of the First Methodist church of Athens, Ga., the degree of doctor of divinity.

Degrees with special honors were awarded by Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of the university, to eight graduates. Robert Waddell Barnes Jr., received special honors in Greek and the Reppard Greek medal. William Orson Beecher, special honors in French and the Medaille Loridans. Special honors in mathematics went to Marvin B. Sledd; William E. Goodyear, political science; J. H. Hollister, chemistry; Nelson T. Spratt Jr., biology; J. G. Weigle, mathematics and J. P. Woodruff, engineering.

The Rivers accounting medal was awarded to Max Rittenbaum; the French Embassy medals to Mildred Streeter and William Harvin Hardy Jr.; the freshman-sophomore declamation medal to Jack Richard McMichael; the Carl Schurz Memorial foundation prize for excellence in German to Henry King Stanford, and the McCord Latin medal to William Franklin Dukes Jr.

Elected To P. B. K.

Students elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary fraternity, were: Robert Boynton Ansley, Lewis W. Beck, William Orson Beecher, William Evans Goodyear, William Marvin Hardy Jr., John Hendricks Hollister, Sterling Hunt Jernigan, William Fletcher Quillian Jr., Marvin Bank Sledd, Nelson Tracy Spratt Jr., James McDuffie Tolbert, Buckner Beasley Trawick and James Frederick Wilson.

Numbered among the graduates this year was the younger brother of Senator Russell, Alexander Brevard Russell, of Winder, Ga., who received the degree of doctor of medicine.

Responsibility Transferred.

Senator Russell told the graduates that social responsibility would not end for the nation because of the supreme court's decision in the NRA case. The effect of the decision, he said, "is only to transfer responsibility. In this case it has been transferred from the government to employers and labor."

In assailing critics of the administration, he charged that "any voice which creates cleavages or engenders bitter hatreds and promotes class strife, whether it be the voice of the privileged or the underprivileged, the possessor of great wealth or a victim of poverty, is a menace to the security of our government and works against the patriotic and unselfish service of those who are trying to effect equity.

"The capitalistic and profit systems in the United States are not endangered in the slightest unless those who benefit most thereby determine to destroy it through their blindness and stubborness. The constitution of the United States is not in danger of destruction and events of the past few days have shown it is not even elastic enough to be stretched."

SCIENTISTS EVOLVE NEW PAIN KILLER

it could cure neuritis, the sharp unending pains in the back, arms or legs, or other parts of the body due to inflamation of nerve trunks was unknown. Physicians never had enough of it to try out before.

It would take bushels of food to get the amount of vitamin B which is now discovered to be effective for quick relief of many cases of neuritis. The former treatments have centered on removing infected teeth or tonsils which were considered the source of the nerve inflammation.

Results.

Dr. Vorhaus gave the vitamin crystals to 100 persons with neuritis, with all varieties indiscriminately.

Of these 44 were entirely freed of pain. Eleven of the 44 had neuritis in the arm or leg, and 33 had it generalized over the body.

Another group of 48 were improved and eight of the 100 failed to get any relief.

But where cure or relief succeeded it was apparently directly due to the vitamin because 58 per cent of these patients had been suffering from periods of three months to five years.

The results indicate that this new vitamin acts on neuritis probably the same as iron used to relieve anemia.

The vitamin experiment shows there are probably two kinds of neuritis, a small class due to deficiency of vitamin B. A large group due to some secondary cause in which the vitamin helps to restore the nerve to normal, although it may not directly remove the original cause.

Deficiency Reasons.

The work indicated that deficiency in vitamin B may be more frequent than has been believed. This deficiency was ascribed at the exhibit as due possibly to the American habit of eating fine starches such as white bread, white flour and white rice.

The crystalline vitamin B was announced as 1,600 times more active than any other vitamin B preparation. It is not commercial, Dr. Williams extracts it from rice hulls by laboratory methods. Tons of hulls yield only a little vitamin so that the present cost is about $200 a gram.

Purifying this vitamin has been a life hobby with Dr. Williams. He has done it mostly after regular working hours. The depression helped when it cut his regular job to four days a week, leaving him the other three, including some Sundays to purify vitamin B.

Dr. Vorhaus reported the diabetic study to the American Gastro Enteriological Association, which is meeting jointly with the medical association.

Diabetes Results.

Eleven cases of diabetes have been given the pure vitamin B. Six of these showed greater ability to use sugar after taking the vitamin crystals by mouth in a little water.

Five showed no results.

Dr. Vorhaus said this raises a question whether there may be some cases called diabetes that are actually vitamin B deficiency. This would mean that diabetes is not one but a group of diseases. Treatments would differ according to type.

August J. Pacini, Chicago chemist, traced to the little known vitamin E a variety of ills, including possible mental troubles. He talked to the American Association of Medical Milk Commissioners.

E is the reproduction vitamin, found richly in wheat germ oil, and in small amounts in lettuce and some other vegetables.

He said there is reason to believe that 6 to 8 per cent of human sterility can be accounted for by lack of enough vitamin E. He cited authorities to show it might be a factor in muscular weakness and in infantile paralysis.

If its lack impairs nervous tissue, he held that this would sooner or later involve the brain and mental functions.

He said it intensified femininity in women and maleness in men, and that its lack may account for waning of feminine personality traits on one hand and musculine ones on the other.

BOARD EXPECTED TO UPHOLD SUTTON AGAINST CHARGES

last week when the salary adjustment and personnel committee of the board, headed by Matthews, decided to reestablish automatic increments, which were abandoned in 1931 as an economy measure.

Under the committee recommendation as at first outlined, $140,000 would have been redistributed, so that those making larger salaries would be cut more and those in the lower brackets raised.

A circular was distributed with salary checks on about June 5, calling attention to teachers to the alleged fact that the proposal would mean a cut of about 34 per cent for those in the higher brackets. Matthews' committee had figured on a cut of about 27 per cent. It was to this circular that Matthews and Lowman have taken exception.

Larger Distribution Abandoned.

A meeting of the committee was held Saturday, and Matthews' committee decided to abandon the larger distribution, but to urge reinstatement of one automatic increase effective as of June 1, and a second as of September 1. The two increases would total $66,000 for the remainder of the year, according to estimates.

The committee proposes that the board shall instruct Sutton to cut expenses in other departments to absorb the $66,000 and make it available for salaries. It also proposes that a third increment be added in the 1936 school board budget.

Virtually all board members agreed yesterday that one increment can be added, but a fight over the others is anticipated because of the fact that further curtailments of expenditures mean elimination of various departments, which the school administration has opposed consistently.

Therrell Hits Recommendations.

D. M. Therrell, first vice president of the board and staunch Sutton supporter, yesterday issued the following statement relative to the recommendations of Matthews' committee:

"1. Career teachers are the class that would suffer.

"2. White elementary women teachers would bear the brunt of the cut.

"3. White teachers now making $101.33, $109.67, $118, $126.33, $134.67, $147.17 cut to $100.

"4. 126 white teachers now making $147.17 with many years' experience would get $100.08, or eight cents a month more than a teacher who has been here but one year, or $7.41 more per month than a beginning elementary teacher. Then 576 teachers would be getting $100 or less

"5. The inexperienced cadet in junior high school would get $100, the same as those who have served long enough to reach salaries of $131 and $143.50, and those now getting $156 will get $106.08, or $6.08 a month more than the inexperienced cadet.

"6. 322 white elementary teachers, or 48 per cent, and 254 in high school would be reduced to $100 a month—regardless of experience and training.

"7. One-third of the colored teachers would get no cut.

"8. 132 negroes would get an increase by virtue of removing the present cut which means an increased cut on white elementary teachers, so white teachers are paying for this raise.

"9. 816 white teachers would be cut 32 per cent and only 10 negroes.

"10. Contrast: 29.6 per cent average cut for whites with an average cut for negroes of 16.3 per cent. In line with salaries over the state, the salary schedule for negro teachers is less than that of the white teachers. The effect of this proposed schedule would be to place 322 white teachers on the same salary as 127 negroes."

Not Based on Facts.

"Therrell's statement is a fabrication and is not based on the facts and figures of the proposed salary readjustment," Matthews declared last night. "It is extremely unfortunate that he has injected the racial issue in the readjustment.

"Negro teachers now get 40 per cent of what white teachers are paid and they teach double sessions, while no white teacher has this added burden.

"In the proposal the colored teachers will get a $5 a month raise. At present the salary schedule for elementary negro teachers is from $60 to $90, while the lowest a white teacher is paid is $93. The top now is $147.50 per month, and under the increment they can reach $184.50 monthly.

"Therrell just don't know the figures," Matthews asserted.

"The committee would like to show the negro teachers as much consideration as possible," he said.

"These salary increments should be put into effect, one in June, another in September," said Matthews. "We should save in other departments.

"I shall insist at the board meeting that the school commission take action against Willis A. Sutton for insubordination," Matthews added.

The textbook committee will recommend that the Atlanta schools use the state-adopted list for basal subjects in the elementary schools. This move, according to Arthur Scott, chairman of the committee, will mean an annual saving of thousands of dollars.

Ed S. Cook, chairman of a special policy making committee of the board, will not file a report today.

stated that if Linder desired to retain the present postal rating he should accompany his statement with copies of an issue of the Bulletin prepared in harmony with requirements of the law, together with written assurance that all future issues of the publication will measure up to the standards of the postoffice department.

Commissioner Linder has, in recent issues of the Market Bulletin, discussed the democratic platform of 1932, pointing out that the Roosevelt administration had carried out the principal planks in the platforms of the socialist and republican parties. In another issue he suggested that "Georgia still has the right to secede from the Union."

"When I wrote an article on the three party platforms the Washington authorities called me down and I haven't written anything like that since," Commissioner Linder said.

"Interest Is in Farmers."

"The Market Bulletin is intended for the benefit of Georgia farmers, but I can't talk about corn, cotton or wheat in it without talking about the AAA, and if I do that I'm treading on Secretary Wallace's toes. My particular interest is in the farmers of Georgia. I am not particularly interested in Secretary Wallace and his seed corn, but I am interested in the farmers of Georgia.

"I notice in last week's issue of the marketing news service of the United States Department of Agriculture that 1,250,000 bushels of corn has reached the United States from Argentina and 7,000,000 bushels more were afloat on their way to United States ports. Mr. Wallace should let the Market Bulletin alone and devote all his time to that firm of his selling seed corn. Then we wouldn't have to import corn from Argentina."

Postmaster Livingston declined to discuss the charges made by Linder.

"I informed the commissioner of agriculture that he would have to comply with the postal law of 1900 or lose his second-class postage rating," he said. "If he doesn't choose to comply with Mr. Eilenberger's letter that is his lookout."

Hits at Wallace.

"The bulletin is showing up the activities of the secretary of agriculture," declared Talmadge, who made his statement yesterday in Macon, where he attended the dedication of the W. L. Stribling memorial bridge.

"The people ought to know what their secretary of agriculture is doing.

"These issues are showing how the AAA in Washington is curbing production of crops at home and importing those same products from other countries," he continued. He said that was "all right."

"The Bulletin serves a good purpose to the farmers and to the people of the state generally. I hope it will not be denied the cheaper rates," asserted the governor.

He charged that the postoffice department, in ordering Linder to submit copies of the publication and a plea for the second-class privilege, is throttling free speech.

YOUNG REDS TOLD TO FALL IN LOVE

Bolsheviks Reverse Stand, Say Fireside Foundation of Nation.

MOSCOW, June 10.—(AP)—The Russian public learned through the columns of the young communist newspaper, Comsomol Pravda, today that love has come to play an important role in bolshevik life and must, hereafter, be considered the foundation of the soviet social structure.

The former communist theory that the family is of diminishing importance has been abandoned, as evidenced by a series of pronouncements and official measures in recent months intended to strengthen fireside influences.

"Never before could man love as freely, fully, and richly as now," said Comsomol Pravda in declaring that equality of sexes has been established, adding that there were no other influences but love to lead to marriage in socialist Russia.

"Love is the whole foundation of the socialist family," said Comsomol Pravda. "Without it, that family cannot exist. Young communists must be capable of this noble feeling.

"Those who are not are selfish and parasites. We demand that public opinion persecute them and hold them up to contempt."

WOMEN'S FEDERATION ELECTS OKLAHOMAN

Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson Will Be First to Serve 3-Year Term.

DETROIT, June 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla., was elected president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs at the triennial convention tonight, defeating Dr. Josephine L. Peirce, of Lima, Ohio. The vote was 846 to 538.

Mrs. Lawson succeeds Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole.

For the first time, a president was elected for a three-year term, with the change from biennial to triennial terms at this convention.

Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, of Oregon, was chosen first vice president. Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, of Chicago, was elected second vice president. There was no election in the race for recording secretary. A run-off will be conducted tomorrow to settle that office.

Mrs. La Fell Dickinson, of New Hampshire, was elected treasurer without opposition.

Mrs. Lawson, a paternal descendant of the Scotch Argyle Campbells, who settled in Virginia, has been active in club work in Oklahoma since 1903, when she organized the first women's club at Nowata. She has served in the general federation since 1928, two terms as second vice president and for the last three years as first vice president.

The election results came as the highlight of a convention day marked by a sharp attack on Senator Huey P. Long and Father Charles E. Coughlin by Miss Avis Long, of St. Louis, organizer of a peace movement for the federation.

6 CAROLINA PRISONERS ATTACK GUARD, ESCAPE

RALEIGH, N. C., June 10.—(AP)—Six long-term prisoners at the Caledonia prison farm in Halifax county knocked a guard in the head today and escaped.

Carl Williams, alias Tom Jackeon, who was in prison for 12 to 15 years for robbery in Northampton county, was caught a short time after he got away.

The others escaping were: John Henry Lowder, given five to seven years in Mecklenburg; Paul Spencer, 15 years for second degree murder in Guilford; Orice Abernathy, three to five years in Mecklenburg; Creed Woody, 20 to 30 years for second degree murder in Madison, and A. W. Petit, 45 years for bank and highway robbery in Duplin.

FDR'S HOME IN GEORGIA DISPLAYED BY YAARAB

Shriners, at Washington, To 'Show What State Thinks of Noble Roosevelt.'

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—The uniformed Nobles of Atlanta's Yaarab Temple detrained in mirthful Washington today bearing huge paintings of President Roosevelt's Georgia home and the Warm Springs resort.

"We're going to show Washington what Georgia thinks of Noble Roosevelt," said Potentate Hiram R. Romans, of Yaarab.

The Roosevelt paintings will be held high before the temple's near 200 uniformed Nobles in the mammoth parade tomorrow, as the Yaarab band blares forth with snappy southern tunes.

Atlanta boasted of the imperial marshal of the shrine, Tom C. Law, who, by customary progression of officers, will become the imperial potentate in 1942. Yaarab already is seeking the national convention for Atlanta that year.

His Eighteenth Convention.

Henry Heinz, vice president of the Citizens & Southern Bank of Atlanta, and past potentate of Yaarab, was here attending his eighteenth consecutive shrine convention.

The Atlanta Temple band went to the airport late this afternoon to meet its director, A. J. Garing, who was delayed in Atlanta by the Georgia Tech commencement exercises. Garing also directs the Tech band.

Alee, of Savannah, and Al Sihah, of Macon, did not bring uniformed bodies. Alee was represented by Potentate Anton F. Solms, Recorder Robert E. Banks, George W. Hunt, Charlie Burge and Morris Slotin. From Al Sihah came Potentate Usher T. Winslett Brooks Georghegan and William J. Stewart.

Thousands of Shriners marched into the nation's capital today, bringing a band-playing, fezz-topped carnival spirit into a city whose pulse rarely quickens to displays of pomp and dignity.

That they landed in the middle of a short-lived taxicab strike did not matter to the Shriners. Train after train unloaded at Union station its host of red fezzes. Member after member of the ancient, Arabic order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, marched in knee-breeched, colorful splendor down Pennsylvania avenue.

The taxicab strike which met them at the gates resulted from an "insult" Washington taxicab drivers said had been given them in a warning that had been broadcast to delegates to watch out for a hike in fares.

In protest to what they said was the insulting tone of the warning several hundred drivers refused to wheel their cars through the convention traffic. They added, too, that they did not like the donation by General Motors of 350 free automobiles to be used by the Shriners.

Negotiations that were undertaken to get them to operate again included an apology from William A. Roberts, people's counsel for the District of Columbia, for his warning. Shortly thereafter the utilities commission granted a request by the taxicab drivers for permission for a slight increase in rates.

The strike was settled in the late afternoon. A few fights, fender bumping and 17 arrests had been the chief consequences of the strike. Most of the cabs were kept off the streets during the morning, however, owners perferring not to take the chances of their being smashed.

For the Shriners, most of today was given over to the business of letting people know they were here. There were innumerable parades.

Imperial Potentate Dana S. Williams had an official reception at noon for the incoming delegates. The United States army put on a two-hour show for the visitors during the afternoon with various drills, wall scaling and music. A fight between Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight champion, and Frankie Klick, the junior lightweight champion, with Jack Dempsey as the referee, constituted the chief event of the evening show.

Officers Carry Liquor Aboard Motorcycles

Leo Nahlik and P. E. Edwards, motorcycle police, were somewhat abashed yesterday when they wheeled a cargo of liquor in shiny cans glittering through thin gunny sacks, through the city and pedestrians satirically inquired how much they were getting per gallon.

As the two policemen had approached a vacant lot at the corner of Ezzard and Cornelia streets a car ahead stopped, two men got out, saw the police and "scrammed." Suspicious, the policemen searched the vacant lot and found two sacks containing nine gallon cans of Georgia "cawn." Believing in direct action, they tied the sacks on the backs of their motors and carted them to the police station.

Atlanta Robber Is Foiled by Inkwell Hurler

SPECIAL SETTINGS ARRIVE FOR REVUE

Elaborate Stage Effects Secured for Annual Kiddie Show at Grand.

With the 30-odd acts of Atlanta's seventh annual Kiddie Revue rapidly attaining smoothness and perfection, mechanical and stage preparations are occupying the attention of Lionel Keene and Eddie Melniker, production directors of the show.

The revue, scheduled to open at Loew's Grand theater on Friday, will be held amid the most elaborate setting yet to be seen in Atlanta, according to reports.

"Because of our efforts to stage a better-than-average show, we have brought from New York and Chicago lighting and scenic effects which would do credit to many Broadway productions," said Lionel Keene, head of the production committee of the Atlanta Masonic Club, sponsors of the revue.

The Kiddie Revue is held for the Milk Fund of the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children and will be shown through June 20, as an added attraction at the Grand.

4 PERISH IN DESERT

Frenchmen Found Dead of Thirst in Sudan.

DAKAR, Africa, June 10.—(UP) The blazing Sudan desert claimed four more victims today when French colonial officials named Audrec, Cudier, Martin and Georgeault were found dead of thirst after attempting to reach an oasis on foot.

Their abandoned automobile, in which they had traveled more than 3,000 miles in 30 days, was found north of Khartoum. The party was crossing the widest section of the African desert from Dakar to Hafana when the car apparently broke down.

The men were pushing toward the Nile river when parched by thirst, they dropped dead one by one.

Recently a British man and his wife were found dead of thirst in the same section. Their gasoline had evaporated and in an attempt to reach aid they struck out on foot, only to perish, five miles from the car.

Mint Heavily Guarded As Shriners March By

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP) The thousands of Shriners who passed the treasury today may have wondered whether Uncle Sam trusts them.

They saw armed guardsmen with fixed bayonets stationed at all entrances to the building. That has been ordered for the duration of the Shrine convention.

But the visitors need not feel badly—that action is taken whenever a large number of persons come to the capital.

EASTMAN STUDIES $1 FLAT RAIL RATE

$3 Maximum on Any Line, Any Distance, Proposed for Passengers.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—A proposal for a flat fare of $1 on local passenger trains and of $3 on express trains for any distance on one railroad line is being studied by Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of transportation, and his corps of experts.

The plan was laid before the coordinator and Senator Wheeler, chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee, by John A. Hastings, of New York, a former state senator, who called attention to the profitable handling of first-class mail at a single rate.

PROPOSED NEW FARES MEAN MUCH TO ATLANTA.

Should the proposal for flat fares for passenger travel, at $3 for any distance on one line, go into effect, it would mean Atlantans could travel north as far as Washington for $3. The Southern railway runs to the national capital.

Going south the $3 fare would carry one as far as Jacksonville or New Orleans. Of course passengers starting their trip at New Orleans could ride to Washington for their $3. By taking a local from Washington to New York over the Pennsylvania it would cost only $4 to go to the bigger city.

On the Seaboard Air Line travelers from Atlanta could go as far as Richmond for $3, while the trip from Miami to Richmond could be made for the same price.

MRS. WILSON BROWN PASSES AT HOSPITAL

Three deaths have occurred in less than two months in the family of Mrs. John H. Owen and Mrs. Bertha Johnson Goette, Atlanta sisters.

The third was that of Mrs. Wilson Brown, sister of Mrs. Owen and Mrs. Goette. Mrs. Brown, the former Miss Edelle Johnson, died yesterday afternoon at a private hospital. She resided in San Antonio, Texas, but was here on a visit when she was taken ill a week ago.

Mrs. Owen's husband, John H. Owen, a merchant and a deputy sheriff here for many years, died during the latter part of March. Her son, E. P. Owen, a lawyer, died April 21 in Tucson, Ariz.

Mrs. Brown was born here but had lived in Louisiana and Texas for 20 years. In addition to her sisters she is survived by her husband.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at St. Anthony's church. The Rev. Father Harry F. Clark will officiate and interment will be in Oakland cemetery with Harry G. Poole in charge.

RAILROADS PROTEST LONG, SHORT HAUL LAW

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—F. H. Plainsted, freight traffic managed of the Southern Pacific Lines, Chicago, complained to a house Interstate Commerce subcommittee today that "the railroad is still being regulated as a monopoly; whereas it is now surrounded on every hand by competition."

He was testifying on a bill by Chairman Pettengill, democrat, Indiana, which the Indianan explains as a measure to allow rail and water carriers to "compete on terms of equality" by amendment of the fourth section of the interstate commerce act.

J. E. Tilford, chairman, Southern Freight Association, Atlanta, Ga., said there has never been a demand in the south by the water carriers for a rigid observance of the long and short-haul rule, but "to the contrary, they ask relief and believe it necessary in the public interest."

Tilford complained the long and short-haul rule "places rates in a straight-jacket and prevents the railroads from meeting competition at competitive points, except at the price of reducing rates from, to, and between intermediate points at which similar competition does not exist.

ESTATE OF $7,496,447 LEFT BY BENJ. J. DUKE

Mary Duke Biddle, Daughter, Is Principal Beneficiary in Will.

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—A net estate of $7,496,447 was left by Benjamin N. Duke, who died January 8, 1929, according to a transfer tax appraisal filed today.

Twenty-two charitable and religious institutions get bequests totaling $1,165,000, and the principal beneficiary is a daughter, Mary Duke Biddle, of 109 Fifth avenue, New York.

The bulk of the estate was in securities valued at $6,144,287.

Duke was a member of the family which made millions in the tobacco industry.

The Angier B. Duke Memorial, Inc., at Durham, N. C., was bequeathed $580,000. More than a score of institutional organizations in the Carolinas and Tennessee received bequests.

The widow, Mrs. Sarah P. Duke, of New York city, was left real estate and personal effects totaling $594,283, and in contemplation of death, it was also shown that she receives $63,121 in gifts.

Similarly, the daughter gets $100,000, and also the residuary share of $4.921,867.

Thirty-five personal beneficiaries receive bequests of more than $600,000.

A. J. Drexel Biddle Jr., a son-in-law, was bequeathed $20,000, and trust funds of $100,000 each were established for two grandsons, Angier B. Duke Jr. and Anthony Newton Duke, both of Westbury, on Long Island.

These legacies were left for friends: George C. Allen and John C. Thorn, $20,000 each; William R. Perkins, $30,000; Clinton W. Toms, William P. Few and Robert L. Flowers, $5,000 each.

A niece, Mary W. Stagg, of Durham, N. C., was bequeathed $10,000, and $5,000 each goes to the following: M. Florence Rowland, Durham; Maud Duke Stuart, New York city, and Lida Duke Angier, Durham, all cousins.

Two nieces, Mabel Duke Goodall and Lucy S. O'Brien, both of Durham, also get $5,000, and a cousin, Lily Duke, of Durham, receives $2,500.

The appraisal showed that Duke set up a trust fund at $1.042,500 for educational and charitable institutions, and another of $25,000 for the benefit of Davenport College.

SUIT FOR SEPARATION IS BEGUN BY GEORGIAN

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 10. (AP)—Captain Lucius Clay, United States army, of Washington, took the supreme court witness stand in behalf of his sister, Mrs. Evelyn Clay Everett, as trial began today in her separation suit against Roberts E. Everett, of Alger Court, Bronxville, Manhattan publicity director. The wife is a daughter of the late United States Senator A. S. Clay of Georgia.

Mrs. Everett charges her husband treated her so cruelly that her health broke and she was forced in 1933 to sign a separation agreement, giving her husband custody of their 16-year-old daughter, Helen, in return for $100 monthly support.

The Everetts were married in 1917.

DIVINE OF SNAKE FAME WOULD TAKE POISON

'Faith in God' Pitted Against Skeptical Physician by Revivalist.

ST. CHARLES, Va., June 10.—(AP) The Rev. George Hensley, who has been bitten by a copperhead and who has handled rattlesnakes without apparent permanent injury, has added "the most deadly poisons" to the list of things which he claims cannot hurt him because of his "faith in God."

His hand almost healed from the bite of the copperhead, the Holiness revivalist handled two more large rattlesnakes before a large congregation yesterday without being bitten before he fell into public argument with Dr. R. N. Graham, a physician, who attacked the genuineness of the exhibition.

Members of the congregation said that Hensley was curling the snakes about his neck and otherwise displaying them when Dr. Graham remarked that their teeth must have been pulled out. The preacner immediately challenged the doctor to examine them to ascertain whether they were "as vicious and normal" reptiles "as could be found."

The physician asked Hensley if he would have the same resistance to poison as to snake bites, and the evangelist replied:

"I certainly will. Bring in the most deadly poison known to the medical profession and I will take it."

"No, preacher, I don't want to kill you. I can giv you many poisons that will kill you instantly, but I don't want to kill you. I would not think of offering them to you."

STUDEBAKER

OF INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY!

THIS year, the specially built racing cars swept the boards in the Memorial Day race at the Indianapolis Speedway. Not a car produced by a stock manufacturer was able to last the 500 miles.

The great performance at Indianapolis is still Studebaker's. In 1932 and 1933, the last time Studebaker contested, cars entered by the Studebaker factory finished brilliantly. In 1933, seven of the first twelve winners were Studebaker powered. In 1932, the leading Studebaker broke all previous time records for the race.

Get that speedway stamina in your 1935 car. Get a Studebaker—a Champion. You can do so now for just a few dollars more than you have to pay for one of the very lowest priced cars.

Studebaker now offers you a big, beautifully styled 1935 Champion sedan—with steel reinforced by steel body—compound hydraulic brakes—a total of 21 distinctive features—for a delivered price almost as low as the lowest. Come in and go out for a convincing Studebaker trial drive.

THE BULLETIN ULTIMATUM

The notification of Commissioner Linder by the postoffice department that second-class postage privileges will be withdrawn from the Georgia Market Bulletin unless it ceases the publication of political propaganda with which recent issues have been filled, is not surprising since the publication of such matter in a Department of Agriculture publication is specifically prohibited by the law governing publications eligible for the second-class rate.

In the letter of Third Assistant Postmaster-General Eilenberger to Postmaster Livingston, of Atlanta, it is cited that the last three issues of the Bulletin "contain a considerable amount of matter not coming within the purview of the law," and revocation of the second-class mailing privilege is held in abeyance merely that Mr. Linder may have opportunity to conform to the law.

The commissioner's defiant statement that he will continue to discuss political subjects in the Bulletin and will "keep right on taking the Bulletin to the postoffice" is foolish and in line with his recent silly advocacy that Georgia secede from the Union because of his dissatisfaction with the policies of the national administration.

Not only does the political propaganda with which the Bulletin has been filled clearly violate the federal law, but to make matters worse it is in clear defiance of the strict instructions of the general assembly, which in making appropriations for the cost of the publication specified that it should be used only for the dissemination of information as to markets, of opportunities for trade between farmers, as to where labor could be found or where jobs were open for farm workers.

So determined was the general assembly that the Bulletin should be used for no other purpose that it further specified if any other class of matter should appear in it, there should be no further withdrawals from the fund appropriated for its maintenance.

The Bulletin was never intended for any other use than that outlined by the general assembly.

AFTER VOTES?

In years gone by when a northern republican congressman or senator felt the need of cinching the votes of colored residents of his district or state to strengthen his chances of re-election, he would introduce a bill specifically aimed to provide race equality for colored people in southern states. It would not change the status of the colored people of his own section, so he was safe from a slump of the white voters.

Something akin to the same political device, with slight deviation, happened recently when Representative Koppelmann, democrat from Connecticut, introduced a bill to penalize by fine any person or corporation in the District of Columbia denying equal accommodations, advantages and privileges to any person because of race, creed or color. The bill, designated as the civil rights law of the District of Columbia, brings within its scope hotels, restaurants, public libraries, apartment houses and amusement parks.

The bill, should it become a law, would not affect Connecticut, home of Koppelmann, so he is safe from condemnation by the white voters of his district; but Connecticut, like many others of the northern states, has a large number of colored voters, so if he needs a few hundred more votes in a coming election, he hopes to get them by this method.

But the colored race has no use for these so-called "friends," whose purpose is obviously selfish.

FEDERAL AGENTS WIN AGAIN

While the two confessed members of the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping gang caught in Salt Lake City were put under arrest by local police officers, chief credit goes to the agents of the federal Bureau of Investigation who swarmed into the city by air, highway and rail as soon as the first ransom note put in its appearance.

Under their direction a net was thrown around the city through which it would have been practically impossible for the kidnapers to escape and the trap laid so securely within the city limits that further effort to spend the ransom money meant inevitable capture.

The confidence of the "G-men" in their ability to track down kidnapers after their victims are released is accountable for the policy adopted by the Bureau of Investigation that its agents remain inactive while negotiations are going on between kidnap gangs and the families of their victims.

The task of running down the gangsters would be easier if the federal agents sought to trace kidnapers through seizure of the intermediaries to which ransoms were paid, but to do so would bring the imminent danger of another tragedy such as the death of the Lindbergh baby. Especially is this true since the enactment of laws placing the same penalty upon kidnaping as upon murder. Already faced with the possibility of execution, the desperate and heartless men who resort to this type of crime would not hesitate to take the life of their victim in order to increase the probability of escape.

Without the new powers given by congress to federal agents, enabling them to broaden their field of activities, the modern type of criminal and gangster could flaunt the efforts of state and local police forces. The odds are reversed when the G-men go into action.

Equally important in the reduction of crime, which during the period between 1920 and 1930 had reached proportions never before known in America, are the periodic roundups of criminals of all kinds now being staged by the representatives of every law enforcement agency of the federal government, these including the Alcohol Tax Unit, the Bureau of Narcotics, the secret service and the Department of Justice.

These agencies have been in every state and when a nation-wide assault on crime is staged, with the co-operation of local police forces, huge hauls are made in bootleggers, narcotic sellers, counterfeiters, automobile thieves and the other types of lesser criminals from whose ranks those who commit major crimes are usually graduated.

Organized crime now has organized opposition by local, state and national forces of law and order. There can be but one inevitable result—that crime will once more become sporadic in nature, much less common and far easier to check and control.

For this reassuring prospect, the country can chiefly thank the "G-men" and their less conspicuous but just as efficient associates in the other federal enforcement agencies.

In the quick capture of two of the Weyerhaeuser kidnapers they have once more proven that, like the famous Canadian mounties, they will "get their man."

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

"Both Sides of the Road."

Mr. Robert Lynd has endeared himself to me, and I imagine to a host of readers by writing a book with the above title. In that volume he takes himself most seriously when he deals with subjects which we are wont to describe as being of small importance. For instance he speaks of the gross selfishness of the non-smoker in these terms: "See how the non-smoker fumes if a smoker comes into a non-smoking compartment (of a railway train) and lights a cigar. Smokers welcome the presence of non-smokers in the theaters, but what an outcry there is from the non-smokers when the smokers are given the same liberty as themselves—to smoke or not to smoke in the theater, as they please. All that the smoker asks is equality. This the non-smoker is too selfish to concede, except under compulsion."

Admirably said! Those fellows, the non-smokers, I mean, lack something in their make-up which makes them potential enemies of humankind. That something is grace and tolerance and a sense of fairness.

Facial Disguise.

To hear an actor who is famous for his mastery of the art of make-up tell some of his secrets, and to see him at the same time apply his precepts in full view of the audience, is a joy which would not be likely to be missed by the kind of playgoer whose chief interest in the theater consists of seeing—or thinking he sees—"how it is done," and of peeping behind the scenes. Consequently that distinguished character actor, Signoret, is having a full house at the Theater des Deux Masques where he talks of facial disguise. He changes his own face into that of a dozen different personages by changing the wig and the grease-paint. Sometimes the changes were surprisingly small. A few lines, a few touches of white, and large spectacles instead of a pince-nez made the hectoring old man in one play into a very good-natured and demure old gent in the next. The principles are always the same, said the actor—pallor for melancholy and pink for fun. However, when it comes to realistic make-up, he said the golden rule is always to copy a face which you have seen in real life and not to invent.

Ah, the Gulls.

The town of Fraserburgh, we read, had found its morning rolls, left on the doorstep, strangely disappearing. So watch was kept, but in vain. The other morning a householder's attention was attracted by a strange noise in his garden. He found a flock of seagulls in a state of high excitement tugging a paper bag to pieces and fighting for the morning rolls which it contained. This has been going on for some time. "No doubt," comments the London Observer sagaciously, "owing to the local neglect of the old-fashioned practice of casting bread upon the waters."

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

PRACTICAL KNOWLEDGE OF VITAMINS.

It is of small concern to the ordinary American that deprivation of vitamins A, B, C, D and G causes respectively xerophthalmia and night-blindness, beriberi, scurvy, rickets and pellagra, because the ordinary American is not likely to suffer any of these grave nutritional diseases. He is interested, however, when authorities like McCollum and Simmonds describe as the preservation of the characteristics of youth the better than average nutritional condition induced and maintained by a more liberal intake of the "protective foods," that is, foods containing vitamins. Another distinguished authority, Sherman, adds that a liberal intake of calcium (in certain foods) and of vitamins A, C and G are the important factors in the attainment and maintenance of this superor condition of nutrition and positive health. Sherman and Ellis found that by adding vitamin G to an already adequate diet, in animal experiment, there is obtained a superior vitality in the young and an extension of the period between the attainment of maturity and the onset of senility. Prolongation of youth, in other words. And these more vital young animals in turn had young that showed superior vitality. It was concluded that an optimal intake of vitamin G is greater than the intake ordinarily considered necessary or adequate to maintain health.

Sherman has reached a similar conclusion regarding the intake of vitamin A and vitamin C. That is, a more liberal intake of vitamins than may be necessary to prevent manifestations of deficiency disease favors greater vigor.

These observations are based on animal experiments. Clinical experience, actual practice on human beings, is after all the best authority and the best test. I am offering no suggestions which I do not believe are borne out by practice.

In nature, vitamins never occur singly, but always in combinations of two or more.

In practice it seems that the best effects are obtained when not one vitamin or two but most or all of the vitamins are given together. Not concentrated, synthetic or artificially hopped up preparations of one or two vitamins of enormous potency (theoretically), but combinations of many or all the vitamins, from natural sources, in a form which insures the regular ration.

Ideally, of course, our food should furnish all the vitamins we require. Owing to refining, cooking, preserving, pasteurizing, sterilizing, storing, selecting customs or practices much of our food is robbed of its vitamins, so that it is not easy to get an adequate ration of vitamins from food even if there be no restriction on choice of food, voluntary, obligatory or seasonal or climatic.

One of the scientists who isolated vitamin C—known as ascorbic acid or cebion—reported recently his opinion that this vitamin protects against arteriosclerosi and other manifestations of old age.

I am convinced that the treatment of many vague ailments or health disturbances which we have not heretofore associated with nutritional deficiency calls for an optimal ration of vitamins to supplement the usual diet.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

GUNNING WASHINGTON, June 10.—The war of headlines is on again in the Mediterranean and the far east. Big Gun Mussolini is firing blank cartridges at Britain. The Japanese are going him one better in Tokyo, leveling a diplomatic barrage over the heads of the entire world.

But, if you will notice, their troops are moving in a direction opposite to their words. Mussolini's are getting ready to grab the rest of Ethiopia; the Japanese are moving to demoralize a growing resistance to their domination in China.

The guiding spirits of American diplomacy are silent but unexcited. They have catalogued both steps definitely in their own minds as further "bulldozing diplomacy."

WHISTLES Herr Hitler is making similar bulldozing threats against Russia. His purpose is precisely the same as that of the Italians and Japanese. He wants to frighten the world into silence while he prepares the way for colonial expansion eastward. Although you hear little about it in this country now, you will later. The reds have become so excited they can almost hear the nazi legions goose-stepping eastward to the strains of the "Horst Wessel," which sounds as if it might be a horse whistle, but isn't.

DISGUISE Even diplomats have to smile when they think of the latest of Hitler's moves. He turned a honeymoon into a diplomatic threat. The honeymoon was not his, but that of his first lieutenant, General Goering.

The general was sent off to lead his bride in the same direction which may some day be taken by the great German air force which he built up. The honeymoon party included two secretaries of aviation, and confidential officials from several ministries, as well as Prince Philip of Hesse, a brother-in-law of the king of Bulgaria. Incidentally, the bride also went along. The honeymoon party visited all the countries which Germany is trying to win over. It is not the first time that Mars has been disguised as Cupid.

SIGNS No authority here doubts that all these steps are more or less important incidents leading up to war. Neither is there any doubt that a major war will be avoided for the present.

Japan will extend her empire through China by degrees. The soviet will not fight; both Britain and the United States are too busy.

Mussolini will crush Ethiopia and extend his imperial colonization there. Britain will not like it because it places him more threateningly on the trade route to India, but will not cause a war.

Hitler will absorb and colonize the states to the east toward Russia. The reds will view with alarm, but keep their swords in their scabbards.

GOSSIP NOTIONS There continues to be much gossip about Mr. Hoover being the power behind the "grass roots" convention; about the Hoover crowd getting back into the party saddle; about Mr. Hoover himself as a candidate next year.

These popular gossip notions are not shared by the republican long-rangers viewing the situation from Washington. As nearly all of them see it, Mr. Hoover is a titular leader without a substantial personal following; a good liaison man who can talk to every republican leader about principles but who cannot count on their support for the next republican nomination; an acting leader pending the selection of another. As far as republicans in Washington are concerned, there isn't any strictly "Hoover crowd."

COTTON A new gold-embossed idea has been placed confidentially on the desks of the foremost New Dealers by "the committee for economic recovery." This is the committee of businessmen who have been co-operating unofficially with the New Deal. You may recall that the committee submitted an extensive recovery plan several weeks ago in a lavishly prepared, leather-bound blue book, on which the name of each New Deal recipient was embossed in gold.

The latest confidential tome is a second edition of the first and contains an interesting proposal for a new deal cotton program.

What it wants primarily is a reduction to 10 cents of loans on 1935-36 crops; retention of the present processing tax; announcement that the government will dispose of cotton now on hand; a quick announcement of policy from the AAA.

As a future long range policy, it recommends benefit payments on a tariff compensatory scale to be based on gross income rather than price per pound; sale of cotton on a net weight basis.

POWER The new blue book also advocates a foreign trade policy to "remove as many barriers as possible;" encouragement for stabilization of currencies; quick action on the Japanese imports report from the tariff commission; several permanent cotton committees to be established within the government to study and help cotton.

The book was presented privately to members of the cabinet committee now studying cotton who will decide what to do about it. But it is more than a mere off-hand secret recommendation from a business committee. This blue book crowd has strong political backing inside the New Deal.

CAUTION An elderly lady of good family, but in reduced circumstances, applied for relief at the Washington office. She insisted on telling her life story before the case worker could pin her down to a few questions of fact. When shown the application blank and asked to sign, she drew herself up, saying:

"I never sign papers without consulting my lawyer. I shall have to show this to him."

They Can't Get Excited About a Picnic If the Skies Aren't Clear

By Robert Quillen

Did you ever live in a boom town or a frontier region? If you did, you will remember the light-hearted and hopeful spirit of its people.

Everybody was busy. Everybody was enthusiastic. Wages were good and money circulated fast. Nobody haggled over small change. Everybody seemed in a hurry—eager, earnest, excited, happy, intensely interested.

There was little real money in sight, but there was boundless hope, ambition and determination to get ahead.

What made things boom? It was the spirit of the people.

They were gloriously free. There were no hampering strings or restraints. It was every man for himself; get all you can; make good if you can, and let the best man win.

Everybody had confidence in the future.

And everybody had reasonable hope of winning that most thrilling of all games, the ardent and joyous pursuit of a profit.

Why aren't things booming now?

You know the answer. Whatever your opinion of the New Deal or your politics or your favorite 'ism, you know in your heart that one thing only is holding us back.

There is no confidence in tomorrow.

Everything else needed to make a boom is here in abundance.

The banks are burdened with money. In savings banks alone the people have over $20,000,000,000.

And there is urgent need of spending. Every property in the land, from the greatest railroad to the humblest home, needs new equipment and repair and replacement as never before in our time.

We have every material thing required to make an era of solid and unprecedented prosperity, but material isn't worth much if people haven't the spirit to use it.

People are brooding over their wrongs instead of scheming to make a dollar. They are discouraged, uncertain, dismayed, resentful, resigned. They are drifting, content to keep what they have and wait to see what the government will do for them—or to them.

There may be nothing to fear, but people need assurance. They are ready to play ball if somebody will convince them that the umpire won't steal the game.

HOOVER, IN NEW YORK, IS SILENT ON POLITICS

NEW YORK, June 10. — (AP) — Former President Herbert Hoover was a visitor here today, but he had nothing to say about the national political situation.

Mr. Hoover will attend a meeting of the board of directors of the New York Life Insurance Company on Wednesday and will leave for his home in California immediately afterward.

He came here yesterday after a fishing trip in New Hampshire, accompanied by his son, Alan, and Lawrence Richey, his secretary.

FINLAND WILL PAY DEBT DUE JUNE 15

HELSINGFORS, Finland, June 10. (AP)—Finland will pay her war debt installment due the United States June 15 in money already earmarked in the National City of New York.

(Finland is the only one of the war debtor nations which has paid the debt installmenths, amounting to about one-quarter million dollars semi-annually, regularly.)

The payment will be made by check on Finland's open account in the New York bank.

"Personal Financier" Again Saves N. Y. Town

DUNKIRK, N. Y., June 10.—(AP) Dunkirk's "personal financier" has come to bat for his home-town once again.

Noted for his readiness to supply the city with money to tide it over a bit of tough going, David S. Wright, veteran seed man, has just taken an entire $40,000 issue of emergency relief bonds.

Once he wrote a check for $250,000, taking the entire bond issue to finance construction of a public school.

"And why not?" he asks. "This city is perfectly sound and it's a good investment. Dunkirk has never defaulted on a bond and I don't believe it ever will."

Rated a millionaire today, Wright got his start as a boy selling seeds for his father.

Factories Closed.

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 10.—(AP) Dispatches from Petropolis today said that all factories were shut and state police were patrolling the streets as the result of a clash between integralists (fascists) and the Communistic National Liberating Alliance yesterday. One communist was killed and about a score on both sides were injured.

FAIR ENOUGH

Danger Seen In Coming Fight. NEW YORK, June 10.—Not always do I find myself in agreement with Mr. Arthur Brisbane, the editorial opinion of the Hearst newspapers, but it is reassuring to discover that we think alike about the dangerous possibilities of the prizefight which the Hearst papers are promoting at the Yankee stadium on the 25th of this month. I was afraid that I might be introducing bigotry into sport, but Mr. Brisbane, I am sure, would not do that, and he has practically taken the words out of my column.

The principals in this prizefight are Joe Louis, a young American negro, and Primo Carnera, the Italian military reservist. The Yankee stadium lies just across the Harlem river from the greatest negro city in the world, where riots have flared twice in recent weeks.

Although the Hearst papers in effect have annihilated the Madison Square Garden Fight Club and taken over dominance of the prizefight business in New York, in the name of the Milk Fund Charities, Mr. Brisbane, as the editorial voice of the Hearst chain, thinks their Louis-Carnera venture is fraught with danger.

May Be Trouble, Says Brisbane. Says he, in his editorial comment in the New York American, whose sport department is principal promoter of the fight:

"A 20-year-old Detroit negro, Joe Louis, with some 'white' blood, will fight the Italian giant, Carnera. This coming individual fight between a negro and the giant Italian is doubly interesting just now because of the wholesale fight that threatens between the kingdom of Italy and the blacks of Abyssinia. Complications may arise when the fight draws a crowd made up largely of colored men and Italians."

Mr. Brisbane expressed the same misgivings in another editorial published in the New York Daily Mirror, in which he said: "An interesting prizefight approaches. Joe Louis, powerful 20-year-old Detroit negro, is to fight Primo Carnera, the giant Italian, on June 25, in a New York ball park, with loose chairs convenient for throwing.

"You know that prizefighters are 'owned' in these days by men that exploit them, arrange their fights, supply the intelligence which they usually lack and give them as much as the 'owners' think best of the money taken in.

"In this fight, according to 'wise' sports reporters, Joe Louis, the negro youth, is owned by a group of Chicago gangsters, while Primo Carnera, the giant Italian—much heavier, more powerful than the negro—is owned by New York gangsters.

"There is no threat in that, for these gangsters are business men, and in public matters usually arrange a division of profits peaceably.

"But what might cause excitement, possibly a fight bigger than the scheduled fight, is the fact that this heavyweight prizefight between an American colored man and an Italian comes at a time when the Abyssinian question creates feeling between Italians and negroes in New York. The crowd at this Italian-negro prizefight will be composed largely of Italians, all enthusiastic about their giant countryman, and negroes from New York's Harlem section."

Should Have The Lowdown. As to whether the two fighters are "owned" by gangsters, as Mr. Brisbane suggests, he enjoys an advantage over most of us. He has on his various staffs some of the most sophisticated sports reporters in America, including the actual promoters of the Louis-Carnera fight. If they have told him that gangsters "own" Carnera and Louis their information would be sounder than your correspondent's belief, although that belief is based upon a rather extensive experience as a sports writer.

Mr. Brisbane's sport writers, however, are the sole operators of this fight, and would have had business dealings with the gangsters whom he mentions in arranging the bout, which suggests to him the possibility of a riot in a ball park at night "with loose chairs convenient for throwing."

Of course, Carnera's underworld associations have been well known to one and all for some years. But as to Joe Louis, all your correspondent has heard on credible authority is that his backers include the nabobs of the numbers racket in Detroit, Chicago and New York. Mr. Brisbane, with his sport staffs so advantageously placed, has the benefit of inside information.

Once Called 'Em Immoral. It is strange, though, to find the Hearst papers or their sports writers operating the biggest fight club in the world, the socalled Twentieth Century Club, in view of the strong opinions against prizefighting which have been expressed by the Hearst papers in the past. Many times they have campaigned against prizefighting as an immoral and degrading influence. They abhorred the whole business in 1910 after the Jeffries-Johnson fight, and ran a daily coupon for weeks in the New York Journal in which the governor was called upon to forbid exhibition of the movies, on the ground that they were indecent and immoral and tended to incite people to riot.

A similar situation now threatens in Harlem, as the wise Mr. Brisbane observes, thanks to the enterprise of the newspapers for which he speaks editorially every day.

Incidentally, although these papers always throw themselves heartily into the ballyhoo for their fights, which are supposed to be charitable activities, I have never seen printed a detailed statement of how the money is spent and for what charity. Since the so-called Milk Fund fights claim to be charity shows, it would seem reasonable that the customers and the other papers which co-operate for charity's sake should have a right to know in detail what becomes of the receipts. And by that I do not mean a vague accounting in large, general lump sums but a dollar-for-dollar reckoning, with every dollar covered by an authentic voucher, showing the nature of the service rendered and the names of those being paid for their services in the interest of charity—something on the order of what Mr. Hearst's auditors require of his newspaper executives.

CONSERVATIONIST ICKES.

Continuing from yesterday the comments on the speech of Secretary of the Interior Ickes before the American game conference, let me say that this nation is fortunate in having a man of his caliber at the head of its important conservation works program. After outlining the abuses of our national resources, Mr. Ickes hits us—and I mean you, too—squarely between the eyes with a question.

"The question is what are we going to do about it? Since the days when Gifford Pinchot wrote his name indelibly on the pages of our history for future grateful and, let us hope, more intelligent Americans to read, there has been building up in this country a belief in the principles of conservation. Theodore Roosevelt caught the vision from Gifford Pinchot. Under the leadership of these two men there began to develop an intellectual belief in conservation but as yet there is no national passion for it. We want it for the other fellow, but decline with thanks to assume its obligations for ourselves."

With this terse statement of the situation—far more accurate than we would like to believe if fooling ourselves were not a painful process—Secretary Ickes sailed into the matter with both fists flying and his words bring an enthusiastic cheer to the lips of all who deplore the eras of waste and destruction that have gone before us. He says:

"We have in the White House today a president who is a practical as well as a theoretical conservationist. His stand is far in advance of any of his predecessors. What other president in our history has ever done so much to restore our forests, to reclaim submarginal lands, to check soil erosion, to harness our floods and to purify our streams, to call a halt to the sinful waste of our oil resources? In his conservation program he ought to have the enthusiastic assistance of every true conservationist. He can be trusted to organize and realign government machinery in such a fashion as to achieve the best results for conservation. His instincts are right, his judgment is sound, and he has a farther reaching vision than any other man in the United States today."

To the mind of this conservationist, it is these particular developments that will mark the memory of President Roosevelt down through the ages. His administration marks the turning point in conservation work. From now on the impetus will force us to conservation whether we as a people wish it or not. It has to come. This is the time when we must work with our able national leaders and not hamper their progress in any way.

Hollywood in Person

By MOLLIE MERRICK

(Copyright, 1935, by The North American Newspaper Alliance.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 10. — A Broadway hit almost surely means a picture purchase, so it is not a surprice to hear Warners have bought "The Petrified Forest," Leslie Howard's starring vehicle, and will put it on the screen.

The Robert Sherwood play brought $100,000—no mean price for even a Broadway success these days. It has plenty of action, and the role which Howard plays—that of a shy, philosophical Britisher who considers himself a complete failure in life—is admirably suited to his restrained talents. Warners have the best stock company in town to fill the roles of the gang men in it. It is fair to guess many of the toughies you saw in "G-Men" will be behind the guns in this one.

It is interesting to know that "The Green Pastures" will be produced, with Max Reinhardt directing and an all-negro cast. Of course, Richard B. Harrison, the actor who played the role of "De Lawd" is no more. . . . A nation mourned him sincerely.

Daniel Haynes, who last played "De Lawd," now is with Paramount, where he is to do an important part in "So Red the Rose."

Nina Mae McKinney is working here at present—she is very popular in London films, by the way—and Bill Robinson, the tap dancer, always is in demand in the Hollywood studios. It will be an easy thing to cast "The Green Pastures."

Leslie Howard's name comes up once more in the projected casting for Marlene Dietrich's "Invitation to Happiness." There has been much to-do about her male lead: The man must be as good with moviegoers as is Gary Cooper. Herbert Marshall like the winner for some time, but now it seems Leslie Howard will play opposite the exquisite Dietrich.

Our movie stars have tried some pretty keen sartorial stunts to create comment in this blase town. With everyone blonder than blonde, thinner than thin, with green, blue, black, gold and silver nail enamel, it isn't so easy to pull a shocker.

But Gladys Swarthout, opera star from the Metropolitan who is about to launch a screen career, pulled a new one. Her dress, of vivid peasant print, cut conservatively high in back and front, and with large puffed sleeves, ends abruptly at its slightly high waistline and begins again at a quite low waistline leaving the midsection of the torso bare. It's been seen on beaches, but not in ballrooms. But it looks cool for the warm nights.

The Flowers Are in Bloom.

They started high school together. In their junior year they were engaged. They graduated that same spring and he went to the University, where he took a course in agriculture.

Her father had moved to California to live and she didn't want to be separated from her fiance by all those three thousand miles. So she took a post-graduate year at the high school and then hunted a job to support herself until his course in agriculture was finished. She got one, too, perhaps not high salaried but sufficient for her somewhat simple wants.

Yesterday he graduated and she was there to see. After the exercises they were married in an Athens parsonage. Now they are going to live on the farm, just a few miles from Atlanta, he inherited from his grandfather.

She has spent all her spare time this spring, using the hours of the late afternoons that daylight-saving time has given her, working on her flower garden. Today, as they start life together, there is a riot of gorgeous color around their doorstep and the perfume of full-blown blossoms envelops the marriage bed.

The Shame of Doggy Nudity.

"Bootsie" is a poodle, preponderantly. She is muchly beloved by a 12-year-old mistress and in return devotes every beat of her faithful little heart to adoration of her home people. Never did dog eyes display more understanding affection than Bootsie's when they peer out through bushy hair, at the humans she loves so well.

The only handicap in Bootsie's life is the long hair which grows so thick and curly over every part of her body. Particularly when summer comes the hair is a nuisance and it is practically impossible to banish every flea.

So each year Bootsie is sent to the veterinarian for a clipping.

When she comes home with all the long hair gone, save perhaps a little whisk on the end of her tail and a tiny bootee on each foot, she is screamingly funny. Not so much for appearance as for her emotions.

For the first day after the annual clipping she spends her time hiding under chairs or table. When she is called out she crawls, belly to floor, with a look of utter shame in her eyes. After the one day she forgets and enjoys her new comfort.

But at first she is as self-conscious as you would be, suddenly thrown into public gaze without your clothes.

Go outdoors and play with the neighbor dogs in that condition of doggy nudity? Not for all the bones in Atlanta.

DIVIDEND IS DECLARED BY SAVINGS AND LOAN

Association To Pay $20,000 To Investors for First Half of Year.

The board of directors of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Atlanta Friday declared a dividend on the basis of 4 per cent per an um for the first six months of 1935. This dividend will be paid all shareholders of record on June 30 on their federal shares, which are fully insured up to $5,000 by Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation of Washington, D. C. It is expected this dividend will involve the distribution of approximately $20,000 to investors in this association.

George W. West, president of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Atlanta, stated:

"The association in the six months' period ending June 30 has made the greatest progress in its history. Federal insurance of saving investments up to $5,000 has attracted hundreds of new accounts These new funds, supplemented by investments by the United States government, have enabled this institution to finance over 200 homes, old and new, in this community since the first of the year, all of these loans being made on long-term, monthly-amortized basis. We expect the next six-month period to be a more successful one. We expect federal insurance, together with a higher rate of return than can be gained from an investment of equal safety, to attract even more investors so that this association will be in a position to more fully and more completely care for the home financing needs of this community."

NASHVILLE HOUSING IS HIKED TO $1,500,000

WASHINGTON, June 10—(AP)—Public works officials disclosed today that the advisory committee on allotment had recommended to President Roosevelt an increase in the allotment for a low cost housing project at Nashville, Tenn., from $990,000 to $1,500,000.

The increase was part of the $249,000,000 low cost housing program to be financed from the $4,000,000,000 works fund. The president, however, has not yet approved the recommendation.

MORE THAN $200,000 PAID INSURED READERS

Constitution SubscribersMay Secure Low-Cost Protection Against Accident.

Over $200,000 for widows and orphans, for men and women disabled and in pain as the result of accidents.

That's what The Constitution's offer of a travel and pedestrian accident insurance feature has meant to its subscribers during the last several years.

Over $200,000 paid when money was badly needed; when funeral expenses were heavy, when medical attention was a drain on the family treasury, when saddened families bereft of their bread-winner were faced with the problem of carrying on.

If you do not now have this travel and pedestrian accident insurance protection, which The Constitution offers you, is there any good reason why you should delay it longer when it costs only the small sum of 10 cents a month or $1 a year if you pay it in advance?

Do not delay! Procrastination may prove fatal.

The insurance offered you through The Constitution is issued by the North American Accident Insurance Company of Chicago. The insurance is offered to subscribers of the daily and Sunday Constitution and immediate dependent members of the subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 69 on the one subscription going into the home at a small registration fee of 20 cents with application and 10 cents per month thereafter in addition to the subscription price, or $1 each per policy per year in advance to subscribers who live in Atlanta and Atlanta suburbs where we have carrier delivery. Out-of-town subscribers can have this insurance by paying $1 per policy per year in advance.

This insurance, offered through The Constitution, provides for the payment of sums ranging downward from $10,000 for travel, $1,000 for auto and pedestrian deaths resulting from certain specified accidents, heavy sums for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability resulting from accidents set forth in the policy, which is at the rate of $43.33 per month.

In sending application for insurance, the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation, and if beneficiary is desired the full Christian name of beneficiary must be given and relationship of same to the insured.

Do your duty! Protect yourself and family today. Tomorrow may be too late!

CONTRACT IS LET FOR PINE PULP MILL

Connecticut Firm to Build $3,500,000 Savannah Plant.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 10.—(AP)—The Merritt, Chapman & Scott Corporation, which maintains offices in this city has been awarded the contract by the Union Bag and Paper Corporation, of New York, to construct a 125-ton pulp and papermill at Savannah. The work will involve the expenditure of more than $3,500,000.

It will include a large number of buildings and the construction of wharfs, railroad work and power plant and other machinery installation.

Officials of the construction corporation saying work will start soon announced it one of the few large contracts undertaken by private concerns since the depression.

$250,000 Frog Packing Industry Developed in Bayous of Louisiana

5,000 Pounds of Epicurean Delight Shipped Daily. Scientific Breeding on Large Scale Aids Year's Cain of 100 Per Cent.

NEW ORLEANS, June 10—(AP)—Out of the bayous and marshes of Louisiana a new and unique industry has emerged, a quarter-million-dollar business devoted to the merchandising of frogs' legs.

In less than five years the business has grown from a casual enterprise on the part of local fishermen to a point where one large company in New Orleans alone kills, packs and ships more than 5,000 pounds of the succulent delicacy every day.

At first the spotted amphibians were secured from the low marshy lands in and around the gulf coast. But later the supply became restricted and the breeding of frogs for food purposes began.

The frog industry had one important obstacle to hurdle at the start, the cannibalistic tendency of the parents to eat the young as fast as they developed.

But by arranging separate breeding pens this was overcome and the industry began to move forward.

A visit to the largest unit in this field on the outskirts of New Orleans finds it operating with smooth precision.

Frogs are caught with nets in the large enclosed pens on the farm; a man with a long sharp knife decapitates them; others clean them and then they are taken into a large room where girls pack them into tin cans. The legs are packed in one type container, choice tid-bits are packed in another size tin. After being packed they are hermetically sealed, then cooked in the can, labeled, packed and are ready for their trip to the tables of the epicures.

Largest purchasers at present are the big speciality grocery stores and department stores in New York, Chicago and other centers. The price—approximately 50 cents for 6 ounces.

Frog raisers are rapidly approaching the stage reached by the meat packer who mentiond that he used all but the squeal in referring to pigs. Aside from the legs and meat the frog's skin is used for women's shoes. Pharmaceutical experts are investigating the use of portions of the frog for the treatment of chorea or St. Vitus dance.

The depression? Frog breeders haven't heard of it. Business has increased 100 per cent in the past year and the demand is still far above the supply.

Thousands of visitors were here for the week of merrymaking, which reaches its climax Thursday night with the coronation ball when Ottis Green Jr. and Miss Sophie Myers Stephens will be crowned king and queen of rhododendron.

JURY SAYS POLICEMAN SHOT WOMAN, SELF

FREDERICKSBURG, Pa., June 10.—(AP)—Dr. John E. Cole, city coroner, after an inquest today into the killings of Mrs. C. Ray Davis and Police Officer E. Cleveland Musselman, returned a verdict stating that the 23-year-old woman died from a bullet wound inflicted by the officer and that the latter was a suicide from self-inflicted bullet wound in the head.

LAWYERS TO PROBE COLLECTION FIRMS

Unlawful Practice of Law Charged to Certain Agencies Here.

Charging that methods employed by certain collection agencies "amount to little short of blackmail," Judge A. J. Hartley, president of the Fulton County Bar Association, announced yesterday that the association has launched a thorough investigation of such agencies following several complaints charging unlawful practice of law.

"It has come to our attention that threats by mail and telephone in various forms are being made to a great number of employes and employers of Atlanta," Judge Hartley said.

"The threats involve institution and trial of suits, garnishments and other legal actions, by agencies and persons who are not lawyers and cannot institute or advise the bringing of any legal proceedings. By their unscrupulous manner they mislead the public to believe that they can issue, bring and try cases in court, and will do so unless the terms of their threats are met."

Judge Hartley asks any citizen who has knowledge of such acts to give such information as they have to the association, submitting for examination any pseudo-legal forms from agencies.

GROUP OPENS SESSION ON WORLD RELATIONS

Southern Institute Launches Ten-Day Program of Lectures, Discussions.

The second annual Southern Institute of International Relations, held in the interest of world peace, opened a 10-day session yesterday at St. Luke's Episcopal church with college students, teachers, clergymen and officers of civic and church organizations in attendance.

A class session was held yesterday afternoon, attended by both whites and negroes, while an open meeting was staged last night with Clarence E. Pickett, executive secretary of the American Friends Service committee, as the principal speaker.

Discussing "Achieving Peace in a Changing World," Mr. Pickett declared it has become necessary to revalue civilization, centering on human need.

"We must build a new and adequate international and internal machinery for meeting human needs," the speaker declared. "We must be better informed as to the changes that have and are taking place. Study of this problem and its solution is the purpose of the Southern Institute of International Relations."

Touching on changes that have taken place, Mr. Pickett said the shrinkage of America's export market from five billions of dollars in 1929 to a billion and a half in 1932 necessitates adjustment and a new attitude.

"The United States is no longer an isolated nation; it must play its part in solving world problems," he said. "And paramount is the problem of peace. We all know the world simply cannot afford another war; it would be too ghastly and too purposeless. Therefore, we must work together to prevent such a war."

Andrew W. Cordier, professor of history at Manchester College; Paul Harris Jr., secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War, and J. R. Huber, of the department of economics, Emory University, will be the speakers at today's sessions of the institute.

STOCKING CLINIC OFFERED AT HIGH'S

Women Can Find Answer To Any Hosiery Problem This Week.

Women of Atlanta are asked to bring their hosiery problems to the stocking clinic being held this week at High's.

Miss Mildred Roberts, stocking analyst, who has had special training at the Lux laboratories in Cambridge, Mass., in hosiery styling and conservation, will be in the regular hosiery department of High's for consultation on hosiery troubles. She will be at High's this week only.

Stocking clinics are the new way of helping women with their hosiery problems, and one of the big problems of many women is to reduce the cost of the stocking wardrobe. A check-up of 100 business and society women indicates it is not at all unusual for one woman's stockings to cost as much as $100 per year. A stocking clinic is planned to help customers find those stockings which best suit their individual needs—for fashion for fit or for wear, and to give them points on how to make those stockings last longer.

"The real secret of stocking satisfaction," says Miss Roberts, who thoroughly enjoys her unusual job, "often lies in the way you wash them."

WHITE TO REPRESENT MAYOR AT CONVENTION

Key, However, May Attend Thursday Session of Georgia Mayors at Albany.

Councilman John A. White yesterday was designated Mayor Key's personal representative at the Georgia Mayors' Association convention at Albany tomorrow and Thursday.

The mayor, however, may go to the convention in person for the Thursday sessions. Dr. Frank Eskridge, Key's physician, asserted yesterday his patient was returning rapidly to normal and his blood pressure was down considerably.

In order to insure that Key will have a maximum of rest, police officers were stationed outside his hospital door and admittance was denied everyone.

White and his party will leave this afternoon. Robert C. Mizell and Dean Edgar H. Johnson, of the school of economy at Emory University, will leave the city Wednesday morning. Mizell is president of the Georgia Taxpayers' League. Dean Johnson is slated to address the assembly.

J. C. Robinson, secretary of the association, reported yesterday more than 100 Georgia mayors are expected to attend the Albany meeting, the second annual gathering of Georgia mayors.

Key dictated a message which White will read at the Wednesday morning session. Mayor J. D. Ashley, of Valdosta, will preside over the convention in Key's absence.

The Atlanta firemen's band, under the direction of Assistant Chief W. A. Fain, will leave Atlanta at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning for the convention. They are scheduled to give three concerts Wednesday and Thursday.

There were no injuries in the wreck, which was blamed by railway officials on a broken wheel on one of the cars.

U. S. TRIES ATTORNEY IN URSCHEL KIDNAPING

Laska Accused of Accepting Known Ransom Money as Fee.

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 10.—(AP) Purpling with rage, Ben B. Laska, Denver attorney, shouted a denial to a federal court jury today that he directed disposal of the $75,000 his kidnaper client received when the $200,000 Charles F. Urschel ransom was divided.

The denial, delivered in bitter vein, climaxed the crowded first day of the government's trial of Laska and James C. Mathers, Oklahoma City, attorneys for two of Urschel's kidnapers. They are charged with accepting as counsel fees money from the ransom paid for release of the oil millionaire.

Previously, Frank Dudley, assistant United States district attorney, had charged that "Laska, working behind the scenes," told Edward Feldman, stepson of Albert Bates, Laska's kidnaper client, how to safely dispose of the "hot" ransom cash.

Laska's opening statement cleared the way for the taking of testimony tomorrow.

Attorneys for Mathers reserved their opening argument. Mathers' kidnaper client was Harvey Bailey. Both Bailey and Bates were convicted.

Laska, once accused by the Denver bar of "hypnotizing" juries, railed against "a plot to convict me."

"This is a test case," he told the jury. "I'm not alone in it. There are 150,000 lawyers interested in its outcome."

W. C. Lewis, district attorney, leaped to his feet and appealed to Judge Edgar S. Vaught to "make him stop trying to bring all the rest of the lawyers in the country into this case."

In his opening argument, Dudley sketched the government's case against Laska.

He told how Feldman went with his mother to Chicago, Oregon, Wyoming and other places to escape with the money.

"Laska directed their flight," Dudley declared. "He told them to change their names. . . . He told them to get rid of all identification and to get containers and bury the ransom money in the earth so it would not be destroyed and to leave it there until it could be passed."

Throughout the opening day, Urschel was an interested spectator.

the Mellon interests from operation of the bill flared out today.

Senator Wheeler said the two interests were exempted because their connection with the power and gas business affected by the measure were "only incidental" to their main line of activity.

Wheeler's insistence he was not seeking to include all holding companies of all industries brought the Louisianan to his feet with flailing arms.

"This bill has been already too much compromised," Long said, and then topped that with an assertion that President Roosevelt was wilfully permitting the Tennessee Valley Authority amendments to be held up in the house.

10-Minute Job.

"They could bring the TVA bill out of the house in 10 minutes if they wanted to," the Louisianan shouted. "They know that they are pleasing the president of the United States or they would bring that bill out of there."

His protest referred to a 13-to-12 vote in the house military affairs committee which tied up the TVA measure after it had been passed by the senate.

With only incidental debate, the senate adopted an amendment to give federal courts discretion as to whether they would appoint the Securities and Exchange Commission as receivers of utility companies going under the federal bankruptcy laws.

council and secret societies which might harm relations with foreign powers was ordered by General Ho Ying-Chin, chairman of the council.

Troops whose removal from Hopei province was demanded by Japan were reported already on the march to another province. Replacements satisfactory to Tokyo have been sent.

In Tientsin Chinese commentators said aroused world opinion and the Japanese foreign office restrained alleged plans by Japanese army leaders to occupy northern China.

One Chinese official was quoted as saying: "We are thankful for the presence of the foreign embassies and legations in Peiping. This and the delicate international situation at Tientsin is helping to restrain the Japanese army, as it did in 1933 when the Japanese advanced almost to the gates of the two cities."

A Japanese official in Tientsin said, "we are anxious to avoid an international hubbub."

MOSCOW SHARPLY PROTESTS ALLEGED JAP AMBUSHING

MOSCOW, June 10.—(AP)—The Tass, official Russian news agency, announced tonight that the soviet charge d'affaires at Tokyo has filed a protest with the Japanese foreign office, demanding punishment of Japanese soldiers in Manchoukuo who allegedly entered soviet territory and ambushed a soviet sentinel.

The protest note asserted the attack occurred June 3 and called it an "unprecedented violation of the soviet frontiers."

Two sentinels of the soviet side of the border near the mouth of the Sherimetivo river were said to have been fired on suddenly from the rear. One of them fled for aid and upon returning with reinforcements, found only a pool of blood and hoof prints leading back across the border.

The note demanded the return of the sentinel, if he was captured alive, and return of his body if he was killed.

SHARP FIGHTING IN WEST WORRIES CHINA GOVERNMENT

HUNGKING, Szechuan Province, China, June 10.—(AP)—Sharp fighting in western China where communist forces are on the march gave the Chinese nationalist government tonight another grave problem.

General Chiang Kai-shek, China's military chief, has been forced to divide his attention between the west and the north as a result of Japan's demands in the latter area.

Government authorities here are fearful that the fast-moving communist armies will succeed in breaking into the mountain wilderness of Siking, "buffer" province between Szechuan and Tibet. If they do, they can quickly lose themselves in the highland fastnesses and pursuit would be difficult.

Concern was felt at the possibility the reds would use Sikong as a corridor to the Tibetan frontier. In this case British interests would be menaced, for only militarily-weak Tibet would separate the communists from the Indian frontier.

COTTON SURPLUS END SAID POSSIBLE BY '37

Johnson Declares Lint's Statistical Position Strongest Since 1931.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 10.—(AP) Oscar Johnston, special assistant to the secretary of the treasury, predicted here today that continued co-operation between producers and the Agricultural Adjustment Administration would eliminate America's cotton surplus within two years. "The present statistical position of American cotton is stronger than at any time since August 1, 1931," he said.

"It is entirely too early to forecast with any accuracy the size of the 1935 crop, but it is reasonably certain that the world carryover of cotton on August 1, next, will not exceed 9,000,000 bales and this will include cotton in the hands of consuming establishments, rejections, culls and every type of cotton," Johnston continued.

"No conclusion has been reached with respect to the amount per pound for the 1935 loan. The only thing certain with respect to this being that the government will see to it that adequate credit facilities are available to producers to avoid dumping during harvesting."

MANUFACTURERS' AGENT HITS AAA PROPAGANDA

BOSTON, June 10.—(AP)—On the eve of a meeting by northern cotton manufacturers to determine their post-code course of action, Dexter Stevens, vice president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers tonight accused Secretary of Agriculture Wallace of "poisoning the minds of millions of farmers." He called for a dismantling of the "AAA propaganda machine."

Stevens asserted the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's propaganda machine "has deliberately and consistently misconstrued the attitude of the cotton textile industry toward benefit payments to harassed farmers. In times like these, of course, we favor such payments. The industry approves the benefit payments, but not the Wallace method of collecting it," he declared.

ersby it appears to have been long vacant.

Soon after its discovery by Department of Justice agents, neighbors who had seen mysterious persons in the dwelling, identified three of them as the Waleys and Mahan.

Mrs. T. L. Locket, operator of a grocery store in the neighborhood, identified Waley and Mahan from pictures taken from files of the Spokane police department, and offered a humorous sidelight in her dealings with the men.

Complained of Thieves.

"They complained their house had been entered while they were away for about a week and somebody stole some milk bottles," she said.

"The complained a lot about the class of a neighborhood in which a thing like that could happen."

Elmer Cawthon, an iceman who lived next door to the house, frquently saw a man he identified as Waley, and upon several occasions talked to him.

About two weeks before Easter, Elmer related, two women and a little girl, named Wanda, came to the house.

"They left for the first time a few days after Easter (April 21; George was kidnaped on May 24) and were gone until three or four days after Easter," the iceman related.

"They must have returned in the night because none of us remember seeing them come back.

Man Curious.

"I was in the yard one day doing some work for a neighbor and this fellow who looks like Waley came over to talk with me. He mentioned their having been away on an Easter trip. He seemed mad about something and asked me if I saw anybody around the house while they were away. He said somebody had been in the house and taken his overcoat and a coat belonging to his wife."

While federal agents, who locked themselves inside the house, refused to talk, police said the man probably was attempting to learn if police or other officers had been around the house.

The house stands among old homes occupied a generation ago by Spokane's wealthy residents.

While the details of Waley's confession were as closely guarded by federal agents here today as were Waley and his wife, one report said he had told them he and his wife, Mahan and another man were involved in the kidnaping. He was represented as saying the identity of the third man is unknown to him and that he met him in Washington state.

Mahan Picture Identified.

An automobile salesman identified a photograph of Mahan as the man to whom he sold a Ford car last March 30 after he had been offered a green Buick sedan in exchange.

A green Buick sedan and a Ford car were definitely tied into the kidnap hunt in the Pacific northwest.

What was regarded as further light upon the movement of the kidnap gang was a statement today by Julius Thulin, 71-year-old grandfather of Mrs. Waley, that the Waleys visited him at his Ogden, Utah, home June 3, two days after young Weyerhaeuser was released. They left a short time later but last Friday, the ransom bills first were circulated here, the grandfather said, a man who gave his name as Davis left a suitcase for them at the Ogden home.

"Saturday night about 9 o'clock Davis reappeared with his small green-gray motor car," Mr. Thulin said.

"'Here I am again,' he said. 'Did my friends pick up the suitcase?'

"'Yes,' I replied, 'and they have both been arrested in Salt Lake.'

"'The damn fools,' said Davis.

Runs for Auto.

"Davis threw his hands into the air and started on the run for his car."

Police expressed the belief that Davis, one of Mahan's many aliases, headed for Butte—425 miles distant—where he so narrowly escaped capture Sunday.

Thulin identified a police picture of Mahan as the Davis who left the suitcase at his home.

No sooner had the arrests here been made known than it was announced in Tacoma that death on the gallows would be sought for the kidnapers.

Grimly, unequivocally, Prosecuting Attorney Harry H. Robertson said. "The law says death. It is death we will demand."

He added:

"I can have some sympathy for a man who kills another in a brawl, but none whatever for the kidnaper. This is the most terrible crime we have. It strikes at the heart of every father and mother."

Sex, Johnston said, will not deter him.

Same Treatment.

"If the evidence proves she was a principal," he said the 19-year-old Mrs. Waley, "she will receive the same treatment as her accomplices."

Mrs. Waley, arrested Saturday as she attempted to pass a $5 bill from the ransom money, broke quickly, according to federal agents, and implicated her husband. When he reached the house they had taken here only three days before, he was promptly seized. Waley, too, soon confessed, it was announced, and the couple together implicated Mahan.

The same type identification orders from the Justice Department which finally meant the end for John Dillinger, "Pretty Boy" Floyd and many other gangsters, were broadcast from Washington in the Mahan hunt.

Thousands of such orders were speeded to 35 key cities, carrying the ten fingerprints of the quarry, two pictures, detailed description and an outline of his criminal past.

Lived in New Jersey.

Mrs. Waley's relatives here said she and her husband lived at Camden, N. J., from early last autumn until January.

This gave rise to speculation that Waley knew all the details of the Lindbergh kidnaping—may, in fact, even have attended sessions of the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann at Flemington, N. J.

Waley, the girl's relatives said, is the son of a foreman of one of the Weyerhaeuser lumber mills, but never was employed because of his father's objections to hiring relatives.

The relatives added that Waley and his wife spent some time in Tacoma after their marriage here in November, 1933.

Records showed the pair were on relief several times between January, 1934, and April, 1935.

The father of the kidnaped boy, J. P. Weyerhaeuser Sr., avoided comment on plans to seek the death penalty—which would be hanging in Washington—for the abductors.

Weyerhaeuser Silent.

"Oh, I can't talk about that," he said over the telephone, after slamming the door on callers who sought to learn his views.

Although it was the Department of Justice through which the public learned of the arrest of the Waleys and the pursuit of Mahan, police here and at Butte actually were credited with turning them up.

W. M. Rogers, a Salt Lake City detective, and Patrolman L. B. Gifford arrested Mrs. Waley when she offered a $5 bill identified as part of the Weyerhaeuser ransom payment in payment for a 20-cent cigaret case at a 10-cent store.

At Butte, burly, good-natured J. E. Mooney, a detective whose hobby is boxing, spotted Mahan and probably would have taken him then but for a bulldog.

Near a small (Ford V-8) sedan early Sunday, Mooney recognized Mahan, whom he had arrested nearly seven years ago on a bank robbery charge. Mahan fled. Trying to get at his pistol, Mooney gave chase, but a bulldog blocked his path.

That was before Mooney and fellow officers found secreted in the sedan Mahan deserted $15,155 of the ransom money—about evenly divided in $5, $10 and $20 denominations.

COMPLETE SOLUTION OF CASE IS SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—Complete solution of the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping case—with the probability of new arrests—was the goal tonight of relentless "G-men" combing the northwest for William Mahan and possible confederates.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Justice Department agents, kept in almost continuous contact with the hunt by telephone from here. During the day he summoned newsmen to his office to announce the location of the "hideout" house at Spokane where George Weyerhaeuser was held.

Visibly excited, the director said this "was highly important to the investigation" and promptly ordered that "a police guard be thrown about the house." Then as reporters left his office, Hoover added there might be "additional details at any moment."

He disclosed simultaneously that continued grilling at Salt Lake City of Harmon M. Waley, 24-year-old former convict, and his wife, Margaret, arrested Saturday in the Weyerhaeuser case and said to have confessed, had resulted in location of the Spokane house where little George was concealed.

Hoover said just 10 minutes before he made his announcement, the hideout had been "definitely identified by the cupboard where the little boy was kept."

Hoover emphatically warned that anyone aiding Mahan—linked by agents with the abduction before he fled from Butte, Mont., officers—would face the full force of the federal law. He said:

"Any person who lends any assistance to Mahan or harbors him in any way will be prosecuted vigorously under the federal harboring statutes."

The minimum sentence upon a conviction of "harboring" was said to be "two years and a fine."

This announcement was in line with the Justice Department's policy of making kidnap fugitives "too hot" even for contact with underworld criminals usually open to an escaping criminal.

Hoover said 25,000 official I. O.'s (identification orders) left here by air mail at 6 a. m. today for points in the west and northwest" where Mahan was being sought.

"Fortunately we had a photograph of the man in our files here," he explained. "We started running the I. O.'s at 11 o'clock last night and they were speeding away from here early today."

As quickly as details of the kidnaping were learned from the Waleys at Salt Lake City, Hoover disclosed, his agents dictated them by long-distance telephone to his office, but he insisted these detailed confessions must be confidential "probably until they are indicted and tried."

Hoover referred sarcastically to the "healthy records" of Waley and Mahan.

"Mahan managed to get out of sentences twice, the last time a 20-year term in 1927," he said. "The gentleman Waley also had a magnificent record with five arrests from burglary to grand larceny, with some paroles included, of course."

MOTHER CAN'T BELIEVE SON IS A KIDNAPER.

TACOMA, June 10.—(AP)—Brokenhearted, Mrs. Cleo I. Bonney, 50, gray-haired mother of Harmon M. Waley, held as a member of the gang which kidnaped George Weyerhaeuser, cried: "I don't believe it. . . . I can't understand it," when told here today her son and his wife had been arrested in Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Bonney, who has been ill since January, has been on relief, officials said.

SENATE VOTES PENALTY ON RANSOM HANDLERS.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—An amendment to the Lindbergh kidnap law to make persons handling ransom money "accessories after the fact" was passed today by the senate and sent to the house.

Attorney-General Cummings in recommending the amendment said "the present law was inadequate to reach persons handling ransom money."

The bill, he said, would "make it a crime to receive, possess or dispose of the ransom money."

The amendment would subject those handling ransom money to a possible fine of $10,000 or imprisonment up to 10 years or both.

FEDERAL JURY URGES DEATH FOR KIDNAPERS

DURANT, Okla., June 10.—(UP) A death sentence, believed to be the first imposed under the Lindbergh kidnaping law, was recommended by a federal jury today for Arthur Gooch, Oklahoma gangster.

He was accused of kidnaping H. R. Marks and R. N. Baker, Paris, Texas, policemen and bringing them into Oklahoma.

Ambrus Nix, his companion in the kidnaping, was killed in a battle with officers near Okemah last December.

DEFICIT OF DEMOCRATS REDUCED TO $441,976

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—The democratic national committee today reported to the house its deficit had been reduced below the half a million dollar mark for the first time since the Smith-Hoover campaign of 1928.

Unpaid obligations, said W. Forbes Morgan, secretary of the committee, in making his quarterly report to the clerk of the house, fell from $520,670 on February 20 to $441,976 on May 31.

FARM BELT G.O.P. TO SEEK '36 AID FROM DEMOCRATS

republican—to join forces under the G. O. P. standard.

Frank O. Lowden, silver-haired elder statesman of republicanism, came out of retirement to voice a battle cry:

"The preservation of the constitution—this is the supreme issue of the hour."

The former Illinois governor predicted:

"Hundreds of thousands of patriotic men and women of the democratic party will rally to our banner, in the gravest crisis since the Civil War."

Harrison E. Spangler, of Iowa, temporary chairman and keynoter, asserted that any new conservative party would only divide the electorate. He added:

Ask Aid of Americans.

"We call upon all Americans to join us in an effort to defend and re-establish American social, economic and political institutions."

Immediately following the opening of the first major political convocation since invalidation of the NRA struck a blow to the New Deal, the first move for democratic aid was made. Roy L. Brecke, of Wisconsin, demanded that the resolutions committee map plans for a fusion of democrats and republicans opposed to President Roosevelt. The keynote address made the president its special target. Booes and catcalls chorused as Spangler enumerated the "broken pledges" of President Roosevelt.

Cheers greeted Spangler's declaration:

"The issue of today is the philosophies of Lincoln against those of Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

There was applause when Lowden asserted:

"There is no room on American soil for the dictatorship of either the fascist or proletariat type of governmen," and again as he promised:

"Any attempt to rob America of its liberties would revive the spirit of '76."

Lincoln's Tomb Visited.

The same theme was taken up in the afternoon when the pilgrims to the shrine of Abraham Lincoln assembled at his tomb in Oak Ridge cemetery for memorial services.

There Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture in the Hoover cabinet, reiterated demands for "constitutional government and individual liberty."

"We do not join Mr. Roosevelt in his admiration of the powers of other nations," he said, "including the powers of Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin."

John D. M. Hamilton, permanent chairman of the conclave of G. O. P. faithful from Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Wisconsin, Minnesota, South Dakota, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska, renewed the attack on the national administration at a night session as the resolutions committee prepared to bring in its more formal "indictment" of the New Deal.

He bade his auditors to leap into the fight to regain the west for the republicans.

Party Principles.

He also promulgated the first definite outline of constructive principles to guide the party in its battles.

But there was only confused speculation as to what stand the conference should take on the all-important farm plank.

Lowden, long recognized as an agricultural authority, observed:

"A just balance between industry and agriculture can be maintained only if, so long as we have a protective tariff for the benefit of industry, we give to agriculture corresponding benefits for that portion of the products of the soil which go into domestic consumption."

Uncertain applause greeted his statement. Some delegates debated whether he had given inferential approval to one of the fundamentals of the AAA; others interpreted it as an indorsement of some equalization fee or export debenture plan.

Lowden did not elaborate.

Hamilton, chairman of the national committee for Kansas, and, with Spangler, a prime mover in the rally, demanded a return to "an economic program based upon the theory of plenty and not scarcity."

He also urged an adequate program to meet changing social conditions but warned it must function "within the framework of the constitution. He demanded pledges for a stabilized monetary system, a balanced budget, the termination of monopolies, removal of the government from business, a return to the people of their constitutional rights, free speech, free labor and a free press, restoration of foreign markets, lifting of restrictions on agriculture.

Officials announced 7,000 men and women attended the morning session.

EMPIRE BUILDERS ELECT CONGRESS

Young Harry Campbell, impeccably dressed in a dark suit and a white shirt, kept straightening his tie.

Then came the election for chairman. Campbell, from Abrams, Wis.; Pat Hemmer, of Wright, Minn., and Allen Frederick, of Wahkon, Minn., were nominated. Two men tore ballots from scratch paper. They distributed them and collected them in felt hats. Campbell won.

Mrs. Neil Miller, whose husband resigned as Blair (Wis.) High school principal because of his faith in Alaska's future, was elected secretary.

Campbell stepped to the plain board desk, rapped for order with a pair of shiny scissors.

"The meeting will be in order," he said. "There are a few men who sleep in this place and they want to get this over as soon as possible.

"We Lack Direction."

He went on aggressively: "Some colonists are running around here like a bunch of lost sheep. Some want to go fishing, some want to cut logs. They're not pulling together. We don't want to be big shots, but as delegates we ought to start directing the camps."

The council agreed. Then its members tangled on the garbage problem. The government health men have been raising Ned with some of the colonists about garbage. They have suggested digging trenches to burn and bury refuse to prevent disease. Irwin demanded this be done.

The council unanimously passed a motion that each camp have a garbage disposal committee and post bulletin board notices to that effect. That was the first law of the Alaska colony.

Swanda, from Pine City, Minn., with a determined glint in his eye, brought up the next subject.

Pass Dog Law.

"If the children don't stop pestering the horses tied out by the hay they'll be shaking hands with St. Peter," he started. "And another thing—we've got a fine bunch of hounds running around. The biggest part of them would just take a man about one day with a gun. I like dogs but I take care of them like my children, not the way some are taking care of them.

"I make a motion the dogs in these camps be tied up so they won't run wild," interposed Councilman George Conners from South Range, Wis.

"I would amend that motion that all dogs must be tied up unless out for exercise," Frederick added.

It was so amended and ordered posted and Mrs. Hopkins opened the next subject.

To Apportion Milk.

"Out to camp six," she said, "we got 52 kids and only two gallons of milk. I think milk should be divided more equally among the camps. We adults can get along, but we gotta have milk for children."

Irwin admitted a milk shortage and the council decided to take a census of children under 10 at each camp and allocate the present milk supply equitably until more cows arrive.

Chairman Campbell then reminded the delegates that it was getting late and they better adjourn. It was decided to meet once a week. Swanda called out, "Okay, everybody, bring your grievances next week."

FELIX DE GOLIAN HURT IN BALTIMORE CRASH

Eleven Naval Academy Midshipmen in Hospital After Mishap.

BALTIMORE, June 10.—(AP)—Eleven midshipmen, members of the second class at the naval academy in Annapolis, were hurt in a street car-truck collision near here today. None of their injuries were believed to be serious.

The midshipment were en route to Camp Holabird to complete an inspection trip begun earlier at the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's plant at Sparrows Point, Md. They formed a part of a detachment of about 85 second class men who left the academy early today on a five-day cruise on Chesapeake bay aboard two destroyers.

The middies, who suffered cuts and bruises, according to physicians at the Bethlehem plant infirmary, where they were taken, were identified as follows:

W. O. Ely, Pittsburgh, Pa.; K. E. Hanson, Graceville, Minn.; W. L. Phaler, Rochester, N. Y.; F. E. Kreikenibaum, Chicago; J. E. O'Rourke, Lowell, Mass.; B. V. Otter, Louisville, Ky.; W. S. Reed, Washington, D. C.; F. E. De Golian, Atlanta, Ga.; J. P. Currie, Washington, D. C.; A. C. Robertson, Fulton, Ky., and W. J. Hammand, Gallequah, Alabama.

Three ambulances were sent from the naval academy to transfer the injured midshipmen to the navy hospital at Annapolis. They were in charge of Lieutenant Commander Arthur H. Dearing, medical officer at the service school.

Lieutenant Commander L. N. Austin, who was riding on the front seat of the truck when the trolley struck it at a crossing, and Private Harold Ziegler, of Camp Holabird, were shaken up in the crash. Austin was in charge of the detachment.

GEORGIA ROADS ASK FREIGHT RATE HIKE

Carriers' Paper Supported by Rule Nisi Issued by I. C. C.

Petition by Georgia railroads for an increase of seven to ten per cent in intrastate freight rates was placed before the state Public Service Commission yesterday.

Supporting the carriers' paper was a rule nisi issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring the Georgia commission to show cause why the increase should not be granted in conformity with recent interstate advances.

The rate hike ordered by the I. C. C. was seven per cent on carload lots and 10 per cent on less than carload lots. The order was issued as an emergency measure effective for a year only dating from June, 1935, and the accompanying writ cited the Georgia commission to make a similar increase for a like period.

After presentation of the carriers' case yesterday Chairman Jud P. Wilhoit, of the Georgia commission, recessed the hearing until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, at which time shippers will be heard.

CORPORATION CHARITY NOT TAX DEDUCTIBLE

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 10.—(AP) The United States circuit court of appeals for the fourth district today ruled that the privilege of deducting charitable donations from gross income by indivduals does not extend to corporations.

The court's decision reversed the United States board of tax appeals, which had permitted the Washington Evening Star to deduct Community Chest fund donations from its tax returns for 1929 and 1930.

The commissioner of revenue had appealed from the board's decision.

PAROLE ABUSE STUDY ORDERED BY PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Stirred by New Accounts of Weyerhaeuser Suspects.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 10.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today ordered a special study of "abuses of parole" after reading newspaper accounts of the story of the suspects in the Weyerhaeuser boy kidnaping on the Pacific coast.

From his Hyde Park home the president sent the following message to Attorney-General Cummings after scanning the afternoon paper reports:

"Newspapers report long criminal record in case of two men definitely suspected of Weyerhaeuser kidnaping, including not only arrests and convictions, but also paroles. Every decent citizen is interested in humane parole systems which seek rehabilitation of offenders but at the same time we should seek to prevent abuses of parole especially in cases of habitual criminals; therefore I am glad that you are having a special study made of those two cases investigating all facts relating to their previous records in every jurisdiction where they have been apprehended or paroled."

The federal organization of "G" men which is credited with the roundup of the kidnaping suspects was created by President Roosevelt to permit tracing of criminals across state lines.

The president has been interested in the abuses of the parole system both as governor of New York and as president.

The president spent the day quietly at home, motoring late in the afternoon about the family estate with the primary purpose of inspecting a new swimming pool.

This morning he worked on a huge stack of accumulated mail and reports.

Special telephone connection was maintained with the White House, but there was no sign of official action by the president. He has completed his list of recommendations to congress.

CAMPAIGN MAPPED ON PEACH DISEASE

U. S. Department Asks Fund To War on Phony Peach Infection.

The United States Department of Agriculture has filed application with the National Emergency Council for an allotment of $831,568 to cambat the phony peach disease in the south and in all probability at least $300,000 of that sum will be expended in Georgia, according to Erle Cocke, NEC director.

The $831,568 would be used in locating and destroying peach trees infected with the disease in Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina, Tennessee, North Carolina, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas and Missouri.

The project would utilize available local labor for removal of wild seedling peach trees growing in woodlands adjacent to commercial orchards and nurseries and for removal of abandoned and diseased trees.

Inasmuch as Georgia probably has more peach orchards than the other nine states combined, it is probable that at least $300,000 of the allotment will be spent in this state, Mr. Cocke said.

WEST POINT ACADEMY TESTS TO OPEN TODAY

Approximately 400 Georgia youths will report Wednesday to Fort McPherson, where examinations for appointments to the United States Military Academy at West Point will be given. The examinations will last three days.

Present authorized strength of the academy is 1,374. Each senator and congressman is authorized to have two cadets in the corps at any one time. In addition, the president appoints 60, the vice president 2; 40 come from sons of veterans of the World War, 20 are appointed as honor graduates at credited R. O. T. C. units throughout the country and 180 from the enlisted men of the regular army and national guard.

Under a bill recently passed by congress and sent to the president for his signature, the maximum strength of the academy will be increased to 1,959 and each senator and congressman given one more appointment.

4,000 ENTHRALLED BY GIPSY SMITH

Revivalist Tells Audience They Must Renounce Sin To Follow Jesus.

"If any man will come after me, let him deny himself daily and take up his cross and follow me"—with these searching words of Jesus, Gipsy Smith searched the hearts of the more than 4,000 persons who sat enthralled for nearly an hour last night in the municipal auditorium under the spell of the distinguished British preacher.

It was Monday night, always a severe test for revival meetings, but before sunset, a half-hour before the time for the services to begin, the people were quietly filling the spacious auditorium. Many of them had heard the Gipsy on Sunday, others had only heard about the radiant personality who had come to Atlanta to preach the old-fashioned gospel.

The song service ended, the people waited to hear the preacher. With his resonant voice—a voice that swells like a pipe organ's gentlest tones—he quoted the text. Again and again he quoted the text, letting its winnowing message fall clearly and surely upon the "good soil" of an unusually fine atmosphere.

Getting Right With God.

"Religion is getting right with God at any cost," declared the Gipsy. "You can't have peace in your heart if you have anarchy in your head. You can't hope to claim the promises of redemption until you meet the terms of Christian discipleship. Jesus does not ask men to be good on Sunday and live for the devil the other six days of the week. He will have all, or He will have none.

"Recently when I had preached the story of God's love for sinful men, stating the case as clearly as I knew how, over the British Broadcasting Company's nation-wide system on my seventy-fifth birthday, I received a letter from Dr. T. R. Glover, public orator of Cambridge University, in which he said:

"'Gipsy, I heard you preach this afternoon. Keep on telling the story of Jesus and love, and tell it all—tell sinful men that there is none other name given under heaven whereby men must be saved. Not money, nor fame, nor social prestige, nor yet any of these things can bring home to the hearts of men that peace for which we sigh—only the redeeming grace of the crucified Savior can atone for the sins of the race. Tell the story in all its fullness to the end of the way!'

"That is what I propose to do these three weeks in Atlanta—tell the story in all its fullness; and I tell you that if you are to know the full meaning of redeeming grace, you must be willing to part with some of the things that have been darkening the pathway of your life. You cannot follow Jesus unless you are first willing to give up the ways of sin."

Service for Children.

This afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the Gipsy will preach to the children at the auditorium. All children under 14 years of age are cordially invited to attend the services and personally meet the visiting evangelist.

The services continue throughout the week at 7:45 o'clock each evening except Saturday. Next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock he will preach especially to men. All seats on the main floor of the auditorium will be reserved for men. The Atlanta High School Choral Society will furnish special music. He will preach again Sunday evening at 7:45 o'clock. The services will continue through June 30.

ANN HARDING REVEALS CHILD KIDNAP ATTEMPT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—(AP) Ann Harding, motion picture actress, announced here today that efforts had recently been made to kidnap her six-year-old daughter, Jane.

The disclosure was made in an application to the state supreme court for a writ of prohibition to restrain a Los Angeles superior court from proceeding with a custody action filed recently by her divorced husband, Harry Bannister.

The application said "an attempt" had been made but no details were given.

Bannister's custodianship petition, the actress charged, is a veiled attempt to gain possession of one-half of her property.

To that end, she said, "he has repeatedly threatened to attempt, through court proceedings concerning custody of the child, Jane, and otherwise, to blacken petitioner's character and damage her reputation, particularly through making charges he knows to be untrue."

'Won't Run for Sheriff' Sturdivant Announces

Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant yesterday eliminated himself as a possible candidate for sheriff in the 1936 primary to succeed Sheriff James I. Lowry.

Sturdivant asserted he has the full co-operation of council's police committee, that politics is being eliminated rapidly from the police department and he felt he should give those who have urged him to seek the county post a definite answer.

The chief has been a member of the police department for the past 25 years.

"I want to thank those who so graciously offered me their support," he said, "but I feel I should remain at my job. I have a work to do for the city and am convinced I can better serve the pepole by remaining where I am than in seeking another post at this time."

TWO WOMEN INJURED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK

Two women were injured yesterday afternoon when they were hit by a truck as they dismounted from a street car on Bankhead avenue at Ashby street.

Mrs. William K. McGee, 47, of 623 Whitaker street, was admitted to Grady hospital with a possible fracture of the skull, and Mrs. Frank Donehoo, of Route 4, Atlanta, was treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises.

Both were knocked down by a truck police said was driven by A. J. Thompson, of Mableton, Ga. The street car was stopped while the motorman was changing the trolleys and Thompson said he thought every one had gotten off.

Police made a case of reckless driving against Thompson. He was given a copy of charges.

COURT DELAYS TRIAL OF MARYLAND WOMAN

ROCKVILLE, Md., June 10.—(AP)—Trial of Mrs. Anne Lyddane on a charge of conspiracy to murder was postponed today until Wednesday after one of the four men indicted with her pleaded guilty and another waived trial by jury.

The guilty plea was entered by John (Googy) Carnell, Rockville bartender who, the state alleges, was approached by Mrs. Lyddane with an offer of money for the assassination of her husband and Mrs. Josephine Beall, wife of a garage man.

John M. Boland, who the state says was brought into the alleged conspiracy by Carnell, elected to be tried by the three judges and the court proceeded with his trial immediately.

Ben Conyers, another graduate, will take the bar examination, as his entrance to the school at the winter term barred him from being admitted without examination under the terms of the law.

RELIEF RECEIVERS TO GET FIRST JOBS

Temporary Employment Not To Affect Later Chances, Says Cocke.

Persons now on the relief rolls may accept temporary employment without endangering their eligibility for jobs under the $4,880,000,000 works relief program, it was announced yesterday by Erle Cocke, director of the National Emergency Council for Georgia.

Rules governing employment under the program were contained in an executive order signed by President Roosevelt and received yesterday by Mr. Cocke.

Under the regulations persons registered with the United States Employment Service and on public relief in May will be given preference on jobs created by the work-relief program. Those becoming eligible for public relief after May 31 will be taken care of as occupational lists are exhausted, the order stated.

Elimination of hazardous grade crossings will probably be the first work-relief project to get under way, Mr. Cocke said. Approximately $5,000,000 will be expended on this type of work in Georgia.

INVESTORS SYNDICATE IN SALES CONVENTION

Large Increase in Georgia Business Reported at Session Here.

The annual sales convention of the Investors Syndicate of Georgia was held in Atlanta at the Ansley hotel Saturday with King Murphy, state manager, presiding.

Morning and afternoon sessions were devoted to business discussions and sales instructions. Addresses were made by Colonel F. L. Munson, Fort Benning; Herbert H. Browne, Waycross; H. S. Wootten, Milledgeville; H. J. Berry, Fitzgerald; George Y. Browne Jr., Augusta, and A. R. Pierson Jr., Jack Foy and Tubby Walton, of Atlanta.

In the evening Mr. Murphy was host at a dinner to more than 50 representatives and their wives and out-of-state guests in the rathskeller. Mr. Murphy stressed the splendid record made by the Georgia organization during the first five months of 1935, which was 102 per cent greater than for the same period in 1934.

Plans were made to increase the Georgia selling organization and definite arrangements were made to take care of what conditions indicate will be the largest volume of business ever attained by any southern state.

Mr. Murphy stated at no time in the history of the company has there been such a noticeable increase of business firms building business reserves and individuals setting up lifetime financial programs as during the past 12 months, which he stated indicated a healthy condition not only of American homes but American business as well.

DEGREES CONFERRED ON 425 AT UNIVERSITY

Dr. Works Sees Nation-Wide Move Toward Unified Control of Higher Education.

ATHENS, Ga., June 10.—(AP)—Degrees were conferred on 425 graduates of the University of Georgia today.

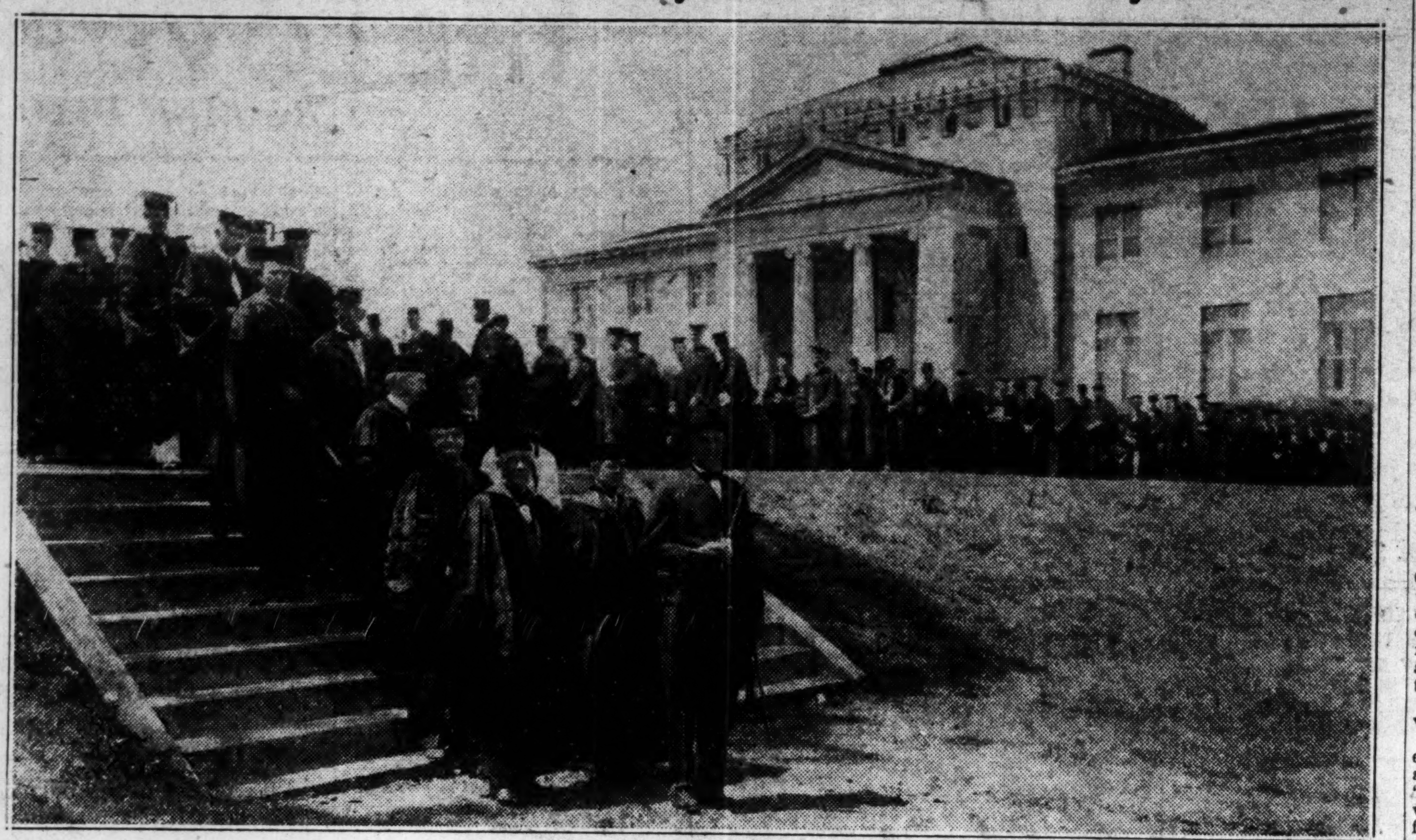
The graduates, according to 133-year-old custom, marched to the aged chapel building on the campus behind the sheriff of Clarke county, Walter Jackson, to receive their degrees and to hear a commencement oration by Dr. George Works, professor of higher education at University of Chicago.

Dr. Works, who aided in the reorganization of the University System of Georgia, said there was a nation-wide movement toward "unified control" of state systems of higher learning, similar to that completed in Georgia during the administration of Richard B. Russell Jr., as governor, when the university board of regents was placed in charge of all state colleges.

Central Control Seen.

The Chicago educator said the movement toward central control "seems to be one of the blessings that is likely to result from the depression."

Sheriff Leads Parade of University Graduates in Century-Old Custom



When the 425 seniors at the University of Georgia at Athens yesterday marched from Memorial hall to the historic chapel for graduation exercises, they were led by Sheriff Walter Jackson, shown in forefront. Dr. S. V. Sanford, president, shown at the officer's left, marched with his students the last time, as he is soon to become chancellor of the University system. (Associated Press photo.)

James H. Baxter, of Ashburn, was valedictorian of the senior class which graduated today.

Dr. Works said the trend toward unified control was evident "before the onset of the depression, but it has been accelerated by the financial conditions of recent years."

He said "one of the wisest steps taken by the legislature of Georgia in connection with the reorganization of the University System was that by which it placed in the hands of the board of regents the responsibility for determining what institutions should be continued as a part of the publicly-supported program of higher education, and the amount of money within the appropriation to be allocated to each institution."

He said the problems given the board of regents and the chancellor of the University System of Georgia are "numerous, and many are extremely difficult," and urged citizens of the state to show "patience and forbearance."

Discussing another trend in education, he said there was a well-defined movement to extend common schools in general to include the first two years of college.

"Lacking employment, young people have turned to schools and colleges to a greater extent than in earlier times. An examination of the census statistics shows that in 1930, of the persons 16 and 17 years of age, 57.3 per cent were in school as contrasted with 42.9 per cent in 1920: of those 18 to 20 years of age, 21.4 per cent were in school in 1930, whereas only 14.8 per cent had been only a decade earlier.

"The available data from all sources point in the same directions as those that have been quoted, viz., toward the elimination of youth from industry and the filling of the years that were formerly occupied with labor with educational opportunities.

"In these facts lies the justification for the view that the period of general education should be extended to include the first two years of what is still quite commonly called college. This change carries the implication that for the great majority of young persons attending junior college the institution will be a local one and its appropriate nexus is with the secondary school and not with the four-year college or the university.

High School Extension.

"This statement does not imply that no colleges and universities will offer the work of the junior-college period but rather that the great majority of young persons will get the opportunity for the prolonged period of general education through an extension of the public high schools. Nor does it imply that the state will not contribute to the support of junior-college education but rather that it will make its contribution in co-operation with local communities as is now the general practice in the maintenance of elementary and secondary schools."

MILLEDGEVILLE COLLEGE CLOSES 44TH SESSION

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., June 10. (AP)—With the awarding of degrees to 157 young women and collegiate normal diplomas to 135 others, the forty-fourth annual school tearm at Georgia State College for Women came to a close today.

The baccalaureate speaker, Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, told the graduates that the purpose of education is "to discover, to develop, to perfect and to utilize all forces of the universe for the good of the human race."

He especially emphasized new ideals in education. His theme was "Let's Not Capitalize Around the Present Good."

The baccalaureate sermon was delivered yesterday by the Right Rev. Henry J. Mikell, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Atlanta.

The summer school is scheduled to open at the college Wednesday.

Others' Opinions "Punch and Judy" Show.

SASSARI, Sardinia, June 10.—(AP) Premier Mussolini in another militant speech to his soldiers today asserted the "fascist will is a will of iron, ready to overcome any obstacle."

"The so-called opinions of other nations are only a ridiculous Punch and Judy show which will be burned by fascist ardor," il duce declared. "I assure you the battle will be continued for the progress of our nation, the good of our people and the honor of our flag."

WIFE OF BARRYMORE IS SILENT ON 'PRISON'

HOLLYWOOD, June 10.—(AP)—The divorce suit of Dolores Costello Barrymore against John Barrymore, was described today by the former screen star as her "last recourse in justice to herself and all concerned."

There was no bitterness in her voice as she spoke of her husband in the first public comment she has made since her suit, charging extreme cruelty and habitual intemperance, was filed.

"After all," she said, "Mr. Barrymore is the father of my two children. They have been brought up to love and respect him, and I know they always will."

She said nothing, however, about the answer to her suit filed Saturday by Henry Hotchner, Barrymore's business manager and co-defendant. It accused her of holding the actor a "virtual prisoner" aboard their yacht last year with women guards and driving him, by "mental cruelty" to flee to New York and England.

Joint Market Plan Solves Problem Of New ERA Farms in Effingham

SPRINGFIELD, Ga., June 10.—Co-operative marketing of agricultural commodities is providing a solution of some of the economic ills of more than three score Effingham county farmers working under direction of rural rehabilitation division of the Emergency Relief Administration.

Within the past week a group of farmers who were on federal relief rolls until a year ago, has shipped seven cars of Red Bliss Irish potatoes gathered from their farms. Four or five more cars are yet to be harvested.

Farmers on the rural program, as well as independent farmers in the neighborhood, have pointed to co-operative marketing as a solution to their sales problem.

Located 30 miles from Savannah, their nearest market, Effingham county farmers have for two or three generations cultivated small acreages—10 to 20 acres—about half of which has been planted to truck crops. Even heavy yields on small acreage have been inadequate for individual car loadings—the key to the nation's markets.

Federal farm supervisors, seeking to change that situation, mapped out a program which called for each family to plant from one to three acres of potatoes. Fertilizer and seed were bought in bulk and now the yield is being sold in carload lots when local truck and curb markets are not sufficiently strong.

Georgia is one of the first states to develop a farming program for rehabilitation families in which plantings are related to market demands. While there can be no insured net income from crops of a perishable or semi-perishable nature, the marketing procedure in the Georgia program has been mapped out as scientifically as is the production end of the business.

F. E. Keherer, experienced marketing man, is in charge of commodity sales for the FERA. E. P. Drexel is divisional director of the farm program for this section, and W. R. Tye is farm supervisor in Effingham county.

Other crops are being marketed similarly.

DRY WEATHER RETARDS GEORGIA TOBACCO CROP

Cool Weather Hurts Cotton Which Is Heavily Infested With Weevils, Report.

ATHENS, Ga., June 10.—(AP)—Tobacco plants have been retarded by dry weather in parts of south Georgia, and cotton has been delayed somewhat by cool nights, reports from county agents to the State Agricultural extension service said today. With normal weather in the next 10 days, however, tobacco growers expect good yields and good quality crops.

Beneficial rains fell in many sections of Georgia last week and generally stimulated crops, although delaying the harvesting of grain in the northern section of the state.

"Sections of the state are still dry, however, and rain is needed for such crops as tobacco, corn and truck," the extension service said.

"Cotton, which flourishes in hot, dry weather, has not suffered from lack of moisture, but cool nights have retarded the crop to some extent, the reports indicate.

"Meriwether, Peach, Tift, Bulloch and adjoining counties are the areas now where rain is needed most. North Georgia counties report good growing conditions generally.

"Cantaloupes, beans, watermelons and peaches are now moving to market in increasing volume, with fair to good prices being obtained. Yields of all truck and fruit crops are good, although the beetle is damaging the bean crop in Habersham, Sumter and other counties."

"Tobacco has been retarded on account of drouth in Bulloch, Wayne, Tift and other south Georgia counties, although conditions have improved following showers in the belt last week, county agents reported. With normal weather prevailing during the next 10 days, growers expect good quality and yield.

Widespread damage from boll weevils is reported, and the pest is now to be found in virtually every cotton growing county in the state, the summary said. County agents are recommending that calcium arsenate be applied immediately in order to prevent heavy emergence of the insect, and consequent losses to the crop later.

The allotment was made by Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator.

2 GEORGIANS NAMED FOR TEXTILE GROUP

Committee To Study Voluntary Self-Regulation in Industry.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 10.—(AP) A partial list of the southern cotton textile industry's committee on voluntary self-regulation was announced today by W. M. McLaurine, secretary of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

Authorization for the committee was given at a meeting last Friday of textile manufacturers, called to consider the situation created by abolition of the NRA.

Committee members already named are:

J. A. Long, of Roxboro, and Hunter Marshall, of Charlotte, for North Carolina; F. M. Beatty, of Greenville, and W. P. Jacobs, of Clinton, for South Carolina; J. H. Cheatham, of Griffin, and T. M. Forbes, of Atlanta, for Georgia; Scott Roberts, of Anniston, for Alabama, and W. B. Munson, of Dallas, for Texas.

McLaurine said an additional member for Texas and for Alabama will be selected. He is to confer with T. M. Webb, of Concord, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and George S. Harris, of Charlotte, chairman of the voluntary self-regulation committee, and selection of members for Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee and Virginia and of additional members for Alabama and Texas will be considered.

A resolution favoring continued observance of the regulations in the industry's former code was adopted at Friday's meeting and McLaurine said available reports this morning indicated the code provisions were being carried out without exception.

the resolution until he could get his committee together to try to work out an agreement.

Senator Borah proposed to Harrison an amendment to the house measure completely restoring the anti-trust laws. The committee chairman carried it to the conference but it was not adopted.

Borah and other NRA critics argued that if the administration was not planning to use the power to relax the anti-monopoly laws, as President Roosevelt indicated last week, the authority should be stricken from the law.

They felt that the reluctance of administration leaders to eliminate this section of the law was significant and indicated a possible intention to employ it in some way.

YOUNG BOY SUCCUMBS TO UNUSUAL POISONING

A rare type of blood poisoning resulting from a fall off the porch of his home caused the death yesterday of 6-year-old Bobbie Baty, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Baty, of 1068 DeKalb avenue, N. E.

A bone was bruised in the boy's leg and he was taken immediately to a hospital. First X-ray pictures revealed no fracture and he was returned home. Later the leg swelled and he was taken to a private hospital, where the bone was drained in an effort to save his life. The poisoning had gone too far, however. Witnesses at an autopsy performed by physicians declared the poisoning from the bone infection was of a rare type.

The boy is survived by his parents, four sisters, Misses Lois, Mildred and Dora Dean and Nellie Baty, and two brothers, Raymond and Frank Baty. Funeral rites will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Rock Springs Methodist church. The Rev. Leon Gilmore will officiate and interment will be in the Rock Springs cemetery with A. S. Turner in charge.

Frank F. Rossman Dies.

GOVERNOR SUGGESTS BALL'S FERRY PLAN

Talmadge Asks That Bridge Project Be Added to Some Future U. S. Aid Job.

MACON, Ga., June 10.—(AP)—Governor Talmadge today suggested that Congressman Carl Vinson and citizens "interested in the project" formally petition the Highway Department to add Ball's Ferry Bridge project to some future federal aid construction program.

The governor said he had received and answered a letter from Vinson in which the Georgia representative criticized him sharply for not initiating the bridge in the proposed $1,500,000 program submitted for approval by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads in Washington.

"I answered Vinson's letter and told him the Bureau of Roads did not have the right to initiate projects in Georgia, that it was a prerogative of the highway commission."

Max L. McRae, member of the highway board, charged Vinson and the federal bureau with delaying the construction program throughout Georgia.

"The arbitrary actions of Congressman Vinson and the bureau of roads," he said, "in holding up the program, trying to force the highway board to initiate Ball's Ferry bridge, is delaying work in every congressional district in the state. They are blocking projects that have a great deal more importance than the bridge."

The bridge would cross the Oconee river between Macon and Waynesboro, connecting Johnson and Wilkinson counties.

Talmadge said he "wrote Vinson with the suggestion that, if the citizens in his district were interested in the bridge, they go before the highway department for consideration and see if it would be added to some future program."

WALLACE TO "LOOK INTO" GEORGIA ROADS DISPUTE.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has agreed "to look into the matter" of Georgia's dispute with the Federal Roads Bureau which has blocked the state's enormous new road program.

The federal agency, according to well-informed sources, has refused to approve a Georgia highway project outlay of $1,500,000 because of the inadequacy of the state's highway department engineering force.

Governor Talmadge, however, replied with the assertion that the real cause for the bureau's position was the state's refusal to initiate a project calling for a $280,000 bridge at Ball's ferry in Representative Vinson's district.

Representative Tarver, democrat, Georgia, joined Governor Talmadge in charging the federal agency with "usurping" power of the state. It was upon Tarver's request that Secretary Wallace was brought into the matter.

TALMADGE DEDICATES STRIBLING MEMORIAL

10,000 Witness Official Opening of Bridge at Macon in Honor of Pugilist.

By JACK BATES,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

MACON, Ga., June 10.—(AP)—Georgia today honored the late William Lawrence (Young) Stribling, the Cracker state's most noted contribution to pugilism, by dedicating to his memory a $200,000 concrete bridge spanning the Ocmulgee river here.

Public officials, relatives and admirers of the famous young fighter, who met his death in a highway accident on October 3, 1933, joined in the ceremony.

10,000 Jam Bridge.

A crowd estimated officially at 10,000 jammed the bridge for the dedication, and heard Governor Talmadge describe the fighter as "an example of clean sportsmanship and stalwart manhood whom the state of Georgia and the people of Macon are proud to honor."

The occasion was flavored, too, with politics.

Besides being the principal speaker, Talmadge, critic of the Roosevelt administration, was introduced as "the first man to hold public office who paid any attention to his platform and to his private promises."

The introduction was by W. T. Anderson, editor of the Macon Telegraph, who lauded Talmadge for his open assault on the national policies and for "doing what he said he would do as governor of Georgia."

Anderson made light of the "protest meetings" over the state in opposition to the governor's national views.

"Governor Talmadge struck out to try to stop this mad house in Washington," he continued. "We all applauded his purpose. We might have been shocked at him for getting it out before we were prepared for it, but it had to come."

Governor Talmadge touched lightly on the national situation, confining his remarks mostly to the state.

Georgia, he said, has the finest roads and schools in the nation and is "fast getting out of debt." He expressed the hope this state would "lead the nation back to solid recovery" through the application of economy in government, honest labor and lower taxes.

Turning to administrative affairs in Washington, the governor scored "social security legislation" and said there "is no quack remedy to take the place of honest labor" in an indirect criticism of federal relief policies.

Mayor Herbert Smart was master of ceremonies. The unveiling of the Stribling memorial tablet was performed by two of his small children—Mary Virginia and Guerry Boone Stribling.

Came From Statesboro.

Governor Talmadge came to Macon from Statesboro where he urged teachers to take the Bible "and teach it in your classrooms," in a commencement address at the South Georgia Teachers' College.

The governor also told the graduates that the churches and teachers of the state must "wake up and teach our people how to deal with alcohol."

Governor Talmadge made no direct reference to the administration in his Statesboro address but said that the only hope for prosperity is through leadership "of the people with Christian hearts and educated minds."

SUIT MAY RETARD SMOKY ROAD WORK

State's Emminent Domain Right in Situation Is Questioned.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—Concern was expressed today that a legal question involving the right of a state to exercise eminent domain to acquire lands to be transferred to the federal government for park purposes may delay construction of the Shenandoah-Great Smoky mountains park-to-park scenic highway.

Representatives Weaver and Doughton, of North Carolina, conferred with the legal division of the Interior Department relative to the question raised in a suit brought against the Virginia commission of conservation and development by Robert H. Via, who owns an estate in the Shenandoah national park.

Solicitor Nathan Margold, of the Interior Department, has expressed concern over the case, which was recently tried in the federal court for western Virginia, resulting in Via's petition being dismissed.

However, Via has brought the case to the supreme court for final determination, and fears have been expressed it may delay work on the parkway for which the first bids—on a 12-mile link below the North Carolina line—are scheduled to be opened in Roanoke, Va., June 12.

Weaver, after the conference at the Interior Department, said it was probable the attorney-general will be asked by Solicitor Margold for an opinion for guidance of Secretary Ickes in the matter.

2 Held in Slaying.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 10.—(AP) Baxter Hunsucker, liquor runner, and Clifton Miller, his admitted companion of a week, were held here today charged with first degree murder in the killing of Mayes Hensley, 27-year-old roadhouse keeper.

Feel the exhilarating effect from the start

In many cases, an under-developed figure, sunken cheeks and listless actions are due to starved blood, nerves and tissue. Usually there's gas after meals, heartburn and acid indigestion. That's because excessive acidity in the stomach destroys the gastric fluids. Then food can't digest. Instead of nourishment, your body gets what comes from the fermenting mass. That can't do you any good.

Ask your druggist for a three ounce package of Placidan. Drink some water with a teaspoonful of Placidan in it several times a day, and especially before going to sleep. That wipes out the excessive acidity in your stomach. Food no longer ferments to form gas, give you heartburn and acid indigestion. You get up mornings feeling as fresh and peppy as the flowers outside your window on a spring morning.

By wiping the excessive acidity out of your stomach, it doesn't get into your intestines to constipate you and starve your blood, nerves and tissue. The gastric fluids are there instead, and the food you eat gives you the flesh you need to round out your figure, the color of health you want to look attractive, and the energy to be your gay charming self.

You have never seen anything like this before. Placidan will DO what you have been EXPECTING from the many things you have been taking, because it wipes out the cause . . . excessive acidity. Placidan is not a purgative. Contains no sugar.

IMPORTANT: Say NO if something else is offered to you as being "just as good". Insist on PLACIDAN. You have taken the substitutes before and they did you no good,

"I am only too glad to make further reductions on my cotton acreage should you deem it necessary. In fact, I am ready to plow up my entire crop at your request and would certainly appreciate it very much if you could get a bill of this nature through at once in order that I will have time to sow my cotton ground with something for home consumption."

TIFTON COLLEGE HOLDS UNUSUAL EXERCISES

TIFTON, Ga., June 10.—(AP)—There was no commencement orator today as Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College held its graduation exercises.

Instead, commencement visitors at the state college founded for the training of boys and girls who actually want to farm were shown what the college is doing.

The visitors went from place to place on the campus, viewing livestock exhibits, farm machine shop work, the dairy herds, and exhibits in field work, canning, forestry and home making.

As President George H. King, of the college, put it, the program was arranged to give visitors and patrons a demonstration of the work at the college, in the belief this would be more helpful and informative.

Get "B. C." in 10c and 25c packages, wherever drugs are sold.—(adv.)

"If you would guard your most priceless possession, take care of your eyes. Don't entrust them to "bargain glasses." Most spectacle bargains are boomerangs, because in the optical business those two elements of merchandising which make for low price but high quality, legitimate bargains do not exist. Hawkes, or any other good optician make each pair of spectacles to individual specifications. Each pair is made from quality materials, which are never available at distress prices."

THE LOVE FLIGHT

By JANE DIXON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Anne Austin, the family fortune wiped out in the crash, her mother dead and her father, a New York banker, a suicide, cannot bring herself to marry Craig Braden, blase scion of a wealthy family which moves in the same circles as did the Austins. A score of times she holds off his proposal, the last at a hectic house party given by the Bruno Beasleys. Down to her last dime, Anne becomes lady's maid to Mrs. Adolph Hoag, wife of a multimillionaire sausage king, whose bizarre Palm Beach estate is called Bois Joli. Anne takes the name of Anna Brent but Mrs. Hoag, whom the servants address as Madame, calls her Fifi. A fiery red-head, Madame revels in tempestuous scenes. Berta, a maid, is unwarrantedly jealous of Anne because of Carl Case, the handsome young chauffeur. Berta tries to hurt Anne with their employer. Anne likes Carl but avoids him, thinking there is something between Berta and Carl; then they meet unexpectedly at night in the gardens, the misunderstanding is cleared up and Anne is very happy as they sit together in the moonlight. While shopping, Anne meets Mrs. Beasley, tells her she is Mrs. Hoag's maid, not her guest, and swears her to secrecy so Bruno will not tell Craig. Dolph, Hoag's nephew, brings a party of young friends to Bois Joli. The hulking Dolph tries to make love to Anne and she is fighting him off when Hoag appears and knocks him down. While Anne is with Madame, Berta announces that a "relation" of Anne's is downstairs waiting to see her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

"I had no idea she'd come—here," Anne said suddenly, looking up from her notebook straight into the brooding eyes of madame. "I have deceived you, madame—about my name. It is Anne Austin. But I'm not Anne Austin, not any more. Not since I broke away from them—from Maida and the others. I'm Anne Brent—I want to be Anna Brent—I've a right to be Anna Brent. That other one—Anne Austin—is dead. I want to keep her dead. I want to bury her deep down where she can't come back to lie and to cheat and to sell herself to the highest bidder—"

Anne paused for breath. She had forgotten madame. She had forgotten Maida. There was only herself, Anna Brent. She wouldn't go back—and leave Anna—leave Carl—. She sobbed, quick frightened sobs that tore at her throat.

"Easy now, Fifi. Just you take it easy." Madame was uncomfortable in the face of such bald emotion. "No one's going' to pester you into makin' a monkey of yourself, not while you're under my roof."

Anne's sobs subsided. She ought to tell madame why she had changed her name, why she had thrust Anne Austin behind her and struck out blintly, hopefully as Anna Brent.

"I changed my name," she began, her eyes wide, staring into space," I changed it because—"

"Never you mind about that." Madame spoke almost harshly. "If you wanta change your name it's your own bizness. Far's I'm concerned you're Fifi. Go put some cold water on your face so's we can finish that list. It's gettin' on toward noon."

Anne rose obediently. Half an hour later she was in the blue car with Carl, bound on her errands. But Maida's visit had left her more than a little wan of lips and cheek.

'Heads up." Carl leaned close, spoke gently against her ear. She realized then that she had been drooping into silence, into an unawareness even of his presence while the scene through which she had just passed jiggled crazily through her mind.

"Oh—I—I was thinking," she said, lamely.

"Obviously." He smiled into her eyes, encouraged her to smile. "I could hear your mind ticking. "When her smile came he said, more soberly: "Mayn't I help?"

She shook her head. "Not—just—yet." She'd have to get to solid ground alone.

"I'll be standing by."

"I know. Knowing that makes me keep my head up."

It was the nearest that either of them had ever come to a confession of what was in their hearts.

That evening Madame dismissed Anne as soon as Anne had finished helping Bats with the toilet for dinner.

"You get out, Fifi," said kindly. "Go some place. Have some fun. You're too young to be moping. Bats'll clear up. I won't need you till morning."

It was Carl's night off. They would go places together.

Two days later Anne had an appointment, at 10 o'clock in the morning, at Chez Celeste to look over models of evening wraps lately arirved from Paris. She arrived early and was in one of the garishly repressed French salons leafing over a style magazine when she became aware of a rush of skirt, a round little exclamation of excitement—and Mrs. Bruno Beasley.

"Anne, darling!" Mrs. Bruno hemmed her in, gushing and twinkling. "I heard you'd be here, one of Celeste's clothes-horses told me. I simply had to see you. You're not angry with me, are you? Please don't be. I couldn't bear it. I couldn't really."

"Of course I'm not angry with you, Bee Bee," Anne said, wondering how she was to escape from her. "What is there to be angry about?"

Mrs. Bruno gave a gurgle of relief, very audible, as she meant it to be.

"Oh, about Maida, of course." She made a moue of distaste for Maida. "She showed up the same day I met you here. I guess I looked guilty. Anyhow, she got it out of me. She dug it out, bit by bit. I didn't mean to break my promise, Anne, darling, I didn't, really. But she made me see how dreadful it is—your leaving us all in the lurch and going off on your own all alone—ruining your whole life because you have some naive idea about work or something. I told her for your own good—I'd never have breathed a word otherwise—not a syllable. You don't mind? Do tell me you don't mind, that you've forgiven me for telling."

"It doesn't matter," Anne said, flatly. "Maida was bound to find me, sooner or later. She might have chosen some place other than Madame Hoag's own home, though, for her nonsense."

"I didn't know she was going. If I'd known, I'd stopped her—somehow. But now she's done it—you're coming back, Anne. You simply can't go on being a maid, a servant to that horrible old woman. Surely you can see you can't do that."

Anne went taut. Her head was up now, bristling defense.

"If by horrible old woman you mean Madame Hoag," she said, stiffly, "we can have nothing more to say to each other. Madame Hoag is my employer and my friend. She is one of the kindliest persons I know. I respect her and I shall go on serving her as long as she will have me."

"Darling." Mrs. Bruno did not bother to hide her impatience. "Don't be quixotic. It isn't done. You've carried this whim quite far enough. It's getting to be a bore, really. Maida's having hysterics all over the lot and Craig Braden's storming at Bruno and at me because we haven't done something about you all this time. Do stop trying to be odd and mysterious. We're all rather fed up."

Anne laughed. She had to laugh. As though they cared, actually, any of them. Mrs. Bruno cared, yes. She cared because Maida had hysterics and Craig Braden stormed. Hysterics and storms were upsetting. They dulled the appetite for pleasure, shortened the play hours by the length of their duration.

"I'm sorry, Bee Bee," she said, "about Maida and Craig. Why don't you put them out? Leave word you're not at home. After all, your house is not a stage. Let them do their acting elsewhere."

"But they're not acting, darling Really they're not." Mrs. Bruno switched back to her coaxing kitten metier. "Maida's completely bowled over—she's having her doctor down from New York—and Craig is so low he's pathetic. I can't see why you tantalize him the way you do, or why he allows you to do it. After all, Craig's not an ogre. He can have practically any woman he wants for the asking.

Anne made a gesture of dismissal.

"I've nothing against Craig," she said. "Nor against Maida either. It just happens Maida and I have never gotten along; we're antagonists. If they'll not bother about me ever any more, if they'll drop me completely, wipe me off their slate, I'm sure they'll be much happier, and so will I."

"Oh, well, if you're going to be like that, I suppose there's nothing to be done!" Mrs. Bruno was drawing away, imperceptibly but surely. Away from this pariah, from this queer pattern that refused, stubbornly, to be stamped in a mould every one envied and aped and strove to grasp for his, for her own. Didn't all the world strive after riches, and leisure, and laughter? Except a few queer ones. Better to let the queer ones muddle along in their own queerness.

This is what Mrs. Bruno was thinking as she dusted powder from her jeweled vanity onto the tip of her nose and ran a gold-encased stick over her lips. She didn't think as much in so many words because she was hot and parched, and Maida had routed her out "in the middle of the night" to go and reason with Anne. Instead, Mrs. Bruno dismissed her failure with: "Anne's an impossible little prig. If she'd rather fetch and carry for that old fright than be Mrs. Craig Braden and have everything—let her do it. I'm sure I don't give a rap, and Craig shouldn't either. He's lucky to be rid of her."

"Absolutely nothing to be done about it," Anne said with finality.

"Frightfully hot, isn't it?" Mrs. Bruno was at the door. Getting away from this stranger was rather awkward. "I'm going straight to the cabana and get into shorts. Goo'-bye darling. Sorry to have bothered you."

Anne sat in a dim corner of the salon trying to force her mind to sort out the relative merits of black velvet edged with ermine, of white velvet edged with lynx, of silver-grey taffeta self-ruched, of dull green satin with fringes that trailed—seaweed washed up on the sands at Seabeach.

"An original Jenny," the saleswoman was saying, undulating across the room with the self-conscious catlike sway saleswomen in sky-priced shops affect. "Designed exclusively for Celeste. Only one model. Isn't it too perfect?"

"Unusual," Anne conceded, "but not the lines for Madame." The newly arrived evening wraps from Paris were disappointing. Or was it herself that was looking at them with eyes sighted to disappointment. She felt irritable, disputative, on guard. People were always at one trying to persuade to their own advantage, trying to bend one's will. Mrs. Bruno, pecking at her. This saleswoman, fawning, insistent.

"You may send the green one," Anne said, rising, drawing on her gloves. She'd have to have another pair. These were soiled. Washable ones she could do herself. "I'm not sure Madame will like it."

"And the grey taffeta?" persuasively. "It's from Jenny, too, her best model."

"No. Just the green please," Anne, brusquely. She was not going to be salved and smoothed and slid into other people's wills. She was quite capable of making decisions without having oil poured on her head and rose glasses held to her eyes. And she would make them.

THE GILA MONSTER IS NOT AS DANGEROUS AS REPUTED FURBAY
BILL VENN

The gila monster, a poisonous lizard found in southwestern United States and Mexico, never voluntarily attacks human beings if it can run away, according to studies at the University of Arizona. Experiments show that this dreaded little animal is really not so dangerous as people think, and that it is very much afraid of human beings.

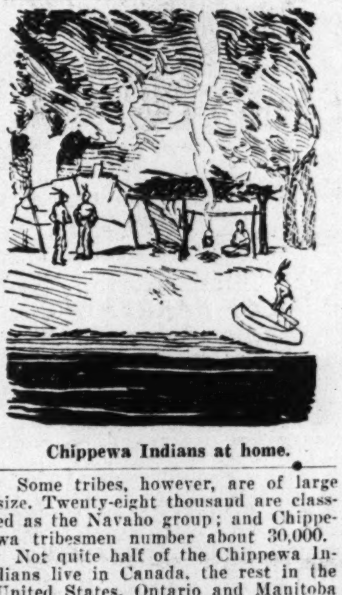
UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

OLD-TIME INDIANS.
II—CHIPPEWA TRIBESMEN.

Many Indian tribes have only a few hundred, or even no more than a few dozen, members at the present time. The Foxes, for example, number about 500, and the Iowa tribe contains less than 100.



Chippewa Indians at home.

Some tribes, however, are of large size. Twenty-eight thousand are classed as the Navaho group; and Chippewa tribesmen number about 30,000.

Not quite half of the Chippewa Indians live in Canada, the rest in the United States. Ontario and Manitoba contain many members of the tribe, and others dwell in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Kansas and Montana.

When French explorers came to the western Great Lakes region three centuries ago, they found Chippewa (also called Ojibway) Indians around the shores of Lake Superior, and north of Lake Huron—chiefly at Sault Ste. Marie.

The Chippewa folk belong to the great Algonquian family of tribes, and are woodland Indians.

Chippewa birch-bark canoes are among those which have been called "more graceful than any built by white men."

In setting up their homes, they were in the custom of placing poles in the ground so as to form a circle. Being of flexible wood, the poles could be bent at the top, and tied together. Then mats of grass or pieces of birch bark were laid over the framework. A hole was left so smoke could go out at the top.

Like other Algonquians, the Chippewa folk looked upon the sun and the moon as spirits or gods. They also stood in awe of lakes and rivers and certain animals. "Medicine men" of the tribe were supposed to have magical powers in dealing with the spirits.

The chief spirit was known as "Manibozho" or "Michabo" by the Chippewa and other lake tribes. He was said to have the form of a rabbit of huge size.

There was a general belief that both people and animals had spirits which lived after death. It was said that the souls of men went west after death, but could return to look at their own graves.

The food of the Chippewa tribe was largely fish, corn and wild rice.

Among Chippewa clans were the Reindeer, the Lynx, the Pike, the Crane, the Eagle, the Loon, the Goose, the Bear and the Beaver.

Graduate of 50 Years Ago Attends Commencement at Centre College

By Sally Forth.

WHEN the 1935 sweet girl graduate shouts fore! as she starts down the fairway of life this June, memories of another graduation are recalled by a beloved Atlanta matron. She is Mrs. Charles D. Tuller, who holds the happy days of her graduation as one of life's high moments. So dear is her Alma Mater in Kentucky that for the past ten days she has been in Danville attending the 112th commencement activities of Centre College.

It was in 1885 that Mrs. Tuller was graduated. One can easily understand why her attendance 50 years later would be packed with thrills, memories and many social compliments.

Mrs. Tuller is the former Mary Metchalfe, of Danville, Ky., and it was quite natural that she should enter Caldwell Institute for Girls in the famous old Kentucky city. Caldwell Institute and Danville's famous Centre College soon combined and now the institute is known as the woman's department of the college. The fact that Mrs. Tuller's father, C. W. Metchalfe, graduated from Centre in 1855 forms another tie to her Alma Mater. Each year the school bestows upon several former graduates the honor of a place in the college Hall of Fame. Last week when Mrs. Tuller attended her 50th commencement as a former graduate this special compliment was bestowed upon her.

The honor resulted in a double celebration, for in the Hall of Fame there is Mrs. Tuller's cousin, Mrs. Lloyd Frazier, of Johannesburg, South Africa, who also received the same compliment last week. Mrs. Frazier journeyed from her South African home for the commencement.

Mrs. Frazier is the former Adelene Wiseman, of Danville, and she has many friends here. She plans to visit Mrs. Tuller at an early date before returning to her home in South Africa to join her husband, who is a representative of the Standard Oil Company there.

When the former Mary Metchalfe married Charles Tuller she came to Atlanta for residence. Since that time she has been a beloved figure in Atlanta's social, civic and cultural circles. Both she and members of her family enjoy the friendship of countless Atlantans.

THE sparkling personalities of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac J. Osbun will be missed at the social gayeties scheduled for the next two weeks. Known to their more intimate circle of friends as Ada and Ike, this attractive pair has become prominent members of Atlanta's young married society since they established residence here several years ago.

Accompanied by their daughter, Jane, who is as popular with the younger set as her parents are with the older contingent, the Osbuns leave tomorrow for the east. Their first stop will be Princeton, N. J., where their son, Benjamin, graduates this week from Princeton University. Their younger son, Ben Mather, is a first year student at this renowned school.

The Osbun family will return to Richmond, Va., where they will attend the Southern amateur golf tournament. Sally hears that the father of this household, who looks as young as either of his sons, will be among the participants in the match. Should this be true Sally wishes the Atlanta golf enthusiast the very best of good luck.

Mrs. Osbun and Ben Mather will journey to Greenwich, Conn., for a week's visit before returning home. And Jane will hurry on to Detroit, where a round of good times await her as the guest of Mrs. Manly Davis at her home in Bloomfield Hills, fashionable suburb of the Michigan city. Sally wagers that Jane's hostess and other friends there will persuade her to prolong her visit. Should she do so it means that she will be delayed in reaching Rockbrook camp, Brevard, N. C., where she has enrolled for July and August.

INDICATIONS point to the remarriage of one of Atlanta's most prominent couples. More than a year ago they decided to pursue their separate ways, with the decision subsequently made permanent by the divorce court.

He remained in their palatial residence which is one of Atlanta's show places. She moved to other quarters. Their friends are hoping that she will be moving back again soon.

And she it was who intimated, at a recent party where both were present, that their marriage vows might be repeated.

Miss Mable Weck Becomes Bride Of Mr. Perkins at Liberal Church

The United Liberal church was the scene of the nuptial ceremony at which Miss Mable Elma Weck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Weck, was married to William Crossley Perkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Clifton Perkins, last evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. Aubrey Hess performed the ceremony, using the prayer book which the bridegroom's mother carried on her wedding day, June 17, 1902.

While the wedding guests assembled Mrs. Elizabeth Abbott Taylor played a musical program which included "Liebestraum," by Lizst; "Venetian Love Song," by Nevin; "Evening Star," by Wagner, and "Nocturne," by Chopin. "I Love You Truly" was sung by Robert Mell just before the ceremony, and Mrs. Taylor played "At Dawning" during the ceremony.

The interior of the church was a scene of floral beauty as arranged for the wedding. A bank of palms massed the rear of the pulpit, and adorning the altar was a mount of white gladiolus and lilies, out of which arose two sloping candelabra, each holding seven white tapers. Across the sanctuary rail was a mound of white gladiolius and asparagus fern. The entrance to the choir stalls was banked on either side with palms, in front of which stood floor standards topped with seven-branched candelabra. Huge white maline bows marked the pews reserved for members of the two families.

The ushers were William J. Draper, Dwight Horton, James H. Watkins, Louis L. Ferry, and Kenneth Campbell. They were followed by the groomsmen, John W. Weck, of Tampa, Fla., brother of the bride, and F. Stuart Gould Jr. The bridesmaids were Mrs. James Watkins and Mrs. Louise L. Ferry, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Elma M. Weck, maid of honor, preceded her sister, the bride.

The beautiful bride entered with her father, G. C. Weck, of Tampa, Fla. She was handsomely gowned in white satin made on princess lines with a long train. She wore a court veil of rose point lace, the dress and veil having been worn by the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. L. L. Ferry, on her wedding day. The veil was caught at the neck with real orange blossoms and extended full length of the satin train. The only jewelry worn by the bride was her paternal grandmother's diamond brooch. Her flowers were a bouquet of valley lilies and white roses. She carried a handkerchief of rose point lace which, like the veil, was brought from Brussels by the bridegroom's sister.

The bride's attendants were gowned in blue chiffon over satin. Wide satin sashes extended to the end of the short trains, and their slippers were blue to match the gowns. They carried bouquets of blue cornflowers in heart shape, surrounded with yellow snapdragons.

The bride's mother, Mrs. G. C. Weck, was gowned in pink lace and wore a shoulder bouquet of Joanna Hill roses and valley lilies. The bridegroom's mother was gowned in rose lace over yellow satin and her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of yellow roses.

After the ceremony Miss Elma Weck was hostess at a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bond Almand. Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Kenneth Campbell, J. Stuart Gould Jr., Collins Bird, J. S. Barnett, Bond Almand, and Misses Catherine Umbach, Corrinne Mills, Kathleen Jennings, Marianne Tiller and Jean Tiller. Mrs. Julian Havis kept the bride's book. The home was attractively decorated with quantities of summer flowers and palms. In the dining room the bride's cake was placed on a daintily appointed table.

The popular young couple left for a motor trip. The bride wore a gray wool crepe ensemble with navy accessories. Her hat was a Marion Vallee model of navy straw trimmed with purple pansies.

Nursery School.

Nursery school teachers of the Faith Public school, and Mrs. Clara Mae Wilhelm entertained in honor of the parents of the Nursery school children, on Friday at a party. These parents, with Mrs. Wilhelm as their leader, have used the Nursery school as their laboratory in a course in child care and training during the school year. Every mother of the 30 children enrolled in the Faith Nursery school has been an interested student. They have carefully observed in the Nursery school and studied with the Nursery school teachers and with Mrs. Wilhelm. They have in many instances successfully carried over into the home the approved Nursery school methods for the motivation of the physical, the mental, the social and the spiritual growth of the child. Mothers expressed regret at having the Nursry school disband even for a summer vacation. They realize from actual experience the value of the group environment for children. Teachers and parents gave a vote of thanks to the Federal Emergency Relief Association, to the state department of education and to the public school authorities. Most of all they wanted to express their appreciation to Miss Emma Wesley, the principal of Faith public school for her wholehearted and able assistance. As a feature, interesting and personality silhouettes of each Nursery school child had been cut from black paper and mounted upon bright-colored construction sheets. The silhouettes were presented to the parents, who had lots of fun hunting for the facial features of their children.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

Can a girl be in love with a man with whom she is always trying to start a row? This girl I go with says she loves me but I can do nothing to please her. For instance, when I leave early at night she insists that I don't love her or I wouldn't want to leave her. When I stay late she accuses me of having no consideration for her; because she must be up early to go to her job. Often in the middle of a conversation she gets up and turns on the radio. The last date I had with her I was in the midst of a story when she suddenly got up and walked away as though I weren't talking. I lost my temper and said some pretty harsh words to her. Most girls would have ordered me out of the house for what I said but she tried to ease me down, insisted that I come back the next night. Now please advise me how to go about handling her in a way to make her more considerate. We hope to be married sometime. H. L.

Answer:

The wise, gentle, kind Socrates had trouble managing his peevish, scolding wife, Xantippe, and it is not surprising that a young man should be finding it difficult to handle a young lady who has similar propensities. A bad disposition doesn't keep a girl from falling in love nor does her having a bad disposition keep a man from falling in love with her. When he does he cuts out trouble a-plenty for himself unless he learns to curb her. This particular young lady has given you the cue. Like every other of bullyish nature she respects the sound of her master's voice, becomes lamblike and docile when her bluff is called and accepts a well-administered rebuke with great humility. If you will read Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" you will have some good laughs while you are reading it and wind up with a neat, well-thought out program for making your Xantippe a model wife.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I have a good many worries for a young girl and I need somebody to help me. My father is a drunkard and my two brothers are also. You know we have an unhappy homelife. I cannot invite my friends to see me for fear some of the men will be drunk and embarrass me. I haven't education enough to get a job so the only thing for me to do is get married. This isn't easy because there are two men in the case. One from a fine family, honest, hardworking and holds a steady job. But he is so ugly that everybody makes fun of him. Number two is more attractive. He says he loves me but doesn't mention marriage. People say he is wild. Three years ago I had a love-disappointment and I don't want another. Isn't this a tough spot for a 21-year-old girl to be in? B. H.

Answer:

When we get in a jam in this life we imagine that any other predicament would be better than the one we are in. We dwell on the present misery and are sure no other could be comparable to it. We are willing to take any course that leads out—where, no matter. But, young lady, it is doubtful if any experience is so heartbreaking to a woman as to find herself married to a man she doesn't love.

There is just one good reason for her marrying at all: it is that she loves the man so much she can't face the future without him in the picture. Marriage for expediency, for convenience, for release from unhappy home conditions seldom leads to anything but woe. Stick it out at home until you are sure you have found the one you love and that he loves you. You evidently don't care for number one because you compare him unfavorably with number two. Number two doesn't care for you because he never mentions marriage. Your Prince Charming is yet to ride up.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

She is three inches taller, five years older and has had another steady for eight years. We work at the same place. I see her every day and then as often as four times a week in the evenings. Just can't see enough of her. She says the daily letters that are exchanged between her and my rival are now more a matter of habit than anything else. I believe she feels about me as I feel about her. My friends say she is too old for me. I can see that she is too tall for me but in spite of all this I am jealous for the first time in my life, entirely disinterested in the other girls and think of nothing else but her. Haven't I got a bad case? Let me hear what you think of such a match.

E. P. G.

Answer:

"Love laughs at locksmiths," goes gaily over a gulf of years, and relegates a rival to the limbo. Propinquity is her ally and between them they can do away with any disparity, dispel any doubt, smooth out any difficulties and transport the lovers into seventh heaven of delight. What are a few years or a few inches to love, the great magician? Nothing but obstacles to make her trick of mating man with maid more marvelous.

Death of Blue Crane Brings Arrest of 19

The death of a blue crane yesterday resulted in the arrest by police of 19 negro boys.

Officers said the boys killed the crane in Piedmont park and were attempting to kill other birds. Park officials called the police and the boys were taken to the juvenile detention home.

They were shooting the birds with rubber-band flips, using wire staples for ammunition.

Litsey—David.

CEDARTOWN, Ga., June 10—Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Litsey announce the marriage of their daughter, Marguerite, to Donald David, on May 19.

Butler-Holm Rites Solemnized At Lovely Afternoon Ceremony

The First Baptist church formed the setting for the nuptial ceremony at which Miss Grace Fenton Butler became the bride of Edward Anton Holm, of Chicago, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The Rev. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the church, read the marriage service.

A massing of palms and ferns across the rear of the choir loft formed a rich background for the pedestal baskets filled with pastel-shaded garden flowers. Placed at intervals among the foliage were tall floor standards topped with cathedral candelabra holding white waxen tapers. A mound of Dresden-tinted flowers centered the altar, which was flanked on either side by floor baskets filled with garden flowers. The pews reserved for members of the family connection were marked by large tulle bows caught with graceful showers of valley lilies.

Miss Frances Harley, soloist, and G. L. Hamrick, organist, rendered a program of music while the wedding guests assembled.

Miss Mary Jane Stephens, maid of honor, was an attractive figure wearing heaven-blue French lace, fashioned with fitted bodice and short puffed sleeves. The high neckline was finished with a tailored collar and tiny covered buttons formed a row down the front of the blouse. She wore a picture hat of blue organdy and carried pink roses, showered with pink sweet peas.

Mrs. Reuben Gunnell, of Nashville, Tenn., as matron of honor, wore peach-colored lace, fashioned like the gown worn by the maid of honor. She wore a picture hat of organdy and her flowers were cream-colored roses showered with sweet peas.

Miss Gertrude Holm, of Chicago, sister of the bridegroom, acted as bridesmaid. Her gown was fashioned of yellow lace, and was worn with a yellow organdy hat. She carried talisman roses.

The lovely young bride entered the church with her father, F. H. Butler, who gave her in marriage. Reuben Gunnell, of Nashville, Tenn., and Julian Rose served as ushers. James S. Brown, of Chicago, was Mr. Holm's best man.

Filmy white French lace was employed to fashion the bride's costume, which was cut on becoming princess lines and finished with a short cape of mousseline and lace. The long, graceful skirt extended into a short train. A small hat of tulle, trimmed in lace medallions, completed the bride's ensemble, and she carried an armful of gardenias showered with valley lilies.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors, with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Butler, receiving the guests with the bridal party. Mrs. Butler chose for the occasion a gown of pink crepe and pink picture hat. Mrs. C. E. Holm, of Chicago, mother of the bridegroom, chose blue crepe with a blue hat.

The church parlors were adorned with an attractive arrangement of multicolored garden flowers. Mrs. Miriam Gillespie assisted in receiving.

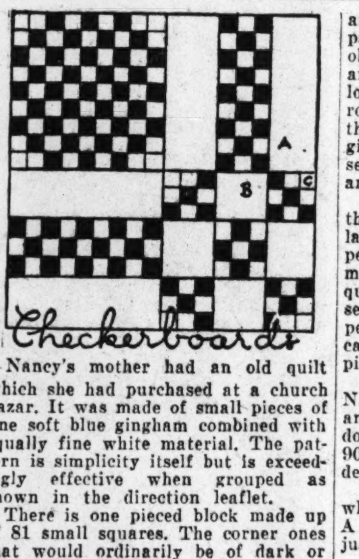
Mr. Holm and his bride will spend their honeymoon at Burnside Lodge on Burntside Lake, Minn. They will make their home in Chicago.

The bride traveled in a smart costume of brown chiffon, trimmed in yellow-dotted swiss and worn with a brown linen hat.

NANCY PAGE

Blue and White Checkerboard With Additions for Quilt

By FLORENCE La GANKE.



Nancy's mother had an old quilt which she had purchased at a church bazar. It was made of small pieces of fine soft blue gingham combined with equally fine white material. The pattern is simplicity itself but is exceedingly effective when grouped as shown in the direction leaflet.

There is one pieced block made up of 81 small squares. The corner ones that would ordinarily be of dark or blue material are of white. This takes away the square appearance of the pieced block. Then joining it on all four sides is a block of the same size. But it is made up of two plain strips with a pieced strip down the middle. This pieced strip has 27 small squares. In this case the dark blocks extend to the corner. These blocks are referred to as oblongs. Fitting these blocks and touching the 81 pieced block at the four corners only are blocks that consist of four white squares and five pieced squares, which are really nine patches. But in four of these a dark one is omitted at one corner. This whole block is referred to as a nine patch. The best idea of the arrangement may be obtained by studying the direction sheet which shows some of the various blocks pieced and put together.

There are nine of the 81 pieced blocks in the quilt, three to a row and three rows of them. The nine patch blocks are 16 in number. The oblongs are 24. The first, third, fifth and seventh row use nine patch oblongs. The second, fourth and sixth rows have oblongs and 81 piece blocks, three of these to a row. The patterns given in the sheet do not allow for seams. Be sure to add that allowance when cutting.

Nancy's quilt club members cut the pattern from cardboard. They lay it on the cloth and with a sharp pencil mark the outline. Then the material is cut one-eighth or one-quarter inch beyond this outline. The seaming or piecing is done on the pencil marks. In this way here can be no variation in the size of the pieced blocks.

Be sure to use color fast material. Nancy suggests four yards of color and five and one-half of white for a double bed size quilt, measuring about 90 by 96 inches. Use a white border.

Bind the edges of the quilt in white, having a binding quite narrow. A small piping of color might be put just inside the white binding.

The actual pattern for "Checkerboard" Quilt Design may be obtained by sending three cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution. Back patterns may be secured by sending an additional three cents for each pattern requested.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

All Is Not Gold That Glitters.

There is little difference between the playing technique of rubber bridge and that of duplicate. In each case every effort is made to win or defeat the contract and save or gain extra tricks. But in rubber play the declarer sometimes gets beyond his depth in the bidding.

In the hand below South was pleased with the final bid of six diamonds, especially when the dummy went down, as he could almost count 12 sure tricks. Here's the hand:

West, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1♡	Dbl.	Pass	1♠
Pass	2♠	Pass	3♢
Pass	4♢	Pass	4♠
Pass	4NT	Pass	5♣
Pass	6♢	Pass	Pass
Pass

The bidding is given as it actually occurred in the rubber game where the hands were dealt. The final contract is obviously justified by the cards, and it would have been made but for a fine opening lead by the West player, Theodore A. Dunst.

The Play.

West reasoned that unless the declarer held 12 solid top tricks, he would have to play for contract by increasing his trump tricks through heart ruffs. The normal interpretation of the bidding by North would place him with at least four spades, four diamonds, and with probably a singleton or void in hearts. On this reading East must have a singleton or void in spades.

West led a spade instead of the more obvious heart King hoping North held a singleton heart. If this were cleaned out before the heart ruffs were obtained, West could get in the lead to give East a spade ruff.

As the cards lay, this is exactly what happened, and declarer was helpless after the opening lead. He could not take out East's trumps without leaving insufficient trumps in dummy for the hearts. But now comes the strange part of the story.

The letter reporting this hand was sent to me a month ago and was placed in a file of similar letters for future consideration. On May 9 I discussed in the newspapers a deal played in a recent national tournament which was copied and reported to me at the time. This deal was in all substantial respects identical with the one above, which I have ascertained was dealt quite independently and at about the same time as the other. The only substantial difference was an interchange of suits.

On May 9 I gave the bidding to arrive at the proper contract of six clubs (the equivalent of the diamond suit above) and I added "the club slam is of course a laydown. The natural lead is the spade King (the equivalent of the King above)." An opening lead from his four-card suit, I said was difficult to see except at double dummy play.

Now Mr. Dunst comes along and makes me eat my words.

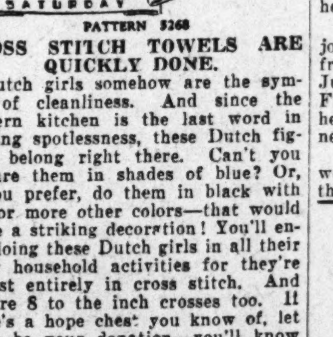
Household Arts

BY ALICE BROOKS.



PATTERN 5268

CROSS STITCH TOWELS ARE QUICKLY DONE.

Dutch girls somehow are the symbol of cleanliness. And since the modern kitchen is the last word in shining spotlessness, these Dutch figures belong right there. Can't you picture them in shades of blue? Or, if you prefer, do them in black with one or more other colors—that would make a striking decoration! You'll enjoy doing these Dutch girls in all their daily household activities for they're almost entirely in cross stitch. And they're 8 to the inch crosses too. If there's a hope chest you know of, let these be your donation—you'll know you've contributed something that is practical and lovely at the same time.

In pattern 5268 you will find a transfer pattern of seven motifs (one for each day of the week) averaging about 5 3-4 x 8 1-2 inches; illustrations of the stitches needed; color suggestions, and material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

BING CROSBY—Bing Crosby will blend his voice with a mixed chorus of 12 voices—a group featured with him in the new motion picture, "Big Broadcast of 1935"—in the final broadcast of his current series. The program will be heard over WGST from 8 to 8:30 o'clock tonight.

The offering of Bing and the chorus will be "Wished On the Moon." Both Bing and the vocal organization sing it in the new film. In addition, Bing will present as solo numbers, accompanied by Georgie Stoll's orchestra, "In a Little Gypsy Tea Room," "When a Gypsy Makes His Violin Cry," "You Saved My Life" and "Seeing Is Believing."

G. K. CHESTERTON—Gilbert K. Chesterton, one of England's greatest contemporary men of letters, will be heard in a 20-minute broadcast over WGST from 4 to 4:20 o'clock this afternoon.

Chesterton will speak in the studios of the British Broadcasting Corporation, in London, and his voice will be brought to the CBS audience in America by short wave. He is one of the speakers in the BBC's "Freedom" series, which has been relayed by the Columbia Broadcasting System during the past two months. These talks have been broadcast throughout the British empire as well as in America.

CBS will give the American radio audience one more of the "Freedom" speakers. He is George Bernard Shaw, noted author who, with Chesterton, H. G. Wells and the late Arnold Bennett, used to be known as the "Big Four" of British literature. Shaw will be heard on June 18.

ALL-WAGNER—Presenting an all-Wagner concert featuring excerpts from three of the composer's most famous operas, the San Diego Symphony orchestra, directed by Nino Marcelli, will conclude its present series of broadcasts from the Ford bowl at the San Diego exposition with a concert to be heard over WGST from 11 until 11:30 o'clock tonight.

Marcelli will open his program with the majestic overture to Wagner's opera, "Rienzi." This will be followed by the prelude to "Lohengrin" and, in conclusion, the stirring "Ride of the Walkuere" from "Die Walkuere."

"G-MAN" O'KEEFE—Smoke is going to get in Scotland Yard's eyes when Philo Pants, ace sleuth of Carnasie, played by Walter "Secret Service" O'Keefe, unleashes his pack of human hounds on a gang of international cookie stealers during the Caravan broadcast over WGST from 9 to 9:30 o'clock tonight.

The international cookie ring, with secret bakeries in Ireland, Scotland, and Russia, will be swallowed whole by Inspector Shamus Aloysius O'Shaughnessy, to be played hungrily by Louis Sorin.

While the sleuths are conferring, Annette Hanshaw will sing "It's Easy to Remember," and "I'm Living in a Great Big Way."

N. C. TEST IS SLATED ON LIQUOR IMPORTS

GASTONIA, N. C., June 10.—(AP) A test of the legal right of an individual to bring not exceeding four quarts of liquor into North Carolina from a wet state will come up in Gastonia city police court next Saturday.

Over the week-end Frank Honeycutt, Ervin Quin, Cell Johnson, Eula Reele and Clarence Broom were arrested by State Patrolman Carlyle Ingle, who charged them with liquor law violation for having a pint of liquor each, purchased at a York (S. C.) liquor store.

Whether the provision as to importation of liquor applies solely to the counties in the bill or to the entire state will be the issue in the cases here.

A temporary restraining order enjoining Green county, one of the 17, from holding a referendum on whisky July 9 was signed by Judge Paul Frizelle at Snow Hill Saturday. A hearing on making the order permanent was set for June 22.

Dry forces said similar action would be taken in all counties authorized to hold liquor elections.

Mr. and Mrs. Weinberg Celebrate 25th Anniversary at Reception

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Weinberg and son, James I., who received his M. D. degree yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Weinberg celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary last evening at their home on Linwood avenue, the occasion also marking the graduation of their son, Dr. James I. Weinberg, who received his medical degree yesterday morning from Emory University. During the reception hours a number of friends called to extend congratulations to the hosts and to bid farewell to Dr. Weinberg, who leaves next Saturday for New York, where he will be connected with the City hospital of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Weinberg were assisted in receiving by their son, Dr. Weinberg, and their daughter, Miss Regina Weinberg. Others receiving were Mrs. Morris Tessler, of Palm Beach, Fla.; Miss Heloise Eleckner, of Tampa, Fla., and Miss Selma Moore, of Carrollton, Ga. Mrs. Weinberg wore a handsome gown of yellow chiffon posed over satin to match and embroidered in a silver rose design. Her shoulder bouquet was of talisman roses. Miss Regina Weinberg's gown was fashioned of flowered chiffon with which she wore a shoulder cluster of talisman roses. Mrs. Tessler was attired in aquamarine colored crepe and her shoulder spray was formed of pink rosebuds. Miss Eleckner's gown was fashioned of yellow striped organdy and her shoulder spray was of valley lilies. Miss Moore wore pink mousseline de soie with a shoulder bouquet of pink roses.

Assisting in entertaining were Miss Ada Galanter and Misses Sylvia, Dorothy and Marion Mendel. An attractive arrangement of cut flowers, palms and foliage plants prevailed in the rooms where the guests were received. In the dining room the table was overlaid with an exquisite lace cover and graced in the center by a beautifully embossed cake topped by the tiny figures of a bride and groom which were the same pair as used on the wedding cake at Mr. and Mrs. Weinberg's wedding 25 years ago. Encircling the cake were myriads of tiny silver balls and silver candelabra holding gleaming pink tapers added to the beauty of the table appointments. Included among the guests were members of Emory University's graduating class who received their medical degrees yesterday.

BLACK-DRAUGHT YEAR AFTER YEAR

While other laxatives have come and gone, increasing numbers of men and women have continued to use the old reliable, purely vegetable Black-Draught.

For twenty years while he lived in Tennessee and for twenty years more since he moved to Oklahoma, "Black Draught has given me satisfaction," writes the Rev. J. B. Tedder, of Spiro, Okla. "I take it for gas and when I have a bloating feeling after meals.* . . . I could write a'l day and not tell all the benefits I have had in the past forty years while using this good, reliable, family medicine."

*Black-Draught is recommended for this when due to constipation. Try it in your family next time a laxative is needed.—(adv.)

Miss McElroy Becomes Bride Of Mr. Fowlkes at Church Rites

Miss Anna Elizabeth McElroy became the bride of Samuel Hurt Fowlkes Jr., at a beautiful and impressive ceremony yesterday afternoon at All Saints Episcopal church. Rev. W. W. Memminger, rector, performed the ceremony at 5:30 o'clock in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends of the young couple.

A profusion of rich greenery combined with tall pedestal baskets filled with pink and white flowers and standards topped with Easter lilies were used as the effective decorations in the church. On either side of the altar cathedral candelabra held white burning tapers. Prior to and during the ceremony a program of nuptial music was rendered on the organ by Joseph Ragan.

Miss Thyrza Ellis was maid of honor and Miss Jane Daley, sister of the bride, was the junior bridesmaid. The former wore a lovely gown of blue mousseline de soi and wore a large leghorn hat trimmed in pastel shaded garden flowers. Her flowers were pink roses. Miss Daley wore a becoming model of yellow organdie and carried a nosegay of vari-colored garden flowers. Frank Florence and Allen Davis were the ushers. Entering with her grandfather, Joseph Willingham, by whom she was given in marriage, the bride was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Bacon Hale.

She was a beautiful figure in her becoming afternoon dress of pink lace fashioned along simple lines and worn with a short jacket with long tight sleeves. The skirt was floor length and ended in a slight flare effect. She wore a large pink horse hair hat to match her costume. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of snapdragons, roses and daisies.

Mrs. Frank Daley, mother of the bride, wore blue crepe combined with white. Her hat and other accessories were of white and she wore a shoulder bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Joseph Willingham, maternal grandmother of the bride, was gowned in flowered chiffon of blue and white and a black hat. Her flowers were gardenias. Mrs. William McElroy, of Norcross, paternal grandmother of the bride, was gowned in gray georgette trimmed in lace. Her flowers were lavender sweet peas. Mrs. Crawford Curley, sister of the bride, wore flowered chiffon with a large leghorn hat trimmed in garden flowers. Her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Samuel Hurt Fowlkes Sr., mother of the bridegroom, wore pink crepe with hat and other accessories to match. Her flowers were pink roses and lilies of the valley.

During the evening Mr. Fowlkes and his bride left for a wedding trip to Florida and Cuba. The bride traveled in a becoming model of navy blue crepe combined with a lighter shade of blue. Her accessories were navy and she wore a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Upon their return to Atlanta Mr. Fowlkes and his bride will be popular additions to the younger married set.

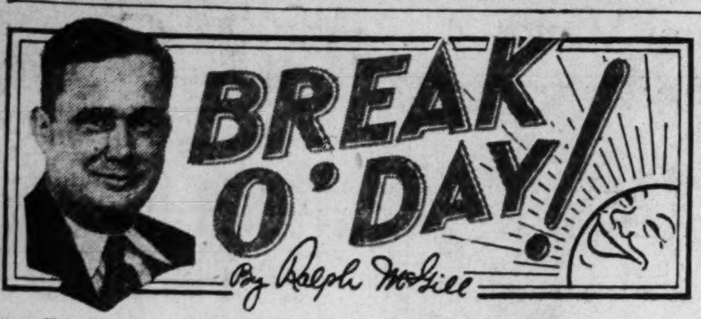
Crackers Win Second From Chicks, 6-2, And Lead by One and One Half Games



Edward Moore, clad in white ducks and an old sweat shirt, had the batting cage pulled up far down back of first base and was taking his own personal batting practice.

Later in the clubhouse he displayed a pair of blistered hands but he is determined to start banging out some base hits and lead the club in a drive which will take it far out in front.

I visited with the Crackers in the clubhouse as they prepared for the game. They were dressing leisurely, gossiping of this and that. Trainer Johnny Shores was busy with a few muscles requiring his personal attention. There was no excitement.

The club, it seems, is not alarmed about the future. Eddie Moore very wisely isn't going to be stampeded into trading off valuable ball players who happen to be in a slump. He has found, I think, the explanation to a query which is asked in our town with more or less frequency.

Ball players have appeared with the Crackers and failed to hit much better than the size of their hats. And then gone to other clubs and batted well above .300. And the query has been as to why this happens. It has happened here because impatient and jittery managers and owners have been unwilling to keep a player long enough to give him a chance.

Moore very wisely is stringing along with the team which has dominated the league despite slumps and injuries.

A very wise little gent, our Mr. Edward Moore. He's learning the managing job with quite a lot of celerity. And keeping a balanced head while so doing.

PIPGRAS COMES BACK.

George Pipgras is coming back to Nashville, Tenn-O-See, for a try at pitching baseball for those Vols.

It was 10 years ago that Bert Niehoff decided that George Pipgras was too wild to pitch for the Atlanta Crackers. So he washed his hands of him and Jimmy Hamilton, who was managing those Vols, decided that George Pipgras couldn't be any worse than the pitchers he had and so he signed the aforementioned Pipgras.

And it was one of the stories of the year that George Pipgras became the leading pitcher for Nashville, winning 19 games that year. He was particularly vicious toward the Atlanta Crackers, beating them almost every time he faced them that year. And Jimmy Hamilton never neglected to throw him in there when the Crackers were the foes.

It was one mistake which caused Bert Niehoff great mental anguish because Pipgras went on winning and the Yankees took him and he became one of their best throwers.

And so now he is completing the cycle and coming back to the bushes once more. His arm has been dead, so to speak, for two years but he hopes to make another start at Nashville where he found himself and his control in 1925.

It would be extremely odd, and also very painful, if it were to develop that George Pipgras still had his old mastery of the Crackers.

Ten years is about the average span of a major league pitcher. And if you care for an illustration of how fast they age in baseball, it may be noted here that George Pipgras is 35 years old and is, so far as major league baseball is concerned, an aged and feeble old man for whom they have no more use.

A CHANCE FOR PITTS.

In New Orleans George Westfeldt is a prominent businessman and an esteemed citizen. He serves as president of the board which governs the Boys' Home, a home for destitute boys. It was there that Edwin (Alabama) Pitts got a start. And Westfeldt supplies an interesting letter concerning they boy who is seeking a chance in baseball after serving a term in Sing Sing prison.

Writing on stationery of the Boys' Home, he says:

"You know me only as being interested in the Tulane Athletic Council, which I mention on account of the above heading of an institution that is over 100 years old and, I suppose, run along very narrow but successful lines!

"Bill Keefe's quotation of your remarks as regards Pitts struck me as good indeed, not only from the point of view of Pitts himself, but also from the thought of giving a man a chance after he has been down. This Edwin Pitts was raised at the Boys' Home; was a good boy, but got into bad company, just as you said, and let the 10-cent cabarets and bright lights, coupled with 'girls,' get him in bad. Our superintendent and I are sure he was not bad at heart and we feel that had Edwin been lectured and given a suspended sentence, and paroled to some responsible person, he would today be an honored citizen, for he has it in him.

"On the other hand, there is no reason why he should not be honored anyhow, after what he has been through, and I want you to know I am with you in anything we can do towards getting after the proper authorities to give the boy a chance, be it in baseball or anything else, although it does seem that with his ability in baseball he should be helped. With that in view, I enclose an extra copy of this letter so that you may send it wherever you think it would be most useful.

"With kind regards,

"Yours very truly,
"GEORGE D. WESTFELDT."

There is no need to become maudlin over Alabama Pitts' case. But the spectacle of grown men, judges and lawyers, seeking to "protect" our innocent little ball players from contact with a man who has paid in full his debt to society, is most inane. Other ex-convicts have played in organized baseball. And perhaps there are some in the ranks today. Pitts' chief sin seems to be that he had publicity. If baseball refuses him his chance it will have done a very reprehensible thing.

Sears Officials Are Hosts to Crackers at Chicken Dinner

The Atlanta Crackers, who are leading the league by a game and a half again after defeating the Memphis Chicks, 6-2, yesterday, were guests last night of the Sears-Roebuck Company officials at a fried chicken dinner given at their store which is just across the street from the ball park. The Crackers are looked upon as "neighbors" by the Sears people, and Harry Taylor, the club's injured first baseman, is now employed there. In the photo above, the guests and their hosts are shown seated around the banquet table. In the center of the photo (seated) are, left to right: Earl Mann, the Cracker vice president; J. C. Grabbe, Eddie Moore, manager of the Atlanta club; Paul D. MacQuiston, manager of the Sears retail store; Olin Bass, Charley Soutter and J. R. Brookshire. The Crackers also were shown a fishing film. SEARS HONORS CRACKER TEAM

Paul D. MacQuiston Presides at Chicken Dinner; Films Shown.

The Atlanta Crackers, who are on top of the Southern league, looking down on their opponents for the first time in years, last night were the honored guests of their neighbors, the Sears-Roebuck Company officials, at a chicken dinner, following a private showing films from outdoor life.

The Sears' store is located directly across the street from the ball park. Many of the company's employes and officials are among the Crackers' most ardent supporters and Harry Taylor, the club's first baseman who broke an arm several weeks ago, is employed in the store's sporting goods department.

Paul D. McQuiston, manager of the Sears' retail store, presided at the dinner and was introduced to the guests by Ralph McGill. Manager Eddie Moore, Vice President Earl Mann and virtually all of the Cracker players were present, along with newspapermen.

Following the meal, the guests were treated to three excellent full-length films, depicting fishing scenes in Canada and the Bahamas and one of duck shooting.

Other officials of the Sears' company present were:

Phil Crowder, J. C. Grabbe, Charley Soutter and J. R. Brookshire.

PIRATES SLUG, REDS LOSE, 14-1

PITTSBURGH, June 10.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates let loose with a remarkable exhibition of home run hitting today as they cracked out five circuit drives, three of them in succession in the eighth inning, to defeat the Cincinnati Reds, 14 to 1, in the only game played in the major leagues.

The Bucs' home run barrage in the eighth lacked only one of tying the major league record. Paul Waner started the bombardment by driving the ball into the upper deck of the right field stands. Arky Vaughan plunked one into the same section for his second homer of the day and Pep Young cracked the ball to the center field fence. The result was seven runs before Benny Frey, who had relieved Al Hollingsworth, was able to stop the attack.

GRANT FACES PARSONS TODAY

All Favorites Advance Into Second Round of Southern Tourney.

By Kenneth Gregory.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 10.—(AP)—Favorites survived the opening round of play as one of the largest and fastest fields ever to compete in the southern tennis tournament set out today to challenge the reign of Champion Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta.

Not a single upset went on the boards in the first round elimination process of the golden jubilee meet of the Southern Lawn Tennis Association at Belle Meade Country Club.

Grant, winner of the title six times in the last eight years, starts defense of his crown tomorrow in a second-round match against Pollard Parsons, of Nashville. The diminutive Atlanta star, seeded second to Berkeley Bell, of New York, drew a first-round bye along with the latter, J. Gilbert Hall of New Jersey, seeded No. 3; John McDiarmid, of Chicago, seeded No. 4, and Robert (Lefty) Bryan, of Chattanooga, Tenn., seeded No. 5.

The other seeded stars, Martin Buxby, of Miami, Fla., student at the University of Texas; Billy Reese, of Atlanta, captain of the Georgia Tech team, and Hal Surface, Kansas City luminary, came through victorious in their initial matches.

SPRAINS ANKLE.

Young Buxby entered the second round by virtue of a 6-3, 6-3 triumph over Frank Pittman, of Nashville, and was prevented from starting his next match with Dempsey Weaver, of Nashville, because of a slightly sprained ankle.

Ine one of the closest and hardest-fought matches of the day, Reese eliminated Joe Folk, of Nashville, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, and went into the third round, since both had drawn initial byes. He clashes with Guy Cheng, of China, a member of the Chinese Davis cup team, in the next round. Cheng advanced at the expense of Bob Bogart, of Knoxville, who defaulted, and a 6-1, 6-4 victory over Tate Huggins, of Nashville.

Surface had little trouble in disposing of his first opponent, Bob Alexander, of Nashville, 6-2, 6-1, and faces Bob Dickson, of Jacksonville, Fla., who advanced by default, in the second round.

In his first match Bell goes against Carl Smalley, of Austin, who eliminated Fernandez Morrell, of Havana, 6-2, 6-4, while Hall clashes with Frank Rericha, of New York, 6-0, 6-3, conqueror of Kent Boyle, of Gainesville, Fla.

McDiarmid's opening opponent is Jere Whitson, of Cookeville, Tenn., who eliminated Dan Ross, of Clarksville, 8-6, 6-3, and Bryan meets Barney Smith, of Knoxville, who triumphed over Frank Lyne, of Nashville, 6-0, 6-3.

RICE STAR ADVANCES.

Wilbur Hess, of Houston, bespectacled racquet wielder from Rice Institute, marched into the third round with a pair of victories, brushing aside W. K. Holt, of Macon, Ga., 6-0, 6-0, and Charles Evans, of Nashville, 6-1, 6-1.

Blond-haired Ramsey Potts Jr., of Memphis, former southern junior champion, coasted to easy triumphs over Jack Beadles, of Nashville, and Emmett McKenzie, of Macon, Ga., by scores of 6-0, 6-3 and 6-1, 6-1, respectively, to enter the third round.

Arthur Hendrix, of Lakeland, Fla., reached the third round with a 6-2, 6-2 win over M. J. McLaney, of Baton Rouge, La., and a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Charlie Jenkins, of Nashville.

In addition to Cheng, two other members of the Chinese Davis cup team handed defeats to two opponents each. Captain Lewis D. Carson, former Michigan State athlete, eliminated Robert Blum, of Nashville, 6-0, 6-2, and Hamilton McLesky, of Nashville, 6-0, 6-3 Sin Kie Kho defeated Joe Davis, of Nashville, 6-1, 6-0 and duplicated that score against Leonard Stamps, of Nashville.

Ernest Sutter, recent winner of the Memphis invitation tournament, also advanced to the third round by whipping Nathan Woodruff, of Nashville, 6-3, 6-1, and Walter Lavender, of Knoxville, 6-3, 6-2.

IRON-MAN HURLER.

The last big league pitcher to hurl and win two complete nine-inning games in one afternoon was Emil Levsen, who turned the trick for Cleveland against Boston on August 28, 1926.

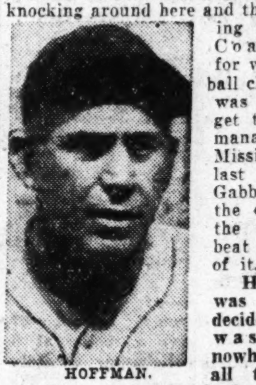
Hoffman Gets a Break After 23 Years in Game

Memphis Manager Now Enjoying Ambition of Catching and Managing a Ball Club.

By Jimmy Jones.

Life, for Freddy Hoffman, the manager of those Memphis Chickasaws, isn't exactly beginning at 40, for he's been around in baseball quite a spell. But from a managerial standpoint, it has suddenly taken on a very bright future.

Hoffman, who actually observed his fortieth birthday yesterday, was the second-string catcher for the New York Yankees back in the pennant years of the late Miller Huggins and probably would have been the first-string catcher but for the presence of Wally Schang, then at his peak.



HOFFMAN.

Since that time Hoffman has been knocking around here and there, catching in the Coast league for various ball clubs. He was in line to get the job of managing the Missions club last year but Gabby Street, the ex-boss of the Cardinals, beat him out of it.

Hoffman was about to decide that he was getting nowhere and all the baseball knowledge that he had picked up through the years wasn't go- to do him much good, until last winter at Louisville, Ky. There he ran into Tom Watkins, owner of the Memphis club, who was shopping around for a manager to replace "Doc" Prothro, who had gone over to Little Rock.

Watkins wanted an old catcher to handle young pitchers and one who could catch maybe 30 or 40 games in the Southern league.

PLAY AND MANAGE.

"I can catch 50 or 60 games for you and manage your ball club besides," the confident, outspoken Hoffman told him. The upshot was that Watkins gave him the job.

Now we find Freddy Hoffman, in his first year as a manager, pushing for the top with a team that was rated no better than third at the season's start. He had a lot of young players, especially pitchers, and a little punch in Joe Hutcheson and Andy Reese to start with.

But Hoffman took hold and by aggressive, inspiring leadership, has succeeded in getting a maximum of effort out of his men. He had a ball player on his club who was a star and quite a favorite with the fans, but who was, unfortunately, what is known as a bad actor.

CAUSED TROUBLE.

This player began causing trouble from the start, with a flagrant disregard of training rules and causing Hoffman a lot of grief and worry generally. It took a lot of courage to get rid of him, but finally Hoffman made up his mind to do it and sink or swim on his convictions.

After disposing of the player, the Chickasaws dropped six straight games and the wolves began howling for the scalp of the chief of the Chickasaws. These were dark days for Freddy Hoffman with catcalls and boos floating down from the grandstand and insulting telephone calls coming in from friends of the deposed player. But Hoffman stuck to his guns with true Dutch stolidity and wouldn't let the player get back in uniform.

He went back of the plate himself to do the catching and sent Powell, who had been doing the receiving to the outfield.

Then Hoffman got a break in the form of a trade. He got two ball players, Johnny Watwood, an outfielder, and Ollie Marquardt, infielder, from Syracuse in return for the recalcitrant player.

Then the Chicks began to pick up and won seven straight. Fred-

Bobby Jones Ill, Faces Operation

NEW YORK, June 10.—Bobby Jones, who came to New York after attending the United States open golf championship at Oakmont last week as a sports writer, has been confined to bed at his hotel here. He told friends he expected to undergo an operation for appendicitis on his return to Atlanta.

The golf star's illness is a recurrence of the attack that caused him to cancel his appearance in a Memorial Day exhibition match, when he was to have been paired with Miss Joyce Wethered, British woman star, against Gene Sarazen and Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare.

THOMAS GIVES BUT SEVEN HITS TO TAKE GAME

Hooks, Chatham, Oana Lead Attack With Barrage of Hits.

By Jimmy Jones.

The second round of the battle between our Crackers and the Chickasaws for first place offered quite a contrast to that of Sunday and ended decidedly more satisfactorily from a home angle.

With young "Bud" Thomas cashing in his ninth victory of the season, the Crackers came back to hand Freddy Hoffman's ambitious outfit a 6-2 thumping and put themselves back into the lead by a game and a half, which position they held when the Chickasaws came to town.

Thomas' fine pitching—he turned in seven scoreless and hitless innings—and the timely and vigorous rapping of two Memphis' pitchers, Butzman and Carter, left the good Monday crowd of 1,800 glowing warmly and set the stage perfectly for another capacity crowd tonight when the teams hook up in a ladies' night game, starting at 8:30.

FULL OF FIGHT.

The game of yesterday prove that the Crackers have a fighting ball club and that they aren't going to curl up just because they had a bad road trip and dropped a few ball games they should have won.

Thomas, who lost two tough games by one run each to New Orleans and Birmingham on the road last week by scores of 2-1 and 4-3, respectively, came back with a fine performance. He gave the hard-hitting Memphians just seven hits, three of which came in the first inning when they got their two runs, and struck out four men to keep pace with Harry Kelley in the matter of victories.

The two now are tied for the staff leadership.

The Chickasaws started out as if they were going to take the Crackers apart and had the crowd horrified for the first inning.

MARQUARDT TRIPLES.

Marquardt, first up, slapped out a triple and immediately scored on Farrell's fly to left center on which Manager Eddie Moore made a dandy one-handed running catch. Hooks made a nice play to retire Joe Hutcheson, but Willie Duke followed with a single to center, stole second and scored the second run on Andy Reese's single to right.

Thomas tightened up after that inning, however, and the Chicks didn't get another hit off him until the sixth. They got men on bases all right and filled them up in the sixth with one out on Reese's double, Watwood's walk and Benning's scratch to short. Hoffman sent Kintina in to hit for Butzman after Powell had

COMMITTEE BARS 'ALABAMA' PITTS FROM BASEBALL

Manager Evers Says He Will Quit If Judge Landis Upholds Ruling.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 10.—(AP)—Two potential avenues of entry into professional baseball—and apparently the only two—were opened tonight to Edwin O. "Alabama" Pitts, whose contract with the Albany club of the International league was declared void today because he is an ex-convict.

General Manager Johnny Evers, of the Albany club, the former Sing Sing football star's most ardent supporter, made plans tonight to ask Governor Herbert H. Lehman to give Pitts a full pardon. At the same time the club prepared to appeal directly to Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, to overrule today's ruling of the executive committee of the National Association of Minor Professional Leagues.

In the event that Pitts is not granted the right to take his place in the Albany outfield Evers said today he would quit the game in which he has been a national figure for more than a quarter of a century.

"I will retire from baseball. I know this is a broad statement but I

It Required Four Quarters But King Snake Won Match

By Jack Troy.

"C'mon and fight," said the black snake, pugnacious like.

"Go away, my frand," responded the king snake. "This is no time for frivolities, my frand, and, besides, I am sleepy. Go away before I eat you alive."

The word got around at the James L. Key golf course that Jeff Modie's king snake was on the defensive and that a black snake, having somewhat of an advantage in reach, was getting set to pin its ears back, or vice versa.

Roscoe, the king snake, was only playing possum. Which is, indeed, a very fine bit of strategy in any encounter.

So in no time at all, or even less, there was quite a gallery around the 19th hole where the reptile adversaries were about to tee off.

"What shall it be?" asked the king snake, "a quarter a hole or simply the whole? If you get what I mean."

The black snake, reach three feet, nine inches, answered this query in a tentative negative by taking a vicous bite at the king snake, reach three feet.

PUNCH TO MIDRIFF.

There was some doubt then as to whether it would be wrestling, catch as catch can, or a good old-fashioned street fight with no holds barred. The answer was quickly supplied as the king snake countered with a punch to the midriff and hung on.

It became apparent, as the king snake went into a clinch, that it was not a desperate defensive measure. No, it was nothing of the kind. It was strictly offensive.

And in approximately ten minutes by the clock, the king snake had won the first quarter. Twenty minutes later the king snake had won the second quarter. And forty-five minutes later the king, a master at in-fighting, had closed out the match, having taken all the black snake's quarters, fore and aft.

There was no necessity for the referee to announce the winner because there was only one adversary left in the ring. The king snake was entirely alone, although to the most casual observer it was apparent that it had taken on considerable weight.

And so yesterday the king snake was sleeping it off and refused to rouse for interviews. Jeff Modie solemnly declared that in one of its waking moments the king snake had muttered, "What a head!"

SOUTHERN ZONE SHOOT DRAWS LEADING STARS

Three-Day Event Begins Thursday at Capitol Gun Club.

By Jack Troy.

Shooting stars from many states will descend on the Capitol Gun Club on Thursday, Friday and Saturday to take part in the gala program of the club's successive southern zone trapshooting tournament.

It is really quite an honor that has come to the splendid club of which Larry Grant is president and Jack Tway is secretary and treasurer. The zone shoot isn't usually awarded to the same club two years in a row.

Be that as it may, all indications point to one of the best entries for any trap shoot in recent years. There will be champion of champions, state champions, city champions and champions of all kinds here for the three-day festival of firing.

HIESTAND RETURNS.

Joe Hiestand, one of the greatest trap shots in North America, will return with his old pal, Bill Eldred, who also was a winner last year. They're from Ohio.

Berrien Moore Jr., young East Lake star and a member of Georgia Tech's golf team, took the lead Monday in the qualifying round for the annual city amateur tournament on the Capital City Country Club course. Moore carded a 38-36—74, to beat out John Grant Jr., Capital City, and Jack Cook, Ansley Park, who shared an early lead of 75.

The final 18-hole round will be played today, with match play scheduled to open Wednesday with the first of the 18-hole matches. Another 18-hole round will be played Thursday, two on Friday and the finals on Saturday.

The tourney drew an entry of 90 of the city's outstanding golfers. It was not a record-breaking list, as was expected from the early entries Sunday, but the increase was due largely to the event being shifted from the late summer to the first big tourney of the year.

FAST GREENS.

The scores are several strokes higher than was expected, due to the unusually fast greens and the many extra yards added from the back tees.

All the players were complaining of the toughness of the course, as Howard Beckett, the veteran professional, sat back at the 18th green and chuckled all day. It will be even tougher today in the final of the qualifying.

There will be a merry scramble for the team trophy, as each club can enter as many players as they desire. The four lowest scores from any one club will determine the team winner and, in addition to a trophy for the club, each individual member of the winning team will be given an award.

Ansley Park took a temporary lead of 309 strokes Monday when Jack Cook, Gene Gailliard, Kid Brown and Gene Dahlbender finished well out in front. Second place is closely contested among Capital City, East Lake and Druid Hills, with any one of the four likely to break through today and win.

PLENTY OF YOUTH.

There is an abundance of youth entered and the youngsters are well out in front as the last half of the qualifying opens.

Berrien Moore Jr., the leader; Jack Cook, a member of Tech High's undefeated city, state and southern prep championship team; Gene Gailliard, Ansley Park; Stanley Holditch, Druid Hills, and winner of the Columbus invitation tournament last year; Kid Brown, captain of the Tech High team, and Morton Campbell, young East Lake star, are the youngsters setting the pace.

And there are two young Yates players very much in the running. Dan, a member of Boys' High golf team, carded a 42-42-84, and has a fine chance to get into the championship division today. Allen, the youngest brother of Charlie Yates, carded an even 100, which was several strokes better than some of the veterans.

YATES WATCHES.

Charlie Yates, just back from playing in the National open, was a sort of chaperon for his two kid brothers and was all smiles when they turned in creditable cards.

Frank Ridley, young East Lake star and defending champion, asked to play a practice round, but when informed that his score would count toward qualifying, he decided not to play—and when he learned the scores he was glad that he did not attempt to qualify.

British Net Champ Adds Another Title

BRUSSELS. June 10.—(AP)—Fred Perry, the British tennis champion, added another title to his list today when he defeated H. W. Artens, of Australia, 6-3, 9-7, 6-3, in the finals of the Belgian championship.

THE SPORTLIGHT

By Grantland Rice

(Copyright, 1935, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

THE WAY OF ODDS.

What should the odds be on the coming Baer and Braddock fight? If you look at the show along the line of simple reasoning, Braddock has only an outside chance. It ought to be almost a sure thing.

But what were the odds against Braddock beating both Lewis and Lasky on his way up! They were not any too thin.

You could have got 50 to 1 against Sam Parks winning the last open—50 to 1 or more.

Clarence Budington Kelland, the eminent author, in looking over the odds, decided he would like to have the field or some long play from the field against the printed list of stars.

There was almost a riot among the experts, who explained to him that no outsider could possibly beat the 40 best golfers in the world over the world's toughest course. "One—yes," they said. "But not 40. The odds should be 200-to-1."

But Sam Parks won—and two 30-to-1 shots ran two-three.

What odds would you have given that Dizzy Dean, Lefty Gomez and Schoolboy Rowe would lose more ball games before June 8 than they lost through the entire season of 1934?

You could have got plenty on that one—but here it is.

With such limited reason as the human brain has, there seems to be no reason why Baer shouldn't stop Braddock in two or three rounds. Baer can punch harder and take more. He is younger, bigger, stronger. Braddock has been beaten 17 times. But a game guy who is willing to throw punches is never quite outclassed. One of these might land on a vulnerable spot—and there are no super-men. Braddock isn't as good an all-around fighter as Schmeling was—and is. But he will do more fighting. Sometimes that counts.

Cast Is Removed From Harry's Arm

The plaster cast was taken off Harry Taylor's broken arm yesterday and the Cracker first baseman who was injured several weeks ago was pronounced well on the road to recovery by the physician.

Taylor won't be ready to play for three or four more weeks, however. And Manager Moore probably won't put him back in the lineup until he is completely well, since Hooks is going good at first.

BREWS BARRED FROM OPEN PLAY AT MUIRFIELD

South African Pro Fails to File Entry and Is Disqualified.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, June 10. (AP)—The Royal and Ancient Golf Association announced today Sid Brews, the South African professional and runner up in the 1934 championship, would not be permitted to compete in this year's British open golf championship starting June 24 at Muirfield.

Henry Gullen, secretary of the Royal and Ancient, said Brews had failed to file his entry and expressed regret there's nothing that can be done about it now.

Brews, who has been in the United States the past six weeks and last week competing in the American open tournament, is reported to be en route to England.

MUIRFIELD COURSE.

The 36-hole preliminary qualifying rounds for the championship will be played over Muirfield and the neighboring Gullane course where the leading 100 players and ties for the 100th place will qualify for the 72-hole championship proper at Muirfield starting Wednesday, June 26.

The contestants for the championship crown worn by tall Henry Cotton, winner at Royal St. George's a year ago, include two amateur and four professional invaders from the United States.

GOODYEAR TIRES Are Also for Sale by RICH'S TIRE DEPARTMENT, Forsyth Street, Across from Rich's Store

By Chief of Detectives
A. LAMAR POOLE

Just as he would make fingerprints to obtain conclusive, positive evidence, Chief Poole inks the tire, runs it over a sheet of "foot-print" paper, records on the same sheet the exact date supplied by the driver, the speedometer and the condition of the tire itself.

And from these records, made right here on Atlanta streets, comes the answer to the question Goodyear Service asked the Chief to answer: "Do G3 tires give Atlanta motorists the 43% extra non-skid mileage Goodyear promised the nation a year ago?"

The evidence is unmistakable: G3 tires on Atlanta cars are far exceeding the promises made by Goodyear, giving much more than 43% extra non-skid mileage.

Some of the ATLANTA EVIDENCE

D. E. SPURLING, BUCKHEAD, 23,825 miles and a clear "foot-print" despite the constant stop and start of city driving.

R. L. WEBB, DOWNTOWN. Fast driving record, but "foot-print" shows plenty of non-skid mileage left after 22,074 miles.

MRS. C. A. YOUNG, DECATUR. On second set G3 tires. First set went 20,000, present set "foot-printed" at 12,000 show very little wear, despite constant traffic driving.

A. H. BARTON, LAKEWOOD, car used in Fulton County Police service, all types road under high speeds, practically no wear visible at 7,289 miles.

W. C. RENTZ, WEST END, travels two states constantly. Sharp non-skid "foot-print" still showing clear at 33,228 miles.

WENDELL WHITE, BUCKHEAD, a salesman, who travels long distances at high speeds—yet his tires show plenty of non-skid traction at 17,000 miles.

LOWELL LAZENBY, DOWNTOWN, Goldenrod Farms delivery travels 70 miles a day with 100 stops and starts. Tires, despite heavy loads and constant friction, show non-skid pattern at 17,000 miles.

W. H. BOND, DECATUR, DeKalb Tax Commissioner, travels all over county. Sharp, deep "foot-print" at 20,676 miles. Expects 10,000 miles more.

JOE HARRISON, LAKEWOOD, Tread shows full non-skid pattern, deep and sharp after 17,845 miles of all sorts of roads on long trips.

W. R. RAUSCHENBERG, WEST END, after 16,322 miles of city and country driving, tire pattern shows distinct and good for many more miles.

By FRANK MacMILLEN.

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP)—It took stock market forces a long time to make up their minds today, but when they did they brought many issues ahead in a brisk last-hour rally.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks registered a new high for the year at 42.9, although the day's gain was only .4 of a point, and this was confined mainly to the industrials, with the rails and utilities for the most part a little better than steady. The previous high of the average was made on May 27, at 42.6.

During most of the session trading had been restricted and the course of prices a little uncertain, but by the close gains of a point or so were fairly common and volume expanded as prices lifted. Turnover for the day, however, was only 631,000 shares.

American Can was a leader in the late improvement with a gain of 4 1-2 points at 132. Wall Street board rooms talked about the recent experiments of the company in selling beer containers and heard that the project was to be widened in scope, although in some quarters the upward movement was seen as the usual buying of income which has been a feature of recent markets.

Broad Advances.

Philip Morris acquired an active following to close 3 1-2 points up at 52 1-4 on unofficial reports that its earnings were progressing favorably. Mullins Manufacturing preferred, a 10-share unit stock, gained around 11 points at one time and finished 9 points higher at 73. American Crystal Sugar preferred jumped 7 points to 122.

Corporate bonds gave a steady performance, but did not, for the most part, share in the late enthusiasm for equities. United States governments were moderately improved as the market noted that the government's June financing plan called for no new money. Foreign exchanges were quiet, feeling the effects of the Whitsuntide holiday abroad, and changes were narrow.

News is Scarce.

Corporate news was scarce except in the steel field. The United States Steel Corporation reported May shipments of finished products at 598,915 tons, 7,187 over April but well below the total for May, 1934, which was 745,053. Trade sources pointed out, however, that last year buying was bunched at the end of the quarter, whereas this year it had been more evenly spread out, but was well ahead of a year ago in the first five months

The Steel Institute estimated production in the industry for the current week at 39 per cent of capacity, off 1-2 point. The magazine Steel, in its weekly trade review, reported "less hesitation in making new commitments," and noted that supplies in the hands of consumers were relatively low, holding hope for a fair maintenance of activity in the future.

Gains of 1 to around 3 points were recorded by Corn Products at 75, Continental Can at 81 7-8, Radio preferred B at 50 1-2, Westinghouse at 49 1-4, American Telephone at 129 1-2, Southern California Edison at 17 7-8, Du Pont at 99 5-8, Union Pacific at 101, Union Carbide at 59 7-8, and American Crystal Sugar at 15 1-2. Allied Chemical was up 1 3-4 points following the announcement of the company that May sales were the best for any month since October, 1930.

CHICAGO EXCHANGE SHOWS LOSS IN YEAR

Income for the year ended April 30, 1935, was $187,928, compared with $161,782 for the preceding year, an increase of $26,145.

CURB TRADING SHOWS NO DEFINITE DIRECTION

Strength at Close Fails To Overcome Loss During Day.

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP)—Irregular price changes prevailed at the close of curb trading today. Rallying tendencies appeared in the last few minutes of the session but a number of issues failed to recover the full extent of their losses. Transfers approximated 173,000 shares compared with 157,000 last Friday.

Allied Mills rose a point net, while steadiness was the keynote among shares of Sherwin-Williams, Swift Internacional, Wright Hargreaves, Distillers' Corporation-Seagrams and Bunker Hill & Sullivan. Moderate recessions were shown by Newmont Mining, Pioneer Gold, Gulf Oil, Hiram Walker and American Gas & Electric.

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The bond market continued to edge forward today under small but persistent demand for low-priced rails and industrials. United States governments were generally steady.

Returning to the spotlight of trader and investment favor after undergoing considerable reappraisal of value following the uncertainties created by elimination of NRA from the national economic picture, there were numerous firm spots among the low-priced groups, and while trading was dull in prime investment issues, leaders held their own.

Advances of 1-32nd to 5-32nds among most of the government bonds was believed to reflect satisfaction on the part of the investment fraternity with the treasury scheme to issue on June 15 only enough new notes to take up those maturing on that date and on August 1. The 1 1-2 per cent rate on the new issue is the lowest at which the government has obtained five-year credit since the war.

Particular bright spots in the corporate divisions included obligations of the Atlantic Coast Line, Chicago Great Western, Rio Grande Western, Missouri Pacific, International Great Northern, Northern Pacific and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, most of which closed 1 to 2 points higher. International Paper 5s added 1 1-2 points to its quoted value at 71 1-4 and Manati Sugar 7s improved nearly 5 points to 29 7-8 on a small turnover.

Some of the most popular utility issues were inclined to hesitancy pending outcome of senate debate on the Wheeler-Rayburn bill. Among those holding even or slipping a trifle were American Water Works 6s at 85 3-4 and Laclede Gas 5 1-2s at 65 3-4.

Transfers aggregated $9,304,000, par value, compared with $8,514,000 last Friday. The Associated Press averages were .2 of a point higher to .2 of a point lower.

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN.

CHICAGO, June 10.—(AP)—Announcement United States wheat visible supplies had shrunk to the scantiest total witnessed in the last eight years tended noticeably to strengthen grain prices today.

Curtailment of the domestic wheat visible supply during the past week was 2,512,000 bushels, bringing the aggregate supply down to only 27,283,000 bushels. Corn visible supplies showed a decided reduction also, the total supply amounting now to but 8,893,000 bushels, against 41,681,000 a year ago.

Wheat closed uneven, 1-8 off to 3-4 up compared with Saturday's finish, July 83 5-8 to 83 3-4, corn 5-8 to 1 3-8 advanced, July 82 3-8 to 82 1-2, oats at 1-2 to 7-8 rise, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents down.

Evening up of accounts so as to prepare for the government crop report due after the close helped give a firm tone to the wheat market most of the day. Besides, weather conditions were looked upon as unfavorable, especially so in regard to corn, the planting of which is dangerously delayed in some important areas. Need of dry, sunshiny weather for wheat was also stressed.

Acting as a handicap to wheat price upturns, however, was uncertainty resulting from reports indicating likelihood of drastic legislation in Canada and possible closing of the Winnipeg grain exchange. Another large new wheat crop in Canada was talked of as probable, with a heavy carryover of old wheat. Under such circumstances, a persisting unwieldly Canadian wheat surplus was predicted in some quarters.

Corn and oats ruled higher, mainly on account of forecasts of additional moisture over parts of the corn belt where planting has not been completed.

Provisions were responsive to weakness of the cottonseed oil market.

INCREASE ESTIMATED IN WINTER WHEAT CROP

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—The Department of Agriculture said today a winter wheat crop of 441,000,000 bushels this year was indicated by conditions on June 1.

That compared with 431,637,000 bushels indicated a month ago, 405,034,000 produced last year and 618,180,000, the 1923-32 average production.

Indicated production of rye is 44,000,000 bushels, compared with 40,356,000 a month ago, 16,040,000 last year, and 21,150,000 for 1933.

Other indicated crops are:

Peaches, 52,300,000 bushels, compared with 45,400,000 last year and 56,500,000, the 1828-32 average.

Pears, 22,000,000 bushels, compared with 23,500,000 last year, and 23,100,000 in 1933.

The condition on June 1 this year and the same date a year ago of the various groups was:

Winter wheat, 74.2 per cent of a normal, compared with 55.3 a year ago; all spring wheat, 85.2 and 41.3; durum wheat, 84.4 and 29.6; other spring wheat, 85.3 and 42.4; oats, 84.4 and 47.2; barley, 84.3 and 44.7; rye, 84.2 and 43.5; hay (all) 77.6 and 51.5; pasture, 77.7 and 53.2; apples, 71.3 and 48.7; peaches, 62.5 and 58.3; pears, 60.1 and 59.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—According to Monday's press reports the opponents of both the public utility holding company bill and the NRA extension resolution evidently have found a common interest in opposing hasty senate action on either bill. While this situation further obscures the already uncertain legislative schedule in the senate, the stock markekt appears well inured to legislative uncertainties by this time.

COURTS & CO.—The upward movement and extreme narrowness of the market proves that it could go up much easier than in the opposite direction.

BEER & CO.—Judging from the action of the market during the past several days, we would say that the line of least resistance is upward.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We still believe adherence to the constructive side will prove most profitable.

COURTS & CO.—Immediately movement will probably be guided by quotations of the post-holiday foreign markets.

BEER & CO.—We favor purchases around the present level for quick turns.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—The wheat market seems to be in a trading position.

COURTS & CO.—The surprisingly bullish government report on winter wheat production still faces the bearish influences of excellent condition figures for both winter and spring crops, together with proposed Canadian legislation which suggest to us that rallies will not be extensive.

By FRED G. WILLIAMS.

NEW ORLEANS, June 10.—(AP)—Cotton values lost around 50 cents a bale today.

The market was under pressure during the entire session, and while closing prices were a little better than the lows for the day, active positions ended from 7 to 12 points lower.

July at 11.52, October at 11.22 and December at 11.24 were final quotations on the positions most actively traded. On sales of 558 bales the spot market lost 10 points with middling sagging to 12.00.

Bearish sentiment was brought about by a paucity of favorable developments and reports that the weather over the week-end had been good for the growing crop. Rains were reported only in widely scattered areas and the temperatures were hot and dry in most localities, an ideal condition for this time of the season.

Liverpool was closed again today for Whitsuntide holidays. In the goods market Manchester cabled from abroad that the past week had been poor for cotton cloths. Light business was also reported from Worth Street with most buyers only interested in nearby shipments and displaying extreme caution about late deliveries.

2 Capital Developments.

Two Washington developments appeared during the day. One was the statement by Oscar Johnston that the pool would sell 350,000 bales more of cotton, replacing it with futures. He said the pool was still willing to take the remaining 20,000 bales of certificated stocks at the July prices.

In a magazine article Secretary of Agriculture Wallace went on record as opposing the export subsidy program for cotton which has come in for considerable attention. Mr. Wallace said the program probably would cost around $300,000,000 and might bring severe retaliatory measures from India, Brazil and Great Britain.

The volume of trading was small today, as most traders hesitated about taking a position in the market at the present time.

Port receipts 2,137; week 7,117; season 4,307,427; last season 7,448,884. Exports 16,748; week 21,407; season 4,349,001; last season 6,862,721. Port stocks 1,548,444. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston were 51,250; last season 117,771. Spot sales at southern markets 2,879; last season 9,465.

Market Outlook

MAX BUCKINGHAM

(Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.)

NEW YORK, June 10.—(UP)—A dull market encouraged Wall Street tonight. Traders believed the listless behavior of today's market indicates bearishness is light.

For three hours only 11,000 shares were exchanged. In the final hour 260,000 changed hands when American Can, Chrysler, Continental Can and Westinghouse led a spirited rally which resulted in closing gains up to 4 points.

Improvement in late trading offers no signal for immediate re-entry into the market. Chartists join professional operators in warning caution. From the chartists standpoint, the question is which area is about to be tested—the highs made last month or the lows made early this month. If the former, they think a breaking of the high point will assure a steady advance. A testing of the latter might result in continued irregularity.

The non-technical group cling to the "uncertainty" excuse for inactivity. Bills pending in congress may upset the picture.

The business picture does not relieve this uncertainty. While the United States Steel Corporation reported May shipments in excess of those in April, the remainder of the steel situation was unimproved. The American Iron and Steel Institute reported production at 39 per cent of capacity, off 1-2 point while the rate in the Birmingham district dropped 22.2 points as deliveries on rails contracted the first of the year were completed.

June automobile production probably will slump.

NEW YORK FUTURES DECLINE 9-14 POINTS

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP)—Cotton was easier under light scattering liquidation with demand limited. More favorable weather and absence of further foreign support were factors in the decline. Final prices showed net losses of 9 to 14 points.

The technical position was easier after Saturday's active covering movement and initial declines of 9 to 11 points were credited as much to poor demand as they were to offerings, which were not heavy. The declines extended to net losses of 14 to 19 points but partial rallies followed on appearance of moderate buying credited to government account in the forward positions. Fluctuations were irregular over a rather narrow range.

Exports today 16,676 making 4,538,821 so far this season. Port receipts 1,399. United States port stocks 1,556,456.

NATURE MADE ALUMINUM

friendly

TO FOODS

● The friendship between foods and Aluminum isn't the sentimental kind. It is a natural working partnership.

It starts way back in the chemistry of food. There are small quantities of Aluminum in practically all the foods we eat. Mother Nature put it there. At the same time, she gave the metal itself fundamental qualities that make it ideal in contact with foods.

Aluminum protects purity, preserves color and taste, and assures cleanliness and wholesomeness.

Confections and cheese, for instance, are wrapped in Aluminum foil for just such reasons. The purity of milk, our most sensitive food, is guarded in the plant with Aluminum equipment, and in the bottle with shining Aluminum hoods.

In meat-packing plant and cannery, in brewery and bakery, Aluminum is used extensively to assure cleaner, purer, better food products. Caps and seals of Aluminum are on millions of food bottles for the same reasons.

Hospitals, whose business is health, equip their kitchens with Aluminum. Hotels and restaurants, depending upon selling food, join millions of housewives in equipping their kitchens with Aluminum utensils.

As final evidence of friendship, foods are cooked in Aluminum more economically because nature made Aluminum a superior conductor of heat.

The humble saucepan demonstrates three Aluminum fundamentals: complete absence of contamination, high heat conductivity and lightness. These are fundamentals of economic significance to many industries. These are qualities that are ready to be put to work. It has been our continuous objective to give Aluminum the mechanical properties to do that work well and economically. ALUMINUM COMPANY OF AMERICA, Gulf Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

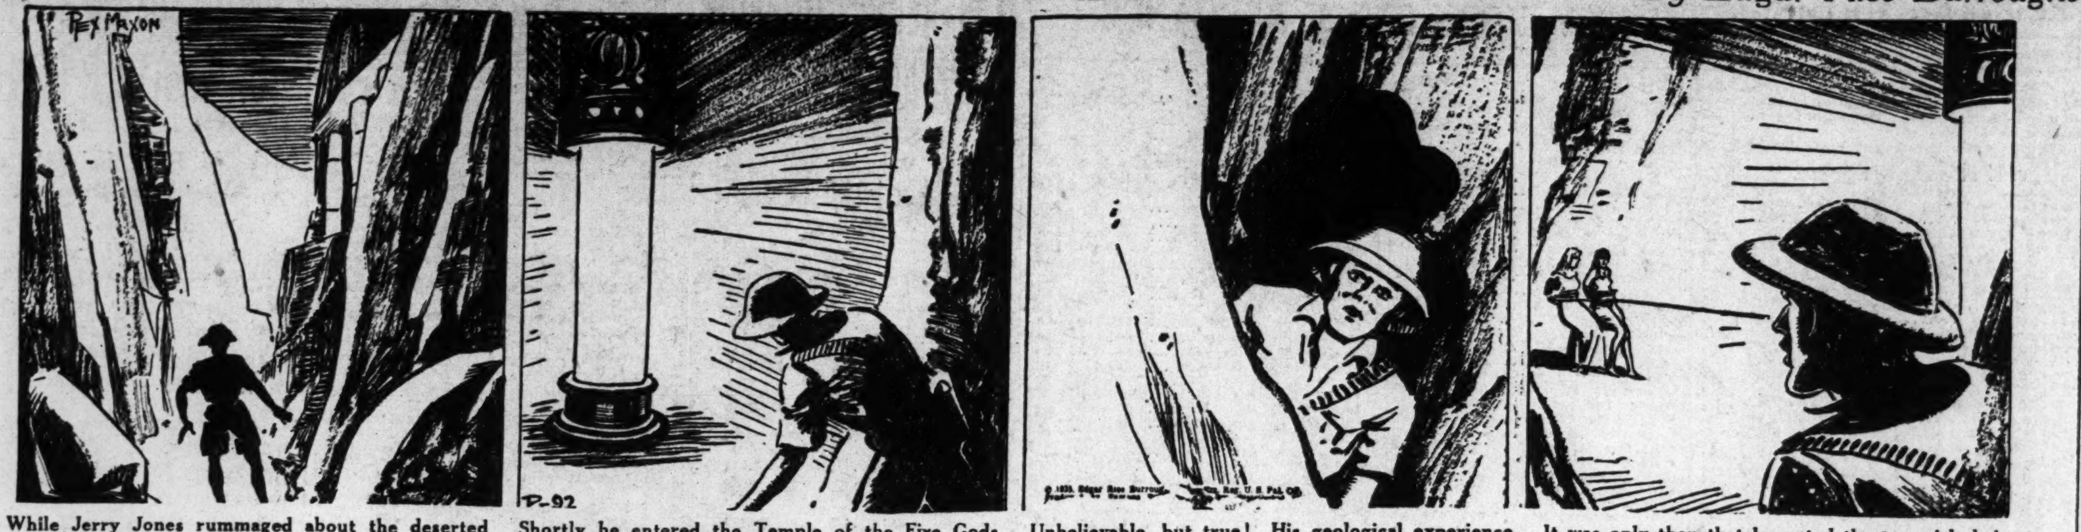
TARZAN AND THE FIRE GODS No. 92

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



While Jerry Jones rummaged about the deserted Baalite village, he heard wails and shouts from afar. Ever curious, and ignorant of his danger, he wandered into the ravine where a few hours before Lady Beth Barclay's footsteps had hurried her toward her doom!

Shortly he entered the Temple of the Fire Gods and concealed himself in the courtyard of the Fiery Pillar just as the leaden casing was rising from that mysterious, death-dealing column. With utter and incredulous amazement he fixed his gaze on the glowing pillar.

Unbelievable, but true! His geological experience told him that the monolith contained some intensely radio-active substance in quantities hitherto unknown to science. Dr. Jones almost shouted for joy, so thrilled was he by this extraordinary discovery.

It was only then that he noted the two girls being drawn toward the pillar, whose rays he knew were deadly. Whatever unholy rite this was, he must halt it. But the impractical scholar did not stop to consider that he too might be overwhelmed by this fiendish multitude!

DAILY SHORT STORY

STAY-AT-HOME

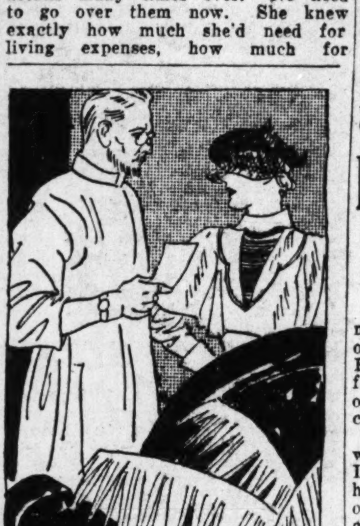
A Marriage Career Did Not Enter the Plans of a Young Woman Who Wanted To Travel

BY KATHERINE HOWARD.

Eileen looked with delighted eyes at the book before her. Within it was encompassed all the things she had worked for these last 15 months. Two thousand dollars—all hers! It made worth while those long months of steady writing; writing sometimes all day. And all free-lance stuff too; no contract jobs.

The checks had suddenly started coming in; one for a short story, another for a feature article—until that blessed $2,000 was amassed. And now she sat with a steamship folder before her, smacking figurative lips in anticipation of the adventures that awaited her in far corners of the world.

She had looked forward to this a long time. Since the year she left college in fact; and had planned the details many times over. No need to go over them now. She knew exactly how much she'd need for living expenses, how much for clothes, how much for traveling expenses. She hadn't missed a detail.



"Are you a relative?" he asked."

The doorbell broke in upon her pleasant pondering.

"Don!" She held the door open to admit him.

Don Carter smiled at her as he held her hand in his. The eyes of this young and nice-looking doctor said that he was in love with Eileen.

"Sit down, won't you? You look tired." Eileen had already seated herself and her eyes strayed once more to the steamship folder. Don looked at her silently for a moment.

"Changed your mind yet?" he asked. She stood up impatiently.

"Oh, Don! I thought we'd decided all that."

He smiled wryly. "Yeah," he said, "I guess we did."

Eileen sat down again. Then he continued wryly:

"I'm an awfully good catch now, Eileen. Got a new job."

She fingered the steamship folder wistfully. "I'm glad, Don—for you. What's the job?"

"Staff job at the Stark hospital. It's a wonderful break. I'm the envy of every young medico in the city." The corners of his eyes crinkled humorously.

She said again, "I'm very glad."

"I'd be able to support you in the style to which you've been accustomed. We could have a quiet little home in the suburbs, with rambler roses—that is, if you like rambler roses. How do you stand on rambler roses? Or wouldn't you care to be quoted?"

She laughed. "No, Don," she said gently. "I'm sorry, but I can't marry you."

He hardly gave her time to finish the sentence. "You say you can't; but do you know? So often we find ourselves saying, 'I can't,' when with a little honest effort the thing would be perfectly simple. You're too easily discouraged. Work at the thing, my girl. Where's your spirit?"

This time she refused to laugh. Her eyes were serious. "Sorry, Don. You know how I feel. This trip—"

"Oh, that," he interrupted. "It won't last forever, will it? You can't spend your life globe-trotting. A day will come when you'll want a nook or cranny to call your own. By the way, which do you prefer: a nook or a cranny? Whatever it is we have it. Are you holding out for the nook? Or have you set your heart on a cranny?"

"No, Don," she answered. "I'm serious. I want you to forget the whole business. I'm independent and I'm going to stay that way. I like you. I want your friendship. But that's as far as it goes."

He stared at the floor a moment. Then, "Spurned, eh?" he said. He stood up and walked to the door.

"Must you go?" she asked. "I'm terribly sorry, Don," she added impulsively. "Right now this trip means everything to me. I've dreamed of it for so long. I can't think of anything else. Perhaps when I get back—"

"Forget it," he said, and there was no humor in his eyes now. "Guess I can take it. I've still my work, you know." Then he forced another smile. "Think I'll drown my sorrows in an appendectomy. Have a good time, kid."

He blew her a kiss and closed the door.

Eileen picked up the steamship folder. She thumbed the pages idly, read an article or two, then glanced restlessly at the door.

An hour later the telephone rang.

"Miss Decker," a voice said.

"Yes," Eileen replied.

"There's been an accident. A Mr. Carter—Don Carter. We found a letter addressed to you, and thought you might know—"

"Is he—very bad?" Eileen was trembling.

"Very. Motor accident. He was driving pretty recklessly. The doctors think—"

"Where is he?" the words came thinly from her pale lips.

"Emergency hospital. Pine and Forsythe streets."

"I'll be right over."

A few minutes later a pale and hatless Eileen stood in the reception room of the Emergency hospital.

"Will you follow me, Miss Decker?" A nurse was beckoning her. Wordlessly Eileen followed her into the elevator. Two floors up.

The doctor met them at the door of Don's room.

"How is he, doctor?" The words trembled out.

"He—he has a chance." The doctor smiled at her sympathetically. Her face was so white; her eyes so large.

"May I see him now?"

"I think so. But for a moment only." Eileen's hand was on the doorknob. She turned again to the doctor.

"Doctor—there'll be expenses. I know the young man is poor. But don't worry about that. I can take care of anything up to two thousand dollars."

The doctor smiled again. "We won't worry about that," he said, kindly. "Are you a relative?" he asked.

Eileen opened the door.

"Not yet," she said.

Macon Meet Will Draw Many

MACON, Ga., June 10.—(AP)—George Norrie, secretary-treasurer of the Southeastern Professional Golfers' Association, says he expects at least 60 professionals and about 75 amateurs to enter the annual Southeastern P. G. A. open tournament here on June 21-23.

Norris said that Eddie Miller, of Gadsden, Ala., present champion, will be on hand to defend his title.

Others who have said they would compete are Frank Stephenson, Savannah; Tony Lanier, Greensboro, N. C.; George Sargent, Atlanta; Charlie Hall, Birmingham, and Nelson Giddens, Jackson, Miss.

Norrie said Charlie Yates, of Atlanta, national collegiate champion, has been asked to play in the tournament, but that Yates has neither accepted nor rejected the invitation.

Only two amateurs, Bobby Jones and Watts unn, former Atlantan, have don the tournament.

The matches will be played over the course of the Idle Hour Country Club, of which Norrie is professional.

HACKNEY WINS OVER ASSYRIAN

Honey Boy Hackney defeated Sammy Miller, Assyrian champion, in one of the best matches ever seen at the Key arena last night before some 3,000 fans. Hackney took the best two out of three falls and the match was exciting throughout.

Otto Heinman, the giant German, was disqualified in his match with Louis LaChene. Police had to carry him to his dressing room for using on the Canadian a rock he had concealed in his knee pad.

ARVEN TOURNEY STARTS JULY 3

THOMASVILLE, Ga., June 10.—The seventeenth annual Glen Arven Country Club invitation golf tournament, Georgia's oldest invitation tournament, will begin this year on Wednesday, July 3, it has been announced, and once again golfers from throughout south Georgia and north Florida will make the trek to Thomasville to take part in the event, which annually decides the Piney Woods links championship of this section of the two states.

The qualifying rounds will begin on July 3 and will continue through July 6, at which time the tourney finals will be staged with the Piney Woods title at stake in the championship flight.

Indications at this time point to the largest field to play in several years, and in connection with the 1935 tournament plans are also being perfected to stage a contract bridge tournament simultaneously with the golfing competition. This feature will be attractive to many nongolfers and will add to the interest of the links program. The bridge tournament will be open to both ladies and gentlemen except participants in the golf tournament when hours would conflict.

Younger Is Named V.P.I. Graduate Head

BLACKSBURG, Va., June 10.—(AP)—The appointment of Monk Younger, assistant football coach, as graduate manager of Virginia Polytechnic Institute to succeed the veteran C. P. "Sally" Miles was announced by administration officials today.

Younger, an alumnus and former ace in the Virginia Tech line, returned to V. P. I. several years ago to serve as assistant under H. B. "Puss" Redd, football coach. Previously he had coached at Davidson.

Redd himself had been mentioned a successor to Miles, who had severed Virginia Tech as head of its athletic department for years before voluntarily relinquishing his job.

Hackman Signs To Coach Roanoke

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 10.—(AP)—Joseph Sandy "Buddy" Hackman, former coach at the Lakeland (Fla.) High school, has signed a contract to become backfield coach at Roanoke College, Roanoke, Va.

Hackman, other member of the famous "Mack and Mack" (Eugene McEver) passing and running combination at the University of Tennessee, announced last night he had signed the contract.

After finishing at Tennessee in 1930 Hackman coached at Lakeland for three years and later coached at the Greenville (Tenn.) High school.

Fred Perry Beats Artens for Title

BRUSSELS, June 10.—(UP)—Fred Perry, English tennis star, won the singles title in the Belgian championships today, defeating Hermann Artens, Austrian Davis-cupper, in the final, 6-3, 9-7, 6-3.

Indian Outfielder Breaks His Finger

CLEVELAND, June 10.—(AP)—General Manager Billy Evans, of the Cleveland Indians, disclosed today that Ab Wright, hard-hitting Tribe outfielder, sustained a broken finger yesterday in pregame practice and will be lost to the club for five weeks because of the injury.

Germany Eliminates Italian Cup Squad

BERLIN, June 10.—(AP)—Germany eliminat l Italy today, 4 to 1, in the quarter-final round of the European zone Davis cup eliminations, and will meet Australia in the round before the finals.

Heiner Henkel defeated S. Mangold, of Utalya, 6-1, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3, while Baron Gottfried von Cramm accounted for Georgio Destefani, 6-8, 6-4, 5-7, 6-1.

Germany and Australia will meet on June 14.

TEETH BOTHER.

Pat Malone, pitcher the Yankees acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals, has had eight infected teeth extracted. He said they weren't bothering his arm, but that a dentist advised their removal.

BREAK of the DAY!

LONDOS AND SAUER.

Mr. Henry Weber, who provides the city with wrestling entertainment, returns from St. Louis with a Londos-Sauer match for Atlanta, the same being scheduled for the evening of June 19.

It is quite a promotional triumph for our Mr. Weber and our town is pretty sure to jam the baseball park for that match. Londos and Sauer constitute probably the finest card which could have been obtained and a crowd of 10,000 is not improbable for the meeting.

Londos won't be champion much longer. The strain is telling on him and what is more important he is tired of it all.

Weber reports that Londos plans to take a long vacation this summer and that the champion is weary of the steady procession of matches.

All of which means he will be weary of it one night and some youngster or some veteran will pin his shoulders and we'll have a new champion. It might even happen here when Sauer and Londos meet.

MOORE RESTS FOR TWO DAYS

Eddie Moore, skipper of the first-place Crackers, was so eager to improve his batting eye that he "overdid it" in batting practice yesterday.

Eddie went out early yesterday to take some extra cuts at the ball and hit for nearly an hour. The result was that he blistered his hands in several places and will be unable to get back in the lineup for a couple of days. "They weren't painful at first, but tonight they are giving me 'fits,' so I decided to stay out and give them a chance to get well," Moore stated.

"Pinky" James, who has been playing good ball, will be in Moore's place in left field tonight and this arrangement should be all right since Memphis is pitching Ed Greer, a right-hander. James is a left-handed hitter.

Another Cracker has fallen victim to an inadvertent mishap, it was learned last night.

Big Bill Schmit, the pitcher, stepped on a baseball in batting practice Sunday, fell and hurt his shoulder. Moore had planned to pitch him tonight, but Durham will work in his place. Schmidt will be all right in two days.

The Crackers, it seems, are having their share of injuries, although they manage to keep on winning. Lynn Nelson, the pitcher, has recuperated from a broken finger and probably will pitch Thursday against Little Rock in the first game of the double-header with that club.

Harry Kelley is to face Clay Touchstone, of Memphis, in the final game with that club on Wednesday.

THE BIG SIX 6

Taking advantage of being the only member of baseball's Big Six to get into action yesterday, Arky Vaughan, the Pirates' hard-hitting shortstop, drove out two home runs in four times at bat to improve his position as leader of the sextet. The two blows were good for a gain of two points and boosted his average to .397.

The standings:

Crawford Pressed To Defeat Boussus

PARIS, June 10.—(AP)—Jack Crawford's hard-fought five-set triumph over Christian Boussus today gave Australia a team victory over France and qualified the Anzacs to meet Germany in the semi-final round of the European zone Davis cup qualifying competition.

Crawford's 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 9-7 conquest of the Tricolor's first ranking player gave Australia a 3-to-2 margin in the five-match series.

McLemore Marries Des Moines Girl

NEW YORK, June 10.—(UP)—Henry McLemore, sports columnist of the United Press, and Miss Jean Frances Conrad were married today at city hall. Miss Conrad is the former wife of James Hanrahan, Des Moines newspaper writer. McLemore recently was divorced by his first wife, Mrs. Eleanor Benham McLemore.

Racing Commission Re-elects Carl Rose

OCALA, Fla., June 10.—(AP)—Carl G. Rose, of this city today was re-elected chairman of the Florida Racing Commission and Walter H. Donovan, of St. Petersburg, was renamed secretary at a business meeting of the board here.

Down the Alleys

Louis Outler's three-game set of 355 topped the three-game marks in the Individual Duckpin league, bowled at Blick's Bowling Center, last night. Outler had games of 140, 126, 129 in running up the big series as he won two games from C. J. Metcalf.

George W. McKay was most consistent for the evening, winning two games from Carl Tidwell with games of 115, 106, 130, and then taking two from L. M. Tappan with scores of 112, 121, 130. Tappan's 141, bowled in the second of the double-header, was the high game of the evening.

In this league, where most of the city's top-ranking duckpinsters vie against one another each Monday, may be found the heavy scoring of the summer bowling.

HELEN MOODY WINS EASILY

BECKENHAM, England, June 10. (UP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, of California, former international tennis champion, will be given the severest test of her come-back campaign when she meets Miss Ermyntrude Harvey, former British hard courts champion and ex-Wightman cup player tomorrow, in the second round of the Kent tourney.

Mrs. Moody easily got by the first round today when she eliminated Miss S. J. Chuter, of England, former junior champion, 6-0, 6-0.

The English girl was obviously nervous and unable to cope successfully with Mrs. Moody's effortless though brilliant game. Helen took less than half-an-hour to best her youthful opponent.

Fresh from her victory in last week's St. George's Hill tourney—her first competitive play since 1933—Mrs. Moody displayed all her old-time confidence and championship form. Miss Chuter took only five points in the first set, as her American opponent concentrated on the base line.

Helen's smashing drives completely upset the English girl in the second set, thoroughly disheartening her and causing her to net on many occasions.

Richmond Amateur To Defend His Title

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., June 10. (AP)—Bobby Riegel, young Richmond amateur, who wears the middle Atlantic crown by virtue of his clear-cut victory at Hot Springs last year, moved on the Princess Anne course today to map his defense against a covetous field that will be gunning for his title in the tournament that opens Wednesday.

It will be the first time the 19-year-old shotmaker has surveyed the Princess Anne layout since he went to the semi-finals in the state amateur there a year ago.

The tournament scene is not unfamiliar to the defending champion, and by his own admission he is in prime shape for resisting the pressure of an agressive field. Unless the mental hazard of being the target of sharpshooters who would like to topple him from the peak proves disastrous, the young Richmonder is conceded an excellent chance to become the eighth man to win the title twice and the third to hold it for two consecutive years.

Qualifying play will be held Wednesday and Thursday, and the first matches are scheduled Friday. The semi-finals will be played Saturday morning and the finals that afternoon.

ThreeMatches Slated On Avondale Card

Three matches have been booked for the weekly Thursday night wrestling card at the Avondale open-air arena. Promoter Nat Jones promises one of the best cards ever presented here Thursday night. The card will start at 8:30 o'clock.

In the feature skirmish Frank Remmill, Gadsden (Ala.) coal miner, will meet the rugged Louis LaChene, French-Canadian champion, in a 90-minute, three-fall match. Remmill challenged the rugged LaChene and it has been accepted by the former. Both wrestlers are exponents of punishing holds.

Australia Cinches French Cup Match

PARIS, June 10.—(AP)—Australia clinched a victory over France in the European zone Davis cup eliminations today when Jack Crawford, the No. 1 Australian player, defeated Christian Boussus, of France, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 9-7.

Both players were near collapse after the gruelling two and a half-hour battle in the burning sun. Crawford's superior physique gave him the needed margin for Australia's third victory in the series.

dy Hoffman, himself, was catching great ball and helping a lot with his hitting. Overnight, he became the hero of the fans and is now in very solidly at Memphis.

In Sunday's game, Hoffman showed his smartness as a catcher by doing a swell job of handling young Henry and picking Buster Chatham off first base with Dave Harris up as a pinch hitter in the seventh and the tying runs on base. Hoffman called for a pitch-out and plucked Chatham off clean as a whistle for the third out, thereby getting Henry out of his only hole.

Last week, he picked "Mule" Shirley off first the same way with Memphis leading 3-2 in the eighth and the bases full.

HIS MOTTO.

Hoffman's motto, learned from years of catching is this:

"In a close ball game, with two teams fighting for the top, exery pitched ball is important—every play means something. For two teams down in the race, it is different. They can play for one big inning and hope for the best. But with two teams well matched, you can't overlook anything."

Hoffman is not a Simon Legree, nor over-exacting. He simply insists on his players playing baseball and reasonably observe the training rules. He has won the confidence of his men and yesterday, on his birthday, his boys came around and showed their liking for their skipper by bringing him individual presents.

After 23 years of laboring as a catcher in the majors and minors, Freddy Hoffman finally got a break. And, after talking with the man, this writer, for one, is glad that he did.

CRACKERS

struck out and Thomas brought a roar from the crowd by making him send a soft fly out to Moore in left.

CRACKERS START.

The Crackers, after the bad start, got back in the game in the second when they scored two runs and tied it up. This is how they did it:

Lipscomb singled to left. Harris walked. Oana flied to center, but Jim McCaskill, the rookie catcher, banged out a single to score Lipscomb, Harris taking third. The latter scored when Chatham bounced a hot one off Butzman's shins, that young man, in his excitement, throwing to first when he had a chance to nail Harris at the plate.

The Crackers went ahead in the third. With one out, Hooks hit a looper into right and Tarzan Joe Hutcheson, trotting leisurely in to field the ball, let it get by him for three bases. Lipscomb, who hit the ball hard, followed with a single to left, scoring him.

FOURTH SCORE.

The fourth run came in the sixth. Buster Chatham, who had a good day to atone for his bad one of Sunday, opened with a single and Thomas sacrificed him to second. Johnny Hill, who had gone hitless, came through with a vicious double to the center-field bank, scoring Chatham.

The Crackers salted the game away with another run in the seventh when Harris waited Carter out for a walk, stole second and scored when Oana sent a single past Farrell into right. The last score came in the eighth on Chatham's long triple to left-center and Manager Moore's squeeze bunt which scored him.

Bobby Durham, who won two games last week, will pitch for the crackers tonight, with Ed (Old Bearclaws) Greer working for the Chicks.

Manager Moore changed his lineup again yesterday with both Harris and Oana back in the outfield and announced that it was going to stay that way.

OMAHA PASSES DETROIT DERBY

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP)—Omaha, champion of the three-year-olds, will pass up the Detroit Derby Saturday and make his next start in the one and one-half miles of the $10,000 Dwyer stakes at Aqueduct, June 29, William Woodward, the colt's owner, announced today.

COMMITTEE BARS ALABAMA PITTS

will make good on it. I absolutely will get out of the game," Evers said.

"Alabama" had only a pathetic comment to make after hearing himself barred. "This is the toughest blow of my life," he said. Tears welled up into his eyes.

Signed to play with Albany, Pitts was ruled ineligible in a decision read to him and to Evers just before noon by Warren O. Giles, of Rochester, chairman of the executive committee.

"While we are in sympathy with the program which gives to paroled convicts an opportunity to rehabilitate themselves, we are of the opinion the interests of the man himself will best be served in some field where his activities will not be constantly subjected to public scrutiny and comment," the committee said.

"This, in our opinion, is particularly true where the circumstances in the case are such as to give the appearance that the offer of employment in a greatly publicized field is prompted more by a desire of the employer to capitalize on the prison record of the paroled convict and the publicity attendant thereto, than it is to give opportunity to the paroled convict to capitalize his talents."

OFFICE SPACE RENTALS REPORTED ON INCREASE

Building Owners' Association Convention Hears Praise of NRA Goals.

CINCINNATI, June 10.—(AP)—Delegates to the 28th annual convention of the National Building Owners & Managers' Association heard today that a sharp decrease in office vacancies and decrease in rentals have been reversed and the trend is back toward normalcy.

Frank S. Slosson, of Chicago, president, also asserted at the opening session of the four-day meeting that the "original aims" of the NRA are essential to recovery and the "important work" left by the supreme court decision is "more definitely and conclusively" the job of the association and other trade organizations.

Discussing the improvement in rentals, Slosson said:

"The tide has been stemmed. Each vacancy survey beginning May 1, 1929, showed an alarming and constantly increasing average in vacated areas in office space throughout the United States. Through organized effort, stabilization and constructive teamwork we have been able to overcome this trend with its attendant evils of rent reduction and delinquencies."

The passing of the NRA, he said, will not change the organization's policies regarding hours and wages of labor.

"There is no doubt," he added, "there was some good in NRA—more in theory perhaps than in practice. Its original aims—co-operation and stabilization are essential to recovery. The real importance of the supreme court decision is left where it should be left, to trade organizations. It is more definitely and conclusively our job than the job of any state, federal or political organization."

ICKES HIKES INTEREST ON RELIEF FUND LOANS

Secretary Says Present Conditions Do Not Favor Use of Private Capital.

WASHINGTON, June 10—(AP)—A boost in interest charges and a new limitation on public works loans were ordered by the administration today with the stated objective of getting "a dollar's worth of reemployment construction out of a 45-cent federal outlay.

An additional $59,893,832 in projects was recommended to the president.

Most of the new spending recommendations involved Agricultural Department activities, including $25,000,000 for the soil conservation service and $13,827,500 for the forestry service.

Also recommended, although not mentioned in an official press release, was $10,000,000 to continue work on the Casper-Alcova reclamation projection in Wyoming. Senator O'Mahoney, democrat, Wyoming, made the announcement.

Seeking to make possible allotment of the entire $900,000,000 authorized out of the $4,000,000,000 fund for nonfederal projects by attracting private capital to finance expenditures not donated by the government, Secretary Ickes ordered with President Roosevelt's approval:

A return to the 4 per cent charge on PWA loans which had been reduced to 3 per cent May 24.

That where a grant of 45 per cent of the cost of a project was made, federal loans should not make up the balance. This would have the effect of relying on private capital for the 55 per cent remainder.

Ickes said it was found the 3 per cent rate often "made it inadvisable for communities with reasonably good credit sources to utilize such credit outside the federal government."

Federal donations of PWA projects recently were increased from 30 to 45 per cent in the hope that states and communities in good financial condition would not demand 100 per cent grants from Harry L. Hopkins' works progress division.

The decision last week that additional projects must not cost more than $1,100 annually for each man given work directly created difficulty because the average expenditures per man on PWA projects was $2,000. Ickes expressed the hope employment on projects receiving grants only would bring the average down to $1,100, so that there was a "reasonable expectation" that all of the $900,000,000 would be allotted.

STAMPS AID DUCKS

Non-Hunting Collectors May Buy Them.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—The senate today voted permission for stamp collectors, who are not duck hunters, to buy the "duck stamps" issued for $1 each by the interior department to raise money for game conservation.

The resolution, which already has passed the house, would amend wild game laws by making it unnecessary for a purchaser of the stamp first to exhibit a state hunting license to indicate his right to hunt.

Besides collectors, it was contended, some people who didn't hunt wanted to buy the stamps, just as a "good turn" for the ducks.

TENNESSEE LOSES $700,000 TAX CASE

Former Insurance Commissioner Joseph I. Reece Held Responsible in Ruling.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 10.—(AP)—The state lost in the supreme court today an insurance case involving $700,000 of tax revenues and the state deficit thereby was automatically increased in that amount.

The case centered about a tax ruling of former Insurance Commissioner Joseph I. Reece, who, in 1932, held that mutual life insurance companies should pay a levy on all premium receipts. The companies contended that they were entitled to offsets for dividends paid policyholders and credited to the payment of premiums.

In addition to the added tax for 1932, Reece back-assessed 60 mutual companies for five years prior to his ruling, and the aggregate claims against the state by the companies amounted to approximately $700,000.

Assistant State Attorney General Edwin H. Hunt, who represented the insurance department in the litigation, said that because the claim was a preferred one against the treasury, the state deficit would be increased automatically by the amount involved.

EXPORT REORIENTATION URGED AT TRADE MEET

Shift of Sales Effort From Europe to South America Is Advocated.

NEW YORK, June 10—(AP)—Less concentration on trading with Europe and increased cultivation of Central and South American markets was urged by Mayor William H. Malone, of Key West, Fla., today in an address before the conference of seaport cities on international trade.

James D. Mooney, president of the American Manufacturers Export Association, another speaker at the opening of the three day meeting, declared that for the last 35 years every port in this country had been "blockaded by an ever-growing tariff wall.

Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coast cities were represented at the conference. Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, who summoned it, deplored inter-city rivalry in his address of welcome and urged recognition of the fact that "all seaports have one common interest."

"This conference should make it known to the country," Mayor LaGuardia said, "that we cannot do more export business unless we do more import business. If we believe for a moment we can sell to countries and not buy something, we are living in the past."

If a new system of exporting and importing should be devised," he continued, "the conference should outline its ideas to the departments of State and Commerce. Until there is world currency stabilization," he said, "it might be necessary to establish a clearing house for countries which trade with us."

Mayor Malone urged greater trade between the Americas, not only for its industrial benefits but on the ground it "would make us impregnable against any force in time of peace and in time of war."

"We have fastened our eyes on Europe and devoted our energies to the establishing of trade with them and neglected the western hemisphere. Our staple products are, to a large extent, the staple products of Europe."

Mayor Thomas Gamble, of Savannah, Ga., said he expected an increased movement of cotton in commerce. Solution of the trade problem, he said, may be found in the exchange of "our reasonable surplus for the products of other lands."

TAXI STRIKERS ALLOWED SHRINE RATE INCREASE

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—The capital's taxicab strike—which compelled thousands of visiting Shriners to do their sightseeing by street car or on foot—ended for the most part this afternoon after District of Columbia commissioners had authorized higher rates.

Three thousand of the city's 4,000 cabs returned to work. The remainder held further deliberations.

Drivers were granted permission by the district public utilities commission to increase the present zone rates of 20-30-50 and 70 cents to 20-40-60 and 80 cents during the convention.
